HOMER M'KAY SPEAKS ON THE PANAMA QUESTION AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

From Wednesday's Daily.

Last Sunday evening at the Christian church Homer McKay spoke to a large crowd on his trip and observations of the condition in the canal zone, where he and Mrs. McKay visited during the past winter. Leaving New York one evening they found themselves just off Cape Hatteras when morning broke in a very rough sea. The women folks were very sick and had to stay in their staterooms, while Mr. McKay was unaffected by the storm and rough sea. At the end of six days they arrived at Cristobol, the end of their journey by boat.

Speaking of the city of Panama, Mr. McKay said that it is a city of 60,000 population, and occupies about one-fourth of the territory which Plattsmouth does. The streets are very narrow, and while they have a street car service, the cars are compelled to run so close to the houses that one riding in them can smell the breath of the ones in the house, and which he remarked was far from like other of roses.

The rooms, while some of the buildings were three stories in height, were about eight feet square, and in many cases housed as many as ten persons. Every business house from the millinery store to the implement house, carried a stock of bottled whisky. Whether kept for snake bites or not he did not say.

In Panama was the end of the whisky business, for he said that no one was allowed to sell whisky or anything else on the canal zone proper, for the government done that themselves. He gave a detailed account of the trip which they made through the canal, which was given to the readers of this paper some time since.

The speaker gave a very vivid description of the dances which were indulged in by the blacks and the whites in the zone. In the ones participated in by the blacks, while both the gentlemen and ladies danced together, indiscriminately they never came in contact with each other, not even to touching one another, being free from the hugging effect which characterized the dances of the whites. No "bunny hugs" or "grizzly bears" in theirs. But when the whites shook the light fantastic toe it was different—they did not fail to practice all the late variations.

Speaking of the freight charges, he said that some of the larger vessels cost $17,000 to get through the canal, but even at that would be a great saving on making the trip around South America.

The incentive of hard work was not noticeable, on account of the fact that all the necessities of the people were furnished by nature, as bread fruit grew wild, and that clothing was often dispensed with, and a great cut in the cost of high living.

There were acres of tools, cars, engines and material which had been used on the construction of the canal lying out in the open rotting and rusting until in a short time it would be of no value, but could not be sold.

The address of Mr. McKay was one of great interest and given in a very fascinating manner by the speaker and was highly appreciated by the audience.

THE DISTRICT SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTIONS OF CASS COUNTY

The workers in the Sunday schools of the county are looking forward with great pleasure to the district convention of the county association, which will be one of the best that has been held in recent years. The first district convention will be held at Myrard on Wednesday, June 2; at Avoca on Thursday, June 3, and at Elmwood on Friday, June 4, at which time most interesting programs will be given and the works in their association with each other will be able to get many good ideas that will tend to increase the efficiency of the Sunday schools and make them a factor for a great good in their various churches in promoting the growth of Christianity. At each meeting capable speakers will be provided and an effort made to place the schools of the county in the front ranks at the state convention at Broken Bow on June 16th and 17th.

CURE YOUR RHEUMATISM THRU OSTEOPATHY DURING THE DAMP WEATHER

At the present, cold, damp weather is very inducive to rheumatism, bad colds, etc. I wish to remind the readers of the Journal that Osteopathy is the best treatment known, because it gets at the cause of the trouble. There's a reason for all the aches and pains of rheumatism and Osteopathy is the only system of healing which has found it and gotten rid of it. There is no known drug which will cure it. The best medical doctors recommend massage, Turkish baths, etc., as the best treatment.

Lodium sulphate is recommended to relieve the pains (Dr. Stockman, in "Index to Medical Treatment," 1913 edition), but not as a curative agent.

Dr. McLaughlin, M.D., in "Abridgement of Medicine," says: "There is no curative treatment."

Now, since the drug doctors have practically all admitted their failure to successfully treat rheumatism, why not try a method which has been proven effective?

OSTEOPATHY CAN CURE IT. It has proven successful in its treatment for more than forty years. Isn't that ample proof? Why not give it a trial?

Stop at my office and talk it over or call up over the 'phone. Consultation free. Phone 484.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE WELLINGTON W. DRUMMOND THIS MORNING

The funeral of the late Wellington W. Drummond was held this morning from St. Luke's Episcopal church, where the deceased had so often worshipped when a resident of this city, and having been a devout member of the church during his early days and residence here, the impressive Episcopalian funeral service was read over his body by the lay reader, Dr. T. P. Livingston. The body of Mr. Drummond arrived from Lincoln on No. 6 this morning and was taken to the church, where the service was performed and the body conveyed to Oak Hill cemetery, where it was laid to rest beside that of the little son who passed away a number of years ago. The funeral was strictly private, at the request of the family.
