

Osteopathy Sometimes Misunderstood

Almost twenty-four years ago, Osteopathy, a new school of healing, fully recognizing the healing power of nature, sprang up in the United States. Its physicians, while taking into account other established courses of disease, such as exposure, improper feeding and abuse of function, have learned that perversion of structure, such as slight misplacements of bones and other tissues, contracted muscles and thickened ligaments are fruitful sources of bodily ills. Very often these lesions, by their re-weakening effect upon certain tissues, act as a predisposing cause in cases that are usually attributed to germs. It is also true in many cases that the pressure effects of misplaced tissues maintain diseases that are already present, that is, prevent recovery.

This, in a measure, accounts for the large number of chronic invalids in the world.

The misinformation concerning Osteopathy is being replaced by a more accurate knowledge.

The late encyclopedias contain proper definitions and descriptions of the science. Also the newspapers and literary magazines, with increasing frequency, are placing the true story of Osteopathy before their readers. But the most effective agency for the dissemination of correct information about Osteopathy is the profession itself, which is demonstrating the beneficence and potency of science in the battle with disease.

With all these avenues of information open, the time is almost at hand when it will be a reproach to anyone not to understand something at least of the principles of Osteopathy, and when such expression concerning it as "rubbing" will be attributed, by well informed people, either to malice or inexcusable ignorance.

In our excitement last week we forgot to chronicle a report of Dr. Thomas to the effect that a boy was born Sunday to Mr. and Mrs. John Stratton.

C. W. Pittman came in from his home in Medford, Oklahoma, Tuesday morning and will stay awhile with his father, who is getting very feeble.

Bryan Moore of Burns, Wyoming, arrived here Tuesday morning for a visit with his brother and friends. Bryan has just finished teaching a school season near his home there.

John Sutphin has a boy in his house, born Friday morning, and while the news was received with considerable satisfaction all over town, there is a strange suspicion that possibly outside of Mrs. Sutphin there is nobody in town better pleased over it than Josh.

The junior class exercises which were given in the High school assembly room last Friday night deserve special mention. The juniors have been working hard on their entertainment and the fine evening and the fact that these people are good entertainers drew a large crowd. Mrs. Asch, the musician, gave several good selections, playing on the banjo, guitar and mandolin. They made over $25 and this will be used in the class treasury.

IN PLATTSMOUTH FORTY YEARS AGO.

Charles Farley returned from Green Valley, Ill., last week, paid up for the Herald and will once again live in Weeping Water.

Dr. Clutter's wife and family arrived on Monday and the doctor is now a fixture in Cass county, we presume. Success to him and "this'n."

Coon Heisel has been putting new burrs in his mill. He has a good new corn burr now and is rolling out the yellow meal, besides No. 1 Patent flour.

Harry Howland has fenced in the lot by his shop, corner Sixth and Vine streets. Glad of it as it is a nice fence, too. When Harry does a thing he does it up brown.

Fickler Bros. have built a very substantial slaughter house out on the avenue. It's a No. 1 building surrounded by good yards, well fenced and is a credit to them and the town. Success to all such business men, says the Herald.

Judge Sullivan does not monopolize the marriage business of Platts-mouth; for we find that Judge O'Donohue married, in his office on Sunday, the 14th, Frank Kalache and Catherine Herasky. We wish them a Bohemian blessing.

H. Miller, a fellow who has been stopping about here lately, found a brother German from the old country, got him fuddled, took all his money and lit out over the river. Marshal Murphy nabbed him, however, and brought him back. He says the old fellow gave him the money to keep, but Judge Sullivan bound him over to appear at the district court, in the sum of $300.

Julius Pepperberg lost the contents of his pocketbook last Saturday night. He, in company with his wife, attended the theater. On their return they found the back door of his house unlocked, which aroused their suspicions and Mr. P. made a thorough search of the house, as he thought, but found nobody within. The next morning, however, the pants which he had worn the night before were found lying out in the kitchen, the pocketbook which had been in the pocket beside them and the contents of it, some $28, gone. The supposition is that the man must have secreted himself under the bed, watched where Mr. P. put the pants, and after they had gone to sleep secured them and escaped as he had come. The kitchen window had been removed, and a couple dozen eggs in a dish on the table in front of the window were smashed, probably in their attempts to get in or out. This robbery was evidently accomplished by an experienced hand, and we hear rumors also of a man being robbed on the transfer train, which looks very much as if we had a gang in our midst who were deliberately carrying on their nefarious operations. If some attempts are not made at detection and punishment we shall probably have more robberies to chronicle.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all the stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh, being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. PROPHECY FOR HIGH SCHOOL CLASS OF 1915

And It Is Candidly Hoped the Boys and Girls Will Meet With the Success Prophesied.

At the close of the school year it is the custom of the graduating class of the school to enjoy a class prophecy as to the future in store for the different members, and this year a very pleasing one has been prepared that will give the different members of the class a "hunch" as to what Dame Fortune has in store for them.

The Prophecy.

On the pleasant afternoon of June 1, 1925, the Columbia neared the pier at New York harbor. It was returning from the Liverpool trip and many Americans were eagerly leaning over the deck rail. Among them was William Richardson. He waved a greeting as he recognized Clifford Cecil waiting for him among the vast throng at the wharf.

"Gee, but it seems good to be on terra-firma and home again," said Will in answer to Clifford's greeting. "We shall go to the cafe I have selected. We can take lunch there and have a booth to ourselves. I am in a reminiscent mood and want to talk over old times."

As soon as the lunch was ordered Clifford said: "Tell me about your trip. Did you meet any of our old friends? It hardly seems possible that ten years have passed since you graduated from the P. H. S. I have thought of planning a reunion, but the class is scattered so far I fear it is impossible."

"Well, to begin with, business is good; Europe is recovering from the effects of the war, but her factories are crippled, so she buys goods of us. Everywhere I saw that stamp, 'Made in America.' The company is more than pleased with my sales. I'll represent them permanently in the foreign trade. I visited the University of Leipzig, where Elsie Roessler and Norene Schulhoff are studying advanced mathematics. They seemed to be enjoying their work; said they were coming home next year. In a depot at Liverpool I met Katherine Egan and Mary Hethington. It was quite a surprise and made me think that this is a small world after all. They were abroad for a pleasure trip. They were just returning from the Killarney lakes. From the way Kate talked I think she had surely kissed the 'Blarney stone.'

"I'll bet you're mighty busy here, Cliff, at the head of that power plant. This old city needs lots of lights. My work takes me over lots of territory and I like that. I was back in Platts-mouth a year ago and had not seen you since; that is one reason why I sent the wireless—wanted to see a familiar face when I landed. Some members of the class of 1915 have not wandered as far as you and I. Emil Hild is proprietor of the furniture store, his father having retired. He is married, to whom you need not ask. Sophia Hild is teaching school in Kansas City. Grace Mougey is teaching mathematics in old P. H. S. Coenna Handley is county superintendent of old Cass county, and Ola Kaffenberger is her private secretary. Lillie Hartwick is married and is the mistress of a very cozy little home in Platts-mouth. Essie Buttery has charge of the domestic science department of the Peru state normal. I learned while there that Verna Krejci is teaching in San Francisco and is very successful in her work. Glenn Thompson and Leon Stenner own an aeroplane factory in Omaha. They manufacture the best grade of machines and Uncle Sam has all his orders filled there. Gug Crook is horticulturist at the Nebraska Agricultural college. Marie Spies is at the head of the millinery department at Brendies. A part of her work is to do their buying from the wholesale dealers. This causes her to spend most of the time in larger cities than Omaha. Lillian Dwyer and Nellie Cook own a large portrait and photograph gallery in Chicago. Their work takes a medal at every great fair held in the United States. I suppose you knew that my sister, Robbin, and Wallace Hunter are government chemists in the laboratories at Washington. They always did like chemistry. Well, it's in the science of affinities."

"I am sure glad to hear of the success of so many of our classmates, Bill. I can tell you of having seen a few of them, even though I have not been out of New York. I attended a national educational association meeting held here last summer. I was just in time for their business meeting, at which Ruby Edgerton was elected president of the association by a unanimous vote. Last week I attended a play, 'Polly of the Circus,' in which Grace Ficht was the leading lady. Last season I heard Kathryn York sing in the grand opera in which she was the star. Received a letter from Carl Cunningham a few days ago. He is superintendent of schools of one of the large provinces of the Philippine islands. He said that Leta Lair had charge of the domestic science work in the same province. Harley Wiles was in New York last week. He is eastern buyer for the aeroplane factory of Stenner & Thompson in Omaha."

"I would like to have seen him. We sure had some good old times in the P. H. S."

"Especially at the senior party out at your house," said Clifford.

"Don't say anything more about that; you make me homesick. I have had enough of that in the last three months. I was busy and like my work, yet I know how VanDyke felt when he wrote: 'London is a man's town, There's power in the air. Paris is a woman's town, With flowers in her hair. Oh, it's great to dream in Venice, And it's grand to study Rome, But give me the ship that is homeward bound' Across the ocean bars, Where the air is full of sunshine, And the flag is full of stars."
