A SHORT VISIT TO THE VILLAGE OF CEDAR CREEK

We Found the Triving Little Village in Most Prosperous Condition, the Business Men Doing Well.

On Tuesday afternoon of this week, the Journal man took a few hours vacation from the toils that surround the average newspaper shop, and made a brief visit to the little village of Cedar Creek. For some time we have thought of adding a Cedar Creek Department to the columns of the Journal, but for some reason or other we have never been able to complete such arrangements up to the present time. We have known that there were some of the business men of Cedar Creek that desired using the columns of the Journal for the purpose of advertising their goods and ware for sale, but up to this week we have never placed the matter squarely before them. This week we are making the first steps toward a Cedar Creek Department in this paper, and some of the business men, in fact all that we were able to see on this visit have displayed their willingness to patronize such a proposition. In this issue will be found an advertisement for the new bank, The First Security Bank; also one for the Cedar Creek Lumber Co., and S. J. Reames, the village tonsorialist, and others that will no doubt appear later. These gentlemen were all that we were able to see on this trip with the exception of Wolf & Ault, who will have an ad for us in time for the next issue. Our time was very much limited upon this occasion, and we were unable to visit all the business houses on this trip. These advertisements will be found in each Thursday issue of the Journal in the future, and it will sure pay the buying public of this community to watch for their regular weekly announcements.

In securing this new business for the columns of the Journal it was of course our first duty to call upon the various firms business houses, the first of which was the First Security Bank. Here we found the genial cashier, Mr. J. F. Foreman, on the "job," and into the business like an old time establishment. This bank opened its doors for business on the last day of September, and starts out under very flattering conditions. The business has been on the increase since that date, and Mr. Foreman tells us that the outlook for the future and the increase in business has been more favorable than he had expected for the first thirty days. The First Security Bank is in every way equipped for the transacting of an up-to-date banking business, and under the able management of Mr. Foreman we predict that its future will be one of success. In the front of the room, outside of the cashier's department stands their large safe which is of the new Maynard Manganese Steele three time lock type, one of the best and safest that is made today, one that is absolutely guaranteed burglar and fire proof, and weighing 2000 pounds, it is most too heavy for the burglar to carry off, so from this source your money is safe. In this bank your deposits are also guaranteed by the State Guaranty Fund. Mr. Foreman came from Papillion to Cedar Creek, but is a native of Ohio, and from our short acquaintance, we can truthfully say that he is one of the finest young men that we have ever met, and the Cedar Creek people are indeed fortunate in securing such a man to embark in the banking business in their midst.

The officers of the First Security Bank are as follows: Wm. Schneider, president; W. H. Lohnes, vice-president, and J. F. Foreman, cashier. The two former gentlemen are old residents of this county, and need no introduction to the people of this community, where they have resided so long, and where they hold the confidence of all who know them.

After a few minutes visit with Mr. Foreman at the bank, we next made a brief call at the store of Wolf & Ault, where we found both of these gentlemen up to their eyes in work, arranging for the fall business. They were busy loading out a car of apples and receiving in car load lots salt and flour and other provisions for the winter. In their implement line they have been busy this fall, only the last few days turning out three new farm wagons in addition to the other business. This is surely one business in Cedar Creek that has grown in vast proportions since our last visit out there. They have added the implement line, as well as automobiles and all kinds of supplies and accessories. Their regular stock of groceries, dry goods and hardware has also greatly increased, and additions to their store room has been added to accommodate these lines.

From here went over to the Cedar Creek Lumber Co., where we found Paul Roberts as jovial and good natured as ever, and gave us a hearty welcome into their city. Paul is the present mayor of Cedar Creek, and if he continues to take the active part in everything that is for the best for his town in the future that he has in the past he will no doubt hold the office as long as he chooses. Well, laying all jokes aside, he is a mighty good fellow, and is enjoying a good business in his line, and is deserving of all and even more than he gets. He is an up-to-date lumberman and has a yard of the same value in every particular, and the people around Cedar Creek know it, that is the best part of it all.

We also enjoyed a few moments chat with S. J. Reames, the tonsorial artist of the city, and found him the same good natured gentleman of old, and ever ready to lend a helping hand for any movement that would tend to boost Cedar Creek.

Owing to the brief time at our disposal at this time we were unable to call at the general merchandise store of Mrs. Ruth Thomsen, but will on the next occasion. We venture to say that they are enjoying the same good business that is prevalent among the business houses of Cedar Creek. There are still others that we would like to have seen but could not make it.

We will do our part to retain a Cedar Creek department in the columns of the Journal in the future.

We will make another visit to this point again next week. Help us by sending in all the news you can find in your locality.

Verle Schneider drove to Plattsmouth Friday.

G. P. Meisinger and family visited at Springfield Sunday.

Rev. Gertch came in Saturday evening to fill Rev. Swartz's place Sunday.

Elswhere in this issue of the Journal will be found the articles of incorporation of the First Security Bank.

August Keil and wife, while coming home from Plattsmouth Monday night, had quite an exciting time which might have proven quite serious. While passing Pete Meisinger's the dogs scared the team and they started to run and in trying to stop them one line broke and the team ran about one and a half miles, and August finally ran they into a bank on the side of the road and stopped them without anyone getting hurt. But the buggy was broken in several places. Philip brought them the rest of the way home in his car. This is the second time Mr. Keil has had a runaway this fall with his team.

DANIELS PLANNING MERCHANT MARINE

Would Thus Provide Navy With Auxiliary Vessels.

PROGRAM INTERESTS NATION

Congress Will Be Asked to Approropriate $502,482,000 For the Navy During the Next Five Years—Needs 11,500 More Men—Ten Drednaughts and Two Cruisers on Program.

Auxiliary vessels for the American navy will be drawn entirely from a government owned merchant marine, according to the present plans of the administration. Secretary of the Navy Daniels has explained fully why he had not included in his five year building program any provision for auxiliaries to the navy, which will be needed in time of war.

The designs of the government owned merchant vessels have been approved by the bureau of construction and that little change will be required to convert the vessels from cargo carrying ships to supply ships and colliers. The secretary of the navy will insist that the crews of the vessels will be made up entirely of American citizens.

The five year program for new construction in the navy and for increased personnel which the president will submit to congress has interested all the country.

The program calls upon congress to appropriate this year the sum of $217,652,175, an increase of about $48,000,000 over the current naval appropriation. It also asks congress' approval of a five year plan of new construction, munitions and aviation, with a total cost of $502,482,000.

Mr. Daniels will ask congress to provide this year for an increase of 11,500 men for the navy, to consist of 7,500 sailors, 2,500 apprentice seamen and 1,500 marines.

Daniels' Five Year Program.

The five year program outlined by Mr. Daniels and approved by the president provides for, in addition to construction already authorized, the following vessels: Ten dreadnaughts, six battle cruisers, ten scout cruisers, fifty destroyers, fifteen fleet submarines, eighty-five coast submarines, four gun boats, one hospital ship, two ammunition ships, two fuel oil ships and one repair ship.

The First Year Program.

Of this total the plan calls for the authorization this year of the following: Two dreadnaughts, two battle cruisers, three scout cruisers, fifteen destroyers, five fleet submarines, twenty-five coast submarines, two gunboats one hospital ship and one fuel oil ship.

The actual construction program of each of the five years is not the same, as an effort has been made to arrange the laying down of new ships in such a way as will make the total expenditure of each year as nearly equal as possible.

Two million dollars is asked for this year for aviation and $1,000,000 in each of the four succeeding years. For munitions reserves $50,000,000 is asked for this year, $5,000,000 in each of the next three years and $2,000,000 in the fifth year.

This program both for the present year and successive years is larger than any ever before authorized by a congress in a single year. Mr. Daniels called attention to the fact that the Sixty-third congress in authorizing five battleships, twelve destroyers and twenty-six submarines had provided the largest program of any one congress. As a result of this large program, however, the sum of $28,300,000 is required out of the estimates for next year to complete construction at first under way or authorized.

NEW COLOR FOR UNIFORM SAVES U. S. ARMY MONEY.

Suits Will Not Be Dyed, but Made From Mixed Wool.

Uncle Sam may find that the European war has saved him a few hundred thousand dollars in the price of uniforms if the present tests of material are successful. The shortage in dyestuffs has caused the war department some concern, and the next set of uniforms for our gallant soldier boys is apt to be made of naturally colored goods. This means that the annual expenditure of $6,000,000 for the army, most of which goes into the clothing of regulars, will probably be cut a great deal.

Since the beginning of the war the quartermaster's department has found the securing of the regulation olive drab goods, of which the regular uniforms is made, a difficult proposition. The dye, which is manufactured in Germany, cannot be brought across the ocean because of Great Britain's blockade of German commerce. Naturally some substitute had to be found.

The quartermaster began to look around. He was up a pretty big tree until Brigadier General Henry G. Sharpe noticed that a mixture of uncolored wool made a neutral color, just the shade that was wanted to hide our boys from any fancied foe. The wool of the black and white lambs or sheep when properly mixed gives an odd brownish gray color that would make a great disguise for land forces. The enemy might circle all day over a field in which a thousand soldiers were hidden and not know they were there unless the men indiscreetly showed their faces.

Black wool as it comes from the animal is varied in its shading from a dirty brown to a jet black. If mixed with white wool the white it gives a color that is a cross between the earth and a fog.

To fit out a new recruit now costs nearly $150, including dress, service and khaki uniforms. This can be done for $100 with the new goods, it is estimated.
