

GREECE FACING WAR OR HOME REBELLION

King Must Take Choice Between Certainty of Former and Risk of the Latter.

PRESSURE FROM BOTH SIDES

London, Nov. 7.—The Greek cabinet crisis was unraveled this morning according to a delayed message from Athens received here late tonight. The king conferred with the retired ministers and leaders of the party opposed to them in the course of the forenoon, but their conversation led to no solution of the difficulties the country faces, and the meeting broke up with out an agreement.

Choice of Two Evils.

Paris, Nov. 7.—War or revolution. King Constantine of Greece has his choice tonight between the certainty of the former and grave risk of the latter.

For the moment he held the whip hand, but there was no telling how soon the reins would be wrested from him by ex-Premier Venizelos, leader of the party which seeks to haul Greece into the European struggle in aid of Serbia against the Bulgars.

Constantine, a Greek by birth, but a son of George, the Greeks' Danish king, is the husband of a German woman, and is considered pro-German in his sympathies.

He does not want Greece to fight on the German side, but because, the war party believes, he does not want the country to fight against the kaiser either, his voice is for continued neutrality.

To this end he made desperate effort all of today to retain in office premier Zaimis, head of the "neutrality cabinet," against which the war party in parliament, led by ex-Premier Venizelos, cast a vote of lack of confidence early Friday.

Should Return Venizelos.

According to all precedent, the pro-war element contends, this vote should be followed by Venizelos' return to the premiership. The king's plan, instead, is to dissolve parliament, which would necessitate a general election. This could not be held in less than two months at the earliest, and it is assumed that the king hopes the war danger will be past within that length of time.

Venizelos had said plainly, on the floor of parliament, that his majesty has no right to adopt such a course, an election six months ago having resulted in a vote by which he (Venizelos) was returned to power, though he recently resigned because he could not agree with the king.

One account from Athens was that Constantine had asked Zaimis to retain office, that Zaimis refused and that Constantine finally accepted the resignation which Zaimis tendered when parliament voted against him. Another version was that Zaimis was trying to reconstruct his ministry with most of the old members, but with two portfolios in the hands of war party members, as a sop to their group. The third rumor was that parliament had been or was just about to be dissolved.

Military plots were reported. It was said there had been many arrests. The truth seemed to be that chaos reigned and nobody knew what the outcome would be.

The British, French, Russian, Italian and Serbians were exerting tremendous pressure at Athens on one side; the German, Austrian, Turkish and Bulgarian representatives were exerting equal pressure on the other. Some times the balance tilted in the entente allies' favor; some times in that of the Germanic powers.

KITCHNER LEAVES FOR BALKAN TO TAKE COMMAND

Has Not Resigned as War Minister, as Reported, but He May Do So.

LONDON GLOBE IS SUPPRESSED

London, Nov. 7.—Lord Kitchener, hurrying from London to the near east, was believed tonight about to take active command of the allies in the field against the Austro-German-Bulgarian forces in the Balkans.

Who will succeed him as war minister was a much discussed question. That he had resigned was still officially denied, but few believed he would return to his cabinet post.

Reiterating the denial that Kitchener had resigned, an official statement issued tonight, said:

"On the contrary, he has gone in discharge of his war ministerial duty, which he does not intend to abandon."

It was denied also that Kitchener's recent visit to the king related to his near eastern trip.

The public did not fail to note, however, that there was no denial of reports that the minister intends to take personal command of the Balkan campaign. It was recalled, too, that Admiral Sturdee was taken from an important admiralty command to make a special trip to the South Atlantic, where he destroyed Admiral von Spee's German squadron. The theory was widely expressed that Kitchener may have undertaken a similar temporary assignment from which he will return later to the war office.

London Globe Suppressed.

The London Globe was suppressed by the police this afternoon. The authorities' action was taken in consequence of the paper's publication of reports that Kitchener had resigned. This story was accompanied by a bitter attack on Lord Haldane in connection with an expression of the hope that he would not receive the war office post.

"There is an unpleasant obscurity about the whole business," said the Globe, in its confiscated issue of today. "Lord Haldane is credited with the conviction that he could fill the war office post adequately, but we most sincerely trust the premier will not commit such an irremediable error as to give it to him, which would instantly jeopardize the life of the government."

Of the war minister's absence, the Post said:

"It is generally believed that Earl Kitchener's business will necessitate a stay so prolonged that it will be necessary to fill his place at the war office before long. It is true that he has not resigned, but the importance of his present errand makes it certain that his resignation is only delayed. The suggestion has been made that Lord Haldane be brought back to the war office, but this is probably unfounded."

The Globe is the first English paper to be suppressed since the war began. All available copies of its Friday's and today's issues were confiscated, as was the plant.

ENGLISH GRIEVED OVER THE PRESIDENT'S NOTE

Insist That America Should Not Hold England to Law of Nations.

TONE STIRS UP JOHNNY BULL

London, Nov. 8.—The attitude taken by the London morning papers in commenting on the American note to Great Britain is generally that the points raised in the note are all open to argument. Great Britain's point is that it is engaged in a life and death struggle and, therefore, has to consider all questions on the practicable basis of winning the war; that such a world war is bound to carry some inconvenience to neutrals; but that as far as it is possible and consistent with doing everything in its power to win the war, it is careful to do as little as possible to injure the interests of neutrals.

After quoting the American arguments the Daily Mail says:

"Our case, a very strong one, is that Orders-in-Council were in reply to German's repudiation of all international law. The power which wickedly torpedoed neutral ships with neutral passengers, and which sowed the sea with mines, showed complete indifference for those neutral rights of which the United States declares itself the unhesitating champion."

Wait for Neutrals to Act.

"We waited for the neutrals to act and as they did not act, we acted ourselves in the interest of humanity. The doctrines which we applied are, in essence, those laid down by the United States court in the civil war."

The Daily News remarks on the fact that the note is couched in vigorous uncompromising language, parallel to the American notes to Germany but hitherto foreign to the communications passed between London and Washington and admits that no mistake had been graver than to underestimate the seriousness of the contention advanced by the United States.

"The newspaper expresses the belief that Washington will recognize that the recent activity of British submarines in the Baltic materially modifies the contention that the blockade is ineffective. On the broad question the Daily News considers that though it may be impossible to supercede price courts by an international court of the first instance, there is nothing to prevent the settlement of the difficulties by the institution of a panel of jurists of certain of the allied and neutral countries."

The Times in an editorial this morning says it imagines that American jurists and diplomats will feel that the note is not altogether worthy the better traditions of the republic, since it raises a number of technical points of disputed international law, but nowhere raises the broad view of the larger issues involved in the world war or indicates the statesman's ability to adapt old principles to novel conditions.

Asks for Reciprocity.

Justifying the British procedure as to searching suspected vessels, and referring to the complaint that no reward is obtainable, the Times asks: "Did not we suffer grievously from these and kindred injuries in the civil war? Do Americans forget how they wiped out the whole industry of Lancashire and plunged its population into dire distress? Did we complain? Did the victims themselves complain? No. Their sufferings were acute, but they believed the north was fighting in the cause of human liberty and moral right, and therefore they were patient. "Some reciprocity, it may seem to Americans, as well as to us, might be expected from Washington in the day of our trial."

"Another point we cannot pass over is the extravagant character of the language of the note. We make allowance, however, for the exigencies of American domestic politics and attribute to them the choice of adjective and a turn of expression not usually found in formal intercourse between the governments of the great peoples."

Now in New Home.

Miss Herma Rotter of Plattsmouth and John Kubicka of Havelock were married in Holy Rosary Catholic church in Plattsmouth at 9 o'clock on Wednesday morning. The newly married couple arrived in Havelock today and took up their residence in a cottage at 1329 P street.—Havelock Times.
