The case raised an interesting law point and is one that is filled with quite a good deal of legal points that might have a bearing on the question of the payment of lapsed policies. The assessments and dues of Mr. Garrens had been paid to a gentleman at Union to be handed over to the clerk of the camp at Murray, but this had not been carried out in compliance with the by-laws and rules of the order and it was not until within a few Plattsmouth Dowas the College Team days of the death of Mr. Garrens that the money for his dues was received by the representatives of the lodge at Murray, and when they were received at the head office in Omaha the man From Saturday's Datty. was dead and the company had sent the money back to Murray as it covered several months' dues, and for the period that Mr. Garrens had been suspended from the lodge. The main question in the suit against the order seems to hinge on whether or not the man at Union to whom the Garrens' to its utmost capacity with the loyal assessment was paid was an authorized agent of the company or notif he was not then the case against the but if he was, of course the company the great showing they had made. would be liable.
