ANTI-WAR PARTY GAINS STRENGTH AMONG ITALIANS

Defeat of Montenegrins and Failure of Hopes for Italy Policy in Adriatic the Cause.

REPORTS STILL CONFLICT

Geneva, Jan. 23.—The anti-war movement has gained great impetus in Italy in the last few days as the result of the crushing of Montenegro and the apparent defeat of Italian aspirations in the Adriatic, according to advices received here today.

Travelers from Italy report socialists in Florence, Milan, Naples and other cities against continuance of the war. Supporters of ex-Premier Giolitti have joined in the movement. Several radical socialists have hinted at revolution unless the Italian king moves for peace before the arrival of spring.

Italian officials attribute these disturbances to the work of German agents and have warned several socialist leaders against a repetition of their fiery utterances. It is now believed in Rome that Prince von Buelow, former ambassador to Rome spent several weeks in Switzerland not in the interests of a general peace movement as was reported, but to foment trouble in Italy.

Officials are equally bitter in denouncing the conduct of Giolitti. The former premier went into retirement when Italy declared war. The government supporters now declare he has emerged to lead the anti-war factions, hoping thereby to overthrow the Salandra ministry and form a new cabinet.

Only Small Bands Fight.

Berlin, Jan. 23.—(Via Amsterdam.)—Only isolated bands of Montenegrins in remote mountain districts are now opposing the Austrians, according to a message from Sarajevo, capital of Austrian Bosnia tonight. The main Montenegrin army is concentrated near Cetinje, awaiting the outcome of peace negotiations between the Montenegrin government and General Koevess, Austrian commander. Not a shot has been exchanged by the Austrian troops and the regular Montenegrin forces since the armistice was arranged last week, the Sarajevo message said.

Peace Negotiations Unknown.

Vienna, Jan. 23.—(Via Berlin.)—Foreign reports that peace negotiations have been broken off are untrue, an official statement from the government press bureau asserted tonight.

"The negotiations were not interrupted because they have not yet begun," the statement said. "Peace negotiations will only be possible after the arrival of the Austrian delegate Otto, former minister to Cetinje, who was still on the road when the incorrect news about a deadlock was disseminated."

"The negotiations concerning the place where the Montenegrins will lay down their arms will be closed within a few hours. At the same time an agreement will be reached about the points where the Montenegrins will be provided with food and arrangements made for their housing."

King Leaves Montenegro.

Paris, Jan. 23.—Worn out by long campaigning, the aged King Nicholas of Montenegro has left his army and has arrived at the Italian port of Brindisi, according to an official statement given out here tonight. The king is enroute to Lyons to join the Montenegrin queen, who arrived there today and to establish the provisional capital of Montenegro.

Former Premier Vouditch will command the Montenegrin army, acting jointly with Prince Ninsky, the official communication stated. In all probability they will retire into Albania and from a junction with the Serbs.

The official statement confirmed the belief here that King Nicholas, after arranging an armistice with the Austrians, found himself overruled by his own advisors and by his military chiefs. It was believed they literally forced his withdrawal from the country and compelled him to issue from Scutari a proclamation announcing the resumption of hostilities by the Montenegrins. No other explanation is offered here for the departure of the aged ruler from his native country.

London, Jan. 22.—Only artillery activity and mine combats on the western front were reported by the German and French war office this afternoon. "Southeast of Ypres, the Germans destroyed sixty yards of the enemy's position by mining operations," Berlin reported.

"German positions between the Moselle and the Vosges and several towns behind the front were shelled by the enemy without result."

Paris reported French artillery bombarded the German lines effectively at several points, notably in the Champagne and Vosges.

Tonight's Paris communique also reported only artillery engagements along the Aisne, in the Campagne region and in the Vosges.
