CHAPTER XVIII.
A Wedding.

M. MARTIN looked at Peale again. Ambrose's mission had succeeded in a way he did not suspect.

There Was a "Grand Makeup."

"Mr. Peale, I like you," said old Martin. "Huh!" said Peale. "Have a cigar?" asked Martin. Ambrose took it, feeling better than he had for many days.

"What do you think?" "So here now, if you're aiming to trim the old man I won't stand for it," protested Ambrose.

Mrs. Collier Says Could Not Keep House Without Black-Draught.

Hardin, Mo.—Mrs. J. W. Collier, of this town, who knows from experience of the merit of Black-Draught Liver Medicine, has following to say for publication: "I want to let everybody know that I have used Theoford's Black-Draught for many years, and it is just what is claimed for it. I am never without Black-Draught, and really I couldn't keep house without it. Whenever I feel bad, I take a small dose, and feel better right away. I advise everybody who suffers from liver or stomach trouble to use Black-Draught Liver Medicine."

For three-quarters of a century (75 years), Theoford's Black-Draught has been regulating irregularities of the liver, stomach and bowels, and has long been recognized as the standard remedy. It is a fixture in thousands of homes as the main stay of the family medicine chest.

If you have not tried it, get a package from your nearest dealer, today. He sells it in 25c and $1.00 packages, making it cost you only one cent a dose.

SIDONIE REAMES, Plaintiff.
W. A. ROBERTSON, Attorney. 2-28-4wks

Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Hutchins of Lucas, Iowa, who have been here visiting at the home of Mrs. Hutchins' sister, Mrs. C. P. Sydenbotham, departed this morning for their home, going on the early Burlington train.

through and a sob came into Mary's voice as she saw it all, and she answered again:

"You might hate me. And I'm taking you away from all that, which was yours by right."

"Come in a moment," said Rodney gently and kindly.

They climbed the stairs together, and a West Indian "butler" let them in. Rodney drew Mary into a hideous little reception room on the ground floor, took both the girl's hands in his and looked earnestly into her lovely eyes.

"You're the finest girl in the world, Mary," he said, "and nothing could ever turn me against you."

In the ill lighted, ill ventilated little parlor, illuminated for them with love's thousand eyes, the truth came out. Mary told the whole story from the beginning, not without some humor and not without some satisfaction at certain portions of it. It must be confessed; told of old Mr. Martin's frothing about Elery Clark, of the bet with Elery's father, of her reward in money.

"What do I care if you really love me," protested Rodney. "Mary, now you must marry me."

That was a Thursday, and by Friday night they were married, so that they could have two days of honeymoon, anyway, before Monday. Rodney said it was all very quietly arranged in the little church.

So much for those who talk about celibacy. Late Saturday forenoon, when they snatched down to the office, just to be sure that everything was all right, certainly no one guessed what momentous change had come into their lives; no one divined the ecstasy that thrilled unseen beneath their everyday demeanor.

Of course old Mr. Martin's obtuseness had been a blow, but Rodney was gone throughout and gloriously happy. He felt every inch a man now and dared to cope with every difficulty.

"Shall we tell the old gentleman?" he asked Mary, meaning of course the fact of their being married.
