THE SIXTY-EIGHTH BIRTHDAY OF MR. WENDELL HEIL

A very pleasant time was enjoyed at the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Heil on Sunday, March 12th, in honor of the sixty-eight birthday of Mr. Heil. The event was a complete surprise for the guest of honor, as during his absence from home for a few hours the large number of relatives and friends gathered at the Heil home and on the return of Mr. and Mrs. Heil they were very much surprised to find that the "invaders" had taken possession of the home, but in a few minutes they recovered from their surprise and made their friends entirely at home and a splendid time was enjoyed by everyone fortunate enough to be present. The afternoon was spent in visiting and having a fine social time until an appropriate hour, when a dainty and delicious four-course luncheon was served, which was most thoroughly enjoyed. Soon after the guests departed homeward, wishing Mr. Heil many more such happy occasions in the future. Those who were present were: Henry Heil and family, Edward Heil and family, John Heil and family, George Heil, jr., and family, W. H. Heil and family, George Heil, sr., and family, Will Rodanz and family, John Rodman and family, Rev. Hartman and family, Philip, Fred, Walter and Frances Heil and Miss Violet Haynie.

WATCH YOUR RUBBISH.

Considerable complaint has been made of parties placing rubbish and other debris in the gutters and along the curbs in the recently created curb and gutter districts, which is a nuisance and must be cut out without further delay or the city will be compelled to take steps to see that the persons dumping rubbish are punished.

FIRST TROOPER BACK.

El Paso, Tex., March 19.—The first member of the American expedition to return to El Paso and tell his story was Moe Trauber, of the Seventh cavalry, whose home is at 112 West 19th street, New York.

Trauber was in Colonel Dodd's "flying" column. He was injured when his horse stumbled and fell on Trauber's leg, painfully injuring him.

"We entered Mexico with a six-footer at the head of our column," said Trauber. "Every body cheered passing the boundary line at Highlonesome. We were traveling at night. Coyotes howled. We were awfully still after crossing the border. We never met a Mexican. Everyone of us was alert and determined.

Cactus, Spanish daggers and other desert vegetation looked like men. We were excited and nervous. Hardly a word was spoken except the curse of some trooper when his horse stumbled over cactus. I went seven miles when my horse fell. Now I'm missing all the fun."

Knows Every Spot.

Villa knows nearly every spring and cave in the desolate Sierra Madres. He could travel them southward almost the length of Mexico.

With water in abundance and the fertile Casas Grandes river valley as a base of supplies, the hunt for Villa will be presented in earnest next week.

Civilian scouts worn out by the hardships of the desert march with Perishing's column, were making their way back to Columbus and El Paso. The first arrivals, under orders to observe silence regarding their movements, hinted that the expedition was not to Columbus to join the expedition.

Aeroplanes Used.

The returned scouts confirmed the successful use of the seven aeroplanes from the San Antonio corps in scouting with the expedition. Their work was done in a novel manner. Soaring southward from Columbus at a speed of fifty to seventy-five miles an hour, the machines easily caught up with the main division of infantry and artillery. Passing the cavalry in the vanguard the aeroplanes sailed somewhat nearer the ground to make observations of the country in advance of the troops. The aviator then turned for Columbus and on alighting there made a report of his observations which was sent back over the signal corps field wireless to Perishing.

The seven aeroplanes were in their hangers at Columbus tonight. All have made flights with the expedition since it entered Mexico last Wednesday. As long as the main division is within easy reach of Columbus the

Net Is Tightening.

In spite of his craftiness, the net is closing in, according to authoritative Mexican sources. South of Galeana, Carranza is massing a body of several thousand soldiers among the Mexican Northwest railway to the west. Between Villa's present position and the Sierra Madres are strong detachments of Carranzistas at strategic points along the right-of-way.

Forcing south at a speed that up to today had been relatively faster than Villa's retreat, is the cavalry column under Colonel Dodd, which made the wonderful dash of 100 miles in forty-eight hours to make certain of the safety of Mormon colonists about Casas Grandes and to intercept Villa's suspected flight to the mountains west. Close behind Dodd is the main cavalry column of General Perishing. Protecting Perishing's line of communication are infantry regiments. The immediate future seems full of trouble for Francisco Villa.

General Funston officially stated tonight that American troops will pass through Mexican cities or towns when such passage is necessary, but will

"Snipers" Are Expected.

The individual "snipers" by Villastan upon the advancing column of American soldiers may be expected any time, was stated by army officers at department headquarters here. The country through which the troops are passing is filled with former Villa soldiers, but a clash with a considerable body of Villistas is not considered likely until the American troopers move south from Casas Grandes. It is possible Perishing's cavalry column may overtake Colonel Dodd's command early Sunday and the two unite for the second stage of the march southward.

The announcement that Colonel Sicket of the Twelfth cavalry will hereafter be in command of the border patrol in the vicinity of Columbus was made late today. He will have two troops. Major Semples will remain in charge of the Columbus base, under the direction of General Perishing.

Perishing Supporting Dodd.

El Paso, Tex., March 19.—Emerging from the northern Chihuahua desert, Brigadier General J. J. Perishing's main division of the American expedition after Villa, was tonight approaching the garden spot of Mexico, reclaimed from the barren plains by the American Mormon colonists.

Colonel George A. Dodd's cavalry column, which made a memorable forced march from Hachita, N. M., to the relief of the colonists, was believed to have resumed the pursuit after drawing on the Mormons for supplies.

Although the tortuous desert trail will cease to be the main supply route for Perishing's division after he reaches the rich Casas Grandes country Monday, the hardships of the chase will not be over. Villa tonight was in full flight some hundred miles south of Perishing toward his mountain strongholds on the Babicora ranch seventy miles from San Geronimo. Dodd was expected nearer Villa, but was not considered to enter the Sierra Madres until Perishing's column comes up.

For fifteen years Diaz rurales, familiar with every inch of the Guerrero district in which the Babicora ranch is located, pursued Villa without being able to make him fight. The American forces face a superhuman task in accomplishing in a few weeks what the rurales finally abandoned as impossible.

Mont Robb's New Napkin.

Mont Robb is the genial gentleman who manages the business of the Farmers' elevator at this place, and, as everybody knows, Mont enjoys a practical joke as well as anybody, even if he is the victim. Mont holds down the plate (and puts down the grub) at the west end of a table at Wes Clark's hotel three times a day. It so happens that Mont is the owner of a very pretty napkin ring which always contains his "rag" for the protection of his shirt front, and has been coveted by other boarders, especially by Prof. Severn and Druggist Keedy. A few days ago Mont appeared at the usual time for dinner and carefully extracted the white linen from his napkin ring, and the sight that was beheld was worth twice the price of admission, for instead of the usual napkin Mont unfolded a miniature suit of underwear, and a good laugh was enjoyed at Mont's expense, and the blush that overspread the face of Prof. Severn was so hot as to singe the window curtains.—Union Ledger.

SEVENTEENTH ANNIVERSARY OF MRS. EMMA MANCHESTER

Last Friday, March 17th, was a day that was filled with much significance to the members of the Woodman Circle throughout the United States, as it was the seventeenth anniversary of Mrs. Emma B. Manchester as supreme guardian of the order, and this lady was in constant receipt of congratulations, as well as a large number of floral remembrances in honor of the day. When Mrs. Manchester assumed office in 1899 the order was small in numbers and was laboring under very bad financial conditions, but she assumed office with a determination of making it one of the leading fraternal societies of the country and has succeeded most admirably, as it now numbers 165,000 members and has a reserve fund of $5,000,000, which makes Mrs. Manchester's record one without equal in the management of a great order such as she has had a great part in building up. Her many friends in this city will be pleased to join in wishing her many more years of success in her office.

DEATH OF FORMER PLATTSMOUTH CITIZEN AT CHICAGO

The information has been received here of the death in Chicago on Friday after of Louis Olson, a farmer resident of this city and well known to a great many of our people. While a resident of this city Mr. Olson was an employe of the Burlington for a number of years, and while working in the shops here received injuries which resulted in the loss of a leg, he being struck by a locomotive while switching in the shop yards, and as a result suffered the loss of the leg. Later he operated a pool and billiard hall for a short time before leaving the city permanently, and has since located at Chicago. He was a member of Svea lodge No. 297, A. O. U. W., of this city. Mr. Olson was a native of Denmark and some fifty-six years of age. His friends in this city will regret very much to learn of his untimely death.
