IN PLATTSMOUTH FORTY YEARS AGO.

John C. Cummins is trotting around superintending the putting in of the stone cylinder, Burlington force and suction pump. With a fed hundred of these pumps on main and the adjoining streets our city will be much less liable to burn.

Mr. Stephen Hobson is making extensive arrangements for the transmitting of his valuable discovery to fruit men. It will tend to fill the void between the end of the old crops and ripening of the new with sound, well preserved fruit.

Mr. E. D. Stone, a lawyer from Milwaukee, Wis., has lately settled among us. He will office with W. H. Wheeler for the present. Mr. Stone brings good testimonials and letters from friends the Herald is acquainted with. We hope he may find Plattsmouth a good place to stop at and that he may be as successful in his profession as his heart could desire. One thing is certain, he can't find any harder lawyer here, if names go for anything.

James Hall's stable was blown over in the gale of the 20th and seven horses mashed down flat. Strange to say, five were uninjured and one was killed outright. His son, 13 years old, was also under the stable, having refused to leave his team when the storm blew up. He lay down beside a big mare and when he saw daylight through an opening he crawled to it and came out unharmed. Mr. Wetten-camp reports his wind mill blown to atoms and other damages such as wind mills and shedding being blown over in the neighborhood of Eight Mile.

The Snider Guards' score: Herold, 3; Kennedy, 0; Vallery, 3; Pottenger, 1; Reese, 4; O'Neil, 1; Fairfield, 2; Chambers, 0; Mason, 2; Kinser, 1. Total, 17. The Clippers were ten ahead. Charles Duke, umpire; Fox and Coon, scorers.

Obituary Notice.

Mrs. Davis, the mother of Mrs. B. Spurlock, and formerly, with her family, one of the earliest settlers of Cass county, after a few hours' illness died on the camp ground at Mt. Pleasant last Saturday morning.

The funeral services took place on the grounds at 2 o'clock Sabbath afternoon, from whence the corpse was brought to Plattsmouth and started on the Monday morning train for Marysville, Missouri, her home at the time of death, she being here on a visit to her daughters, Mrs. Spurlock and Mrs. Wisewell.

The absent children were telegraphed the intelligence and her son George arrived a few hours after the funeral ceremonies, and returned with the remains to Missouri. B. Windham, a brother of the deceased, and father of our fellow-townsmen, R. R. Windham, arrived on Sabbath morning to pay his last sad respects to an only sister.

This is the third member of a family of eight that has died within two years; the others being the father and B. K. Davis, who was a prominent attorney of Missouri.

The defendants for the affirmative were William Rikli and Hy Olerking. Although both sides were well defended the prize was given to the negative side by the decision of the judges. At a proper time ice cream and cake were served.
