"THE ESCAPE" ONE OF THE BEST PHOTO PLAYS

One of the big picture plays of the year has been "The Escape" adapted from the great play of Paul Armstrong, which has been arranged in seven stirring reels by D. W. Griffith, the producer of the "Birth of a Nation." This is a soul problem and will be shown here at the Air Dome for two nights, Wednesday and Thursday, July 19th and 20th. The story in brief is as follows:

The play is preceded by a prologue, "The Origin of Life."

May Joyce, a child of the slums, longed for a better life. She continually besought her father, a stevedore, to try to better the condition of his children. With the exception of May these children were in a bad way. Jenny was a pitiful example of the visitation of the sins of the father upon the children. Larry was fast becoming a crook. He was hit by a stove lid thrown by his father in a drunken fury. The wound healed, but the boy's natural tendency was intensified. "Bull" McGee, a power of evil in the neighborhood, wanted to marry May. To gain her favor he had Larry set upon and, after a fight, arrested McGee obtaining his release from the police. There appears Dr. Von Eiden, an ambulance surgeon, called to patch up Larry. Dr. Von Eiden was impressed with the character of May. "At all costs" he told her, "escape from these surroundings". Partially as a result of the faked saving of Larry and because there seemed no escape, May passively agreed to the marriage with McGee. On the morning of the wedding, however, a flyleaf message from Dr. Von Eiden proved the deciding factor and she left by the fire escape.

Jenny's admiration for brute power caused her willingly to take May's place. May found work in an office, from which she was later discharged. In the meantime, she had met the Senator, who, in admiration of her beauty gave her his card reading, "If you ever need a friend come to me."

Jenny's marriage resulted in a baby boy which always cried, to the constant anger of McGee. McGee falling over the cradle in a drunken stupor, the child cried no more. May, unable to obtain work, finally went to the Senator and found the "easy way". A fancied illness led her to meeting Dr. Von Eiden again. "You need more than more than ever to escape," he told her. The Senator condescended to offer May marriage, but she, influenced by the words of Dr. Von Eiden, again escaped and found the work she needed in a hospital.

McGee sold his wife to the promoters of a foreign concert dive. She threw a note from the window and it came into the hands of Larry. The police raided the place and rescued Jenny, who was brought to May only to die. McGee escaped. He traced his wife with the hope of getting money and found her dead. Leaving there, he was tracked by the authorities and finally cornered and shot by Larry, who had joined the chase. His murderous tendencies now fully aroused, Larry determined to kill his father. He was, however, intercepted by Dr. Von Eiden, who took him to his apartment. An operation was performed on Larry and the splinter of bone, which had so long penetrated his brain, was removed. Through the operation Larry became a normal man. May's love for Dr. Von Eiden at last awakened and the surviving members of the Joyce family became happily united. May's escape to a better life was complete.

GEORGE SCHANZ IMPROVING

George Schanz of this city, who has been having considerable trouble with his eyes is feeling greatly improved since his return from the hospital in Omaha where he was for six weeks recovering from an operation for his eyes and which has resulted in a much better condition. Mr. Schanz's many friends will be pleased to learn that he is doing so nicely and trust that he may find a permanent cure for his affliction.

Ben Dill, of near Murray, was among the visitors in the city Saturday spending a few hours here looking after some matters of trading with the merchants.

DON'T MARRY UNTIL YOU SEE "THE ESCAPE!"

Founded on Paul Armstrong's Great Play Put in 7 Stirring Reels
Featuring Blanche Sweet, Mae Marsh, Robert Harron, Owen Moore and Ralph Lewis

THE WHOLE MARVELOUS PICTURE THRILLS WITH ONE VITAL QUESTION TO PARENTS:

"Who is the man your daughter is going to marry? Do you judge him by his money, his earning capacity, or his character and fitness to be your daughter's husband?"

Every man and women in America—every youth and girl over fifteen years—should see "THE ESCAPE" and KNOW what life is for thousands, perhaps millions of people in the larger cities.

"THE ESCAPE" is a picture of life as it really is.

"THE ESCAPE" is endorsed by press and pulpit because it teaches the great lesson of life with infinite power.

"More eloquent than the spoken Drama.
"More convincing than a thousands sermons.
"A lesson to those striving to better humanity.
"A thrilling drama of sex-eugenic science."

—DR. ARTHUR D. HOUGHTON

A photo drama written in belief that all men are brothers and that human beings, collectively, are responsible for human beings, individually—a drama of the eugenic science, showing many phases of life—ranging from the realistic to the visionary, from poverty to affluence, from horror to supreme happiness. Civilization is as yet only half complete. As much more remains to be done as has already been accomplished. You must bear your share of the burden and fight your part of the good fight.
