RETURN FROM WEDDING TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. James Rishel, who have been on a wedding trip at Chicago, Buffalo, N. Y., and Niagara Falls, returned to this city yesterday afternoon. Mr. Rishel will go to Glenwood today to take charge of the Fackler Paint and Wall Paper store, which he recently purchased. Mr. and Mrs. Rishel have been very prominent in social and religious circles of the city as members of the First Methodist church, and their large circle of friends will regret to learn of losing them from their midst, but wish them happiness in their new home.

CROPS SHOWS UP BIG

Asplendid yield of oats is reported from the vicinity of Avoca, where Fred Haveman, living northwest of that place threshed 910 bushels of oats from a ten acre field, making a yield of ninety-one bushels per acre. This is a splendid showing and is typical of the Cass county small grain crop of 1916.

MEETING OF THE WOODMEN CIRCLE

Among the Many Matters of Importance, Was a Communication From Mrs. Droege.

Last evening the members of the Woodmen Circle held a very interesting meeting at their lodge rooms and several matters of importance were taken up by the lodge. The chief feature of the evening was the initiation of two new members into the mysteries of the order which was carried out with much effectiveness by the degree team. Two other members were voted on and will be initiated at the next meeting of the lodge. The lodge also received a letter of appreciation from their deputy, Mrs. Lena Droege, which was placed on the archives of the order. The letter was as follows:

to accept our deepest heartfelt appreciation and to the members who were in attendance at the last sad services and who so gently prepared our loved one for her last rest, we assure them that their acts will be always held in the deepest reverence and appreciation. Fraternalty yours, Mrs. Lena Droege.

Mrs. Frank Sabatka, sr., and daughter, Miss Anna, were passengers to Omaha this morning, going up to accompany Walter Sabatka, who has been at the Immanuel hospital for the past week or so, to his home in this city on the noon train. Mr. Sabatka's hand is reported as swelling along very nicely, there being no danger of infection now, which will be pleasing news to his large circle of friends.

OLD LADY FEELING FINE

After Taking Four Bottles Of Cardui, The Woman's Tonic.

Cobden, Ill.—"Having used Cardui, the woman's tonic, in my family, for a number of years," writes Mrs. Kate Metz, of this town, "and always with such good results, I feel it my duty to write you about it, so that you may publish my letter.

My mother is living with me, and she is 52 years old. For the last three or four years, she has been troubled with a great deal with cramping spells, and for days at a time, she would have a severe headache.

She read of how much Cardui has helped other women who were sick and ailing, and decided to give it a trial. She began taking it three times a day, and since then has been getting along simply fine.

My mother only used four bottles of Cardui, but she is no longer troubled with the severe headaches, and her stomach is so much stronger that she can eat most anything.

We both feel that any lady who is not strong and well, would be greatly benefited by the use of Cardui."

STAY ON THE BORDER OUT OF TROOPS

Boys Will Return Home Greatly Improved Both Physically and Mentally—Some May Resign From Guard When Dismissed.

IT is plainly the intention of the war department to maintain the drill and work regulations of the national guardsmen, now encamped on the Mexican frontier, until the men who are unable to stand the physical strain are weeded out and their places filled by recruits. It is the object of the Texas camps to transform the militia into a body of soldiers ranking with the regulars and to turn around the old time rules of conduct for the militia that the entire militia establishment of the country, as constituted before the call to arms last month, will be thrown into the discard.

All this is very well from the standpoint of the professional soldier. The militiamen who went down to Texas in response to an urgent call are not professional soldiers and have no idea of devoting the rest of their lives to military work. It is a question whether they can be imbued with the regular service idea, especially as all danger of war with Mexico has apparently passed, according to the news that comes from Washington.

Without doubt the drills and camp life are doing the men who can stand the strain a world of good. They will go back home made over physically and also helped mentally. They ought to appreciate it, but they are stubborn enough to imagine that the arduous been purchased by the war department for the troops; 35,000 are horses. Not only Pennsylvania militiamen, but state troops from Massachusetts and Rhode Island, also the regulars, are to be mounted from the new supply.

Southern Hospitality.

One letter from an Illinois man says: "We stopped at Marshall, Tex., and remained two hours. A freight ahead had been wrecked. I met a very wonderful young lady who was chaperoning a bunch of southern and congenial beauties. Never more criticize the southern hospitality. In other places the populace grafts off the soldier lads. In Texas they offer native fruits, simple gifts and much real courtesy. They have auto plenty, and they took us riding. The young lady chaperone permitted me to assist in chaperoning in a motorcar. She spoke kindly to me. She smiled and even laughed aloud at necessary for chiefs of platoons and squad leaders to be able at all times each to lead their own group of men in any direction, officers have purposely inverted and mixed up fours and squads and then allowed noncoms and men to straighten themselves out from resulting confusion.

Letter From Beauty Squad.

Perhaps it was the moon, but anyway the beauty squad of Company K, Second Illinois Infantry, has burst in verse in the following letter:

Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Tex.

A little news which may interest you.

Private Peters of the eighth squad looked as though he needed a bath, so the boys threw him into the watering trough. Just think, twenty-three of us may go for an automobile ride, provided we get 50 cents. All the boys in camp are rather restless waiting to seize some Mexicans along the border. Private Strand has gained three pounds since he came here.

Private Kares sits up all night writing letters, and Private Tollefson is now taking his beauty sleep, being 1 p. m. He said it is getting hot.

Private Narkiewicz of the beauty squad rolled down a hill with rifle and side arms "cause he heard the rustle of a skirt. For some young lady I am reading merry sidights. I happened to see your ad. And then came an idea I thought would make you glad. So down I sat with pen in hand To write this little line To ask this single question. Just, "Dear, may I be thine?" Although I don't know who you are, But you're a soldier true, So I will believe in you As in the red, white and blue. So if this note will cheer your heart Let us hope that we may never part, For as white rose is hope and true Just so I will hope for you. Wear this flower on your breast And think of one who could love you best. (Composed by Privates Lavine and Kares of beauty squad 3.)

Well, we have to go and drill now, 'cause we had a big dinner—steak, apricots, French fried potatoes and a dish of ice cream. PRIVATE LAVINE.

"Attacked" by Mexicans.

All about Mexican snipers attacking First Illinois regiment (by Colonel Joe Snuborn).—"H—l, they were nothing but poachers shooting doves. A couple of spent 22 caliber bullets fell in camp. It's got to stop, though. I know who's training should be imposed on men who want to fight for a living and not on men who have jobs at home.

Not all the officers in the militia organizations are satisfied. Many say in confidence to their friends that as soon as they get out of the regular service they are going to resign from the national guard. It looks as though this camp will impose on congress the task of upsetting the whole militia program and forming an entirely new policy of national defense on land.

Bad Man Subdued.

Military policemen of the Seventy-first New York had their first encounter with a would be western "bad man," with discouraging results to the bad man, who, having yet failed to reclaim the six-gun the effete easterners took from him, is believed to be slightly less bad than he was.

To make it worse, one of the New Yorkers bears the mid name of Vassar. Vassar and Dooling were on duty in the Mexican quarter of McAllen when a ferociously armed and caparisoned cowboy entered the largest saloon and announced that he was going to shoot up the place.

At this juncture the two soft spoken Manhattanites entered. A few seconds later Dooling was in possession of the Texan's artillery, and the Texan was riding through the door on the toe of Vassar's boot.

Horses For Pennsylvanians.

The distribution of mounts to the troops of the Seventh division, national guards of the United States from Pennsylvania, has begun. Major General George M. Clement, commander of the division, with several aids and a number of regular army officers, made the first selection at the remount station for use of division staff.

The division commander took a beautiful animal, sixteen and a half hands high, a sleek bay, long of wind and with muscles of steel and of sufficient weight to bear hard service. Several of the division staff officers tried out their mounts recently, but a number of others, including the commander himself, are giving the horses a chance to rest up.

The animals arrived in cars from the east, the quartermaster's count totaling approximately 2,000. It is said 65,000 horses and mules have already my lame witticisms. And when she spoke in the cussing tones and soft enunciation of the southland—well, I could sit for hours under the spell. I, too, used to feel supercilious about this southern stuff—but that was before I had found the real south. I now enroll as a defender.

"So far 'tis the life. But none of us has been paid, and we are all in a mood to curse those who yanked us hence and permitted us to travel through the interesting state of Texas practically moneyless when we have a considerable wad already overdue. Fire a ting at Washington and make them come through ere we mutiny and curse the politicians."

Men Learn to Shoot.

Rapid fire, advance and retreat, all that goes with skirmish order and the keeping in hand of Massachusetts men so as to bring about as nearly as possible perfect fire control, has been practiced and hammered in day after day—in fact, frequently twice daily at Camp Pershing, El Paso.

At the same time all day there is a constant crack, crack on the rifle range, where Lieutenant Stewart Wise, a Massachusetts officer, who holds world records and is now assigned to the squadron as inspector of small arms practice, has already had some remarkable results in teaching the newer men to shoot and improving the marksmanship of the older men.

The lieutenant estimates the range, instructs those who don't know how to set their sights, tosses up a handful of dirt, watches exactly how it blows and says when to set the wind gauge. Then he follows results with his field glasses, making needed corrections.

In the skirmish order work and battle practice in the field, where it is
