THE OLD METHODIST CHURCH AT ROCK BLUFFS

The Omaha World-Herald of Sunday has a very interesting story of the old Methodist church at Rock Bluffs, which is as follows:

"The corner stone of the old Methodist church of Rock Bluffs in eastern Cass county was opened August 21, after being sealed for forty-six years, and documents of historical value were found.

The church, a substantial stone and brick, 20x40, was one of the best constructed buildings in this thriving little river town at that time. From the time of its construction to the time of its destruction, it has weathered many hardships—erected in 1870, taken by the mortgagee in 1883, later sold to a farmer, who used it as a hay barn, and while filled with alfalfa from the pews to the belfry, was destroyed by fire within the last year. The building is being wrecked by Alex Graves of Murray, whose father, William Graves, and uncle, Eben Graves, manufactured the brick and did the brick work on the church two years later. He will use the brick to construct a dwelling in Murray.

Its Interesting Contents.

"Those things found in the corner stone were: A statement of the dedication, the minutes of the tenth conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, a book of Discipline, New Testament, a copy of the Central Christian Advocate, published at St. Louis, dated September 7, 1870.

"A sheet of common writing paper gave the following information regarding the dedication:

"Methodist Episcopal church, September 15, 1870.—W. Gidding, P. E., Lincoln district, Nebraska conference. Dedicated with appropriate ceremonies September 15, 1870. Present and associate members. The Rev. H. B. Maxfield, the Rev. L. W. Smith, the Rev. H. P. Mann, the Rev. Brother Murphie of Portsmouth, O., and the Rev. Brother Lemming."

"The Rev. Mr. Lemming was pastor of the church at the time of dedication.

"On the opposite page was given the names of the building committee, all well known pioneers of this part of the country: 'Henry Polen, Mandy (not legible), Moses Hiatt (now 84 and a resident of Murray), John Stafford, Sampson Carnes, Thomas Mann, H. Craig and Mary Polen Taylor.'

"Mr. Moses Hiatt was chairman of the building committee, class leader and superintendent of the Sunday school at that time. Mr. Hiatt, in looking over the records he helped deposit in the corner stone a half century ago, dreamily remarked, 'People don't live now like they did then—no time for enjoyment—all in a hurry.'

"The book of Discipline, and New Testament were returned to Mrs. William Taylor, Plattsmouth, as she had given them to the dedication services. "The minutes of the tenth Nebraska conference held at Fremont, March 31, to April 2, 1870, gives in detail the transactions of each day. They were published by 'The Republican Steam Printing House and Book Bindery, Omaha, 1870'

"The copy of the 'Central Christian Advocate' of September 7, 1870, published in St. Louis, while forty-six years old, is quite modern as it reports extensively war news (Franco-Prussian) and the influence of the war on food stuffs. The medical charlatan advertised much bolder than he does in this age. There are no illustrations and Mutt and Jeff could not be found.

War News, Too.

"The pioneers in Nebraska read the following war news in September, 1870:

"Minister Motley telegraphed the news to Washington, and adds that King William will assign a residence to Napoleon. Count de Palikoa and the council of ministers of Paris issued the following proclamation to the French people: 'A great misfortune has come upon the country. After three days of heroic struggles, sustained by the army of Marshal McMahon against 300,000 of the enemy, 40,000 men have been made prisoners. This cruel reverse will not shake our courage. Paris is today in a complete state of defense. The military forces of the country will organize in a few days. A new army will be under the walls of Paris; another army is forming on the banks of the LeVre. The emperor has been made a prisoner."

"Under the caption, 'Grain and Produce Prices Current' the following is given:

"St. Louis, Mo., Saturday, Sept. 3, 1870.—The overwhelming defeat of the French army under McMahon and the surrender of Napoleon have caused gold to fall considerably, and raised the question as to what will be the future prices for breadstuffs and provisions * * *. If peace is shortly concluded, prices will advance for a time, on opening the blockade ports, until the waste of war is in a measure supplied by our imports."

"This is followed by a very complete list of all commodities on the market at that time. Flour is quoted at $6 per barrel, live cattle $4 per hundred, sugar 11 cents per pound, deer skins, summer, 23, and winter, 18 cents per pound. American gold is quoted at 113, and lend at 7 cents per pound.

Omaha in 1870.

"A part of a letter from the Rev. John Ing to his friend in Chicago runs as follows:

"On Train Cooper Lake, 602 M. S. W., Omaha, Tuesday a. m., Aug. 23, 1870.—Running all night we reached Council Bluffs, Ia., which, being on the opposite side of the river from Omaha, late capital of Nebraska, which was moved to Lincoln, some sixty miles south of the last mentioned city. Omaha is a beautiful city, streets 100 to 120 feet wide, has many fine residences and churches (two Methodist churches), one street car railroad and a population of from 15,000 to 18,000, mostly from the east."

"Notices appear to the effect that Peter Cartwright was holding meetings in St. Louis at the date of this issue of the Advocate, and he seems to have been in as great a demand as Billy Sunday is today. Many comments are given on his rough and ready sermons.

"It has been agreed by all those interested that all papers taken from the corner stone of this pioneer church shall be turned over to the State Historical society."
