THE RECORD.

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Finish every day and be done with it. You have done what you could, some blunders and absurdities no doubt crept in; forget them as soon as you can. Tomorrow is a new day; you shall begin it well and seriously and with too high a spirit to be cumbered with your old non-sense.—Emerson.

The coal trade is brisk. The oyster will soon be in a stew. Be up and doing if you would count. Let your light so shine before you that you know what you are doing.

At the age of 25, a girl's birthday anniversaries occur every third year. A man who is not ashamed of the things he knows usually knows a great deal.

One may forgive foolishness, but that doesn't overcome the annoyance it imposes.

Our one duty is as broad as humanity, yet we advise you not to trust a "trusty" too far.

Mediation has a hard row to hoe when neither of the opposing sides will yield an inch.

This is the season when the small boy just starting to school gets in love with his teacher and regrets that school lasts only to next June.

The elimination of the word "obey" from the marriage service will, in our opinion, change the situation not one bit. The men will continue to obey as before, if not more so.

Out of our population of one hundred millions, only five hundred persons were struck by lightning last year. Now we are glad we went out of the lightning rod business as soon as we did.

The last time a circus was in town we heard a man howl like a wolf because the circus, he said, took money out of town, and the next day he sent to Montgomery-Ward's for $60 worth of goods, and he didn't even give a free street parade.

Beat President Wilson, when the law is highly respected, when the flag has been made the signal at once of preparedness and peace and our people home-loving, God-fearing and more ready for the higher achievements in the future than ever were chronicled in the past? It can't be done.

John Wunderlich should be elected sheriff of Cass county in November because he is the best man for the place. A splendid citizen, honest as the day is long, his office would be run in a thorough business-like manner. There would be no complaint at the manner in which his accounts are kept, if John Wunderlich is elected sheriff. You can depend upon that.

Theater managers are seriously considering a revival of the old-fashioned melodrama, because patrons want to see the villain get the worst of it. They want more than that. They want the villain to get all that's coming to him. A movie, nowadays, is a failure if the villain merely gets shot. That's too easy. They want the hero to beat him up, and the heroine to pull his hair and scratch him, and then if he isn't thrown over a cliff, the patrons go away with the feeling that the film was only fair.

Says a single sentence "filler" in a sheet of campaign "dope" sent out by the republican national committee the other day.

"The insuperable handicap of the democratic party in this campaign is its record." Unfortunately for Mr. Hughes and the old guard every act of the democratic administration and of the democratic congress is open to public inspection. Not only that but democrats welcome examination of their record. They are willing to stand upon it. They are willing to put it up against the record made by any republican administration at any time in the past.

If the record is against the democratic party then the federal reserve act is wrong. Will the republicans stand for its repeal?

If the record is against the democratic party then the child labor legislation is wrong. Do the republicans want to be understood as favoring repeal of that measure?

If the record is against the democratic party then the Mexican policy which is conserving the young man of the land and not destroying them, is wrong. Do the republicans want to come out flatly before the people on their policy of war?

If the record is against the democratic party then the anti-trust legislation which removed the preferred interests from their grip on public rights, is wrong. Will the republicans admit that they are willing to restore privilege to big business, and to take their rights away from the people?

If it is an "insuperable handicap" for the democratic party to have acted for four years in the interests of the people, and to have kept Columbia's unsullied flag floating high above the flags of all the nations of the earth while a civilized world engaged in merciless warfare, then the greater handicap imposed upon the party the greater must be the honor to which it is entitled for having undertaken the burden.

The single sentence attack will do more good than harm to the democratic cause. A statement to gather force must contain truth. This statement, obviously, is devoid of truth.—World-Herald.

Cheer up! Christmas is coming.

A breach of promise suit generally hinges on the theory that the defendant has money.

A Delaware woman, 90 years old, attributes her advanced age to the fact that she has never worn a corset. Which, after all, is only another way of saying she never worried.

"Did you ever know a henpecked man to amount to anything?" asks an exchange. No, and we never knew a man that amounted to anything who would allow himself to be henpecked, either.

Arthur Mullen, the Nebraska member of the democratic national committee, has just returned from the east, where he attended the notification meeting of President Wilson. He seems highly elated over democratic prospects, and says there is not the least doubt as to the re-election of President Wilson. Many republicans are pronouncing for him in all the states. They don't take to the old gang that has the Hughes campaign in hand.

Have you heard from Maine? Baseball fans will soon be colling off. And so will some of the players. Henry Ford figures that his reputation is certainly worth a cool million.

There is also this consolation. Less than half the candidates can be elected.

Not much republican consolation. A claim of 30,000 majority dwindles down to less than 12,000.

Good roads are all right in their way. But they can't take the place of the needed good roads legislation.

On account of the shortage of the sweet corn crop, the lid has been placed on the canning of corn to some extent.

Before marriage it is a case of billing and cooing. But after marriage it is in most instances a case of bills.

In ten years 103,452 trespassers have been killed on United States railway tracks. Yet trespassing loses none of its popularity with fools.

The democrats of Cass county seem to be slow in their movements. The election is not so far off and it will behoove them to get a move on them—and a lively move, too.

The Deutschland was not sunk as often in going back home as Villa was killed in Mexico. The Deutschland arrived home in safety, but no one far certain knows anything about Villa.

In supporting John Wunderlich for sheriff, you know you are supporting a truly honorable, competent gentleman for the position. If John Wunderlich is elected you will never have any complaint as to the conduct of the affairs of the office.

A noted scientist has completed a formula which he contends will enable people to compel rain just when they need it. The Journal, however, advises the city dads to hang on to the street sprinkler until some other town has tested the success of the plan.

The Philadelphia North American has just discovered that the buttons on men's coats are on one side, and those on women's coats are on the other. Some day the North American is going to learn that wagon wheels in moving pictures turn backwards, and then there'll be no rest until the North American finds out why.

Mike Tritsch is the man to support for county treasurer. He is the present efficient deputy treasurer and a young man born and reared in Cass county. His clerical education will compare with that of any man in the county and his experience in the treasurer's office has him admirably to succeed Treasurer Fox. Make no mistake—but be sure you not only support Mike Tritsch but do all you can for his election.

A GOOD STATE.

An increase of $9,500,000 in the deposits in Nebraska state banks in the past three and a half months sets another peg in the prosperity score-board. The state is not only making much money, but it is putting it in the bank, all of which advertises Cornhuskerdom to the world as a pretty good place to live, after all.

Without reference to a single issue before the people, and shutting our ears securely against the pleadings of parties and candidates and all, the fact remains that anyone who seeks to tear down Nebraska this year is going to have a Titanlike task. Life here is just as enjoyable as in any other state in the Union, and much more enjoyable than in most states. And there are very few valid grounds for complaint as to social, or moral or mental or physical conditions in Nebraska.

"This is a good state we live in—let's see how we can excel each other in boosting it, and attracting outsiders to come here and enjoy it with us. Let's hold funeral services over the hammer!—World-Herald.

WHY I AM FOR WOODROW WILSON NOW

By Irving Fisher, Professor of Political Economy, Yale University, and Member President Roosevelt's National Conservation Congress.

I attended the three conventions in Chicago and St. Louis, also some meetings of their platform committees, was present at Mr. Hughes' ceremony of acceptance and have read carefully the important documents and speeches of the campaign. After careful consideration, I have joined the Wilson Independent League. I thoroughly believe that the best interests of the country requires Mr. Wilson's re-election.

My chief reasons for voting for President Wilson follow:

1. The so-called issues of "Americanism," preparedness, the Lusitania incident, the Mexican situation, and all others that have grown out of foreign affairs, appear to me to be merely red herrings across the trail, intended to put the public off the scent. I have little doubt that, by diverting attention from themselves to these trumped up issues, the republican "old guard" hope to "put over" on the public another "Payne-Aldrich" tariff. They expect to work the war and Mexico for all they are worth to both hide and guide their own private interests after the election.

2. Moreover, quite irrespective of the moral issue in "protection," it seems to me bad national policy to keep the tariff longer in politics. The election of Mr. Hughes would surely do this. That of Mr. Wilson would at least go far toward dropping the tariff out of politics and toward taking politics out of the tariff. It is worth noting that if such a result can be accomplished through a tariff commission, it will certainly not be through a tariff commission appointed by protectionists.

3. I believe, at heart, Mr. Wilson's Mexican policy is sounder than that which Mr. Hughes seems to endorse. Few of the American people realize, as Mr. Wilson realizes, that here, too, is a case (and a far worse one than American protection) of special interests capturing a government in their own behalf.

4. So far as our relation to European affairs is concerned, I do not think that we shall become more efficient by swapping horses while we are crossing a stream. A change may plunge us into war and it would certainly, in the four months between election and inauguration, paralyze our foreign policy completely. From November to March may be the most critical months of the war. If Mr. Hughes is elected neither we nor foreign nations will know, during that interim, exactly where we stand.

5. There is another great danger to our national efficiency in voting the republican ticket. If Mr. Hughes is elected, the senate will probably remain democratic. Only a Republican landslide can make the senate republican and of such a landslide there seems no prospect.

6. The democratic platform is more progressive and effective than the republican. The plank on woman suffrage is more progressive than the republican. Mr. Wilson is more careful than Mr. Hughes to avoid giving the impression of making promises beyond his party's platform, promises which he cannot give any guarantee of keeping. But he is, I have reason to believe, at heart more of a suffragist than Mr. Hughes, who seems to accept woman suffrage as a sort of necessary evil; he would marry, the suffragette to get rid of her!

7. I think the democrats have kept faith with the people and deserve re-election on their record. Taken as a whole the Wilson administration has been more conservative than any previous administration for a generation. The Federal Reserve act, the Farm

Loan act, the Underwood act, the Child Labor act and a half dozen others of importance are a monument, and an imposing one, to Mr. Wilson's efficiency in proposing, preparing and pushing legislation through congress.

8. I also think that Mr. Wilson has withstood, with remarkable firmness, the tremendous pressure of office-seekers and maintained, as well as any previous president, especially at a change of administration, the principles of civil service reform. The attempt to prove the contrary has failed.

9. Like many other voters, I am repelled, rather than attracted, by a campaign of carping criticism in which the speeches of the republican candidate consist chiefly of fault-finding, even where faults are to be found. Ridicule is a cheap political device which ill befits Mr. Hughes.

10. Omaha is the logical place for the location of the land bank. Everyone really knows that.

11. The fellow who is always ready to paint the town red can't be induced to whitewash his chicken coop.

12. The democratic campaign text book contains 484 pages. Nice little book to take along with you when you go on a railway journey.

13. That Omaha man who has brought suit against a young woman, because she insisted on making love to him, must be a very queer specimen of humanity, besides being a regular woman hater.

14. One German submarine halted the progress of six big ocean liners the other day off the coast of France. But one bomb permanently halts the permanent advancement of a company of soldiers, all of which shows that war is reactionary, not progressive.

15. It is no wonder that so many papers are raising their subscription price. Blank paper that formerly sold for $2.70, is now quoted at $7.50. It will not be long, if paper keeps on going up, till many of the papers will have to reduce their size, or go out of business. There should be something done to put a stop to the infamous outrage.

16. Commenting on the telegram which Charles E. Hughes sent to Governor Hiram Johnson of California, congratulating him upon his nomination for the United States senate, Mr. McCormick said: "Mr. Hughes's act in congratulating Governor Johnson is typical of the republican candidate. When a word of recognition might have proved helpful to Johnson in his primary fight, Mr. Hughes was silent. When suffrage was an issue in his own state of New York Mr. Hughes was silent. Now that he is a candidate he thinks he will be able to catch the women voters in the suffrage states, so he indorses suffrage as a national issue. His attitude, toward the progressives and toward the women is the same, and his action in each case is the action of the typical politician."

WHAT YOUR NEIGHBORS SAY ABOUT TANLAC COUNTS MOST

Real Triumph of National Tonic Came Through Words of Users Which Are the Actual Tests of True Merit.

"It is what the neighbors say that counts most," said a prominent business man, recently in regard to Tanlac, the National Tonic which is attracting such wide-spread attention throughout the country. Tanlac is well advertised, it is true, but such a record breaking demand could not be brought about by advertising alone. One bottle of Tanlac is sold in a neighborhood through advertising, but ten more are sold in that community after the first bottle produces results and that's where Tanlac scores.

People are always willing to talk about their ailments, but they are more than willing to tell others of the medicine that helps them. It's something they couldn't keep to themselves if they tried, for the impulse to sympathize with neighbors and want to help them is one of the strongest, as well as one of the biggest things in human nature.

Who is there that has been relieved of the pangs of illness by Tanlac that would not tell his suffering neighbor? If you were one of those who had been relieved, would you keep it a secret?

Tanlac's best friends are those who have used it. They are men and women who consider it their duty, a duty they dare not shirk, to tell others of Tanlac.

Tanlac is being specially introduced in Plattsmouth at the Mauzey Drug Company.

Tanlac may also be obtained in Springfield, at H. Fiegenbaum's store, and in Weeping Water at the Meier Drug Co.
