

WILSON DOES NOT SEEK VOTES FROM DISLOYAL

President Indignant at Charge He is Pro-British. Answers in Strong Words. To Tell Why He Seeks Another Term in Today's Speech.

Long Branch, N. J., Sept. 29.—President Wilson made it plain tonight that he wants no "disloyal" American to vote for him. He expressed indignation over a telegram from Jeremiah A. O'Leary of New York, president of the American Truth society, accusing him of being pro-British and saying he had failed to obtain compliance with American rights.

The president sent Mr. O'Leary a short telegram which officials indicated Mr. Wilson had desired to put in stronger language. His message follows:

"Your telegram received. I would feel deeply mortified to have you or anybody like you vote for me. Since you have access to many disloyal Americans and I have not, I will ask you to convey this message to them."

Mr. O'Leary's telegram, given out by the president, follows:

"Again we greet you with a popular disapproval of your pro-British policies. Last year from the Twenty-third New York Congressional district and now from your own state and from the voters of your party. Senator Martine won because the voters of New Jersey do not want any trucking to the British empire nor do they want dictatorship over congress.

"Your foreign policies, your failure to secure compliance with all American rights, your leniency with the British empire, your approval of war loans, the ammunition traffic, are issues in this campaign."

The president's attitude toward the campaign and toward some of the issues before the country were made known here today. It was learned that in his speech at Shadow Lawn tomorrow, and in subsequent addresses, he intends to state definitely why he seeks another term.

Following is an authoritative summary of his campaign attitude:

The president will adhere strictly to his determination not to enter into personalities or into political controversy with Charles E. Hughes. All the speeches he will make away from Shadow Lawn will be delivered to non-partisan organizations and will be devoted entirely to a discussion of public questions. By inference they will have a political effect.

His speeches here, however, will be more political in tone. Tomorrow he will tell why he thinks young men should vote the democratic ticket.

American voters are entitled to know, he believes, what republicans would do in Mexico, what attitude they would take toward belligerent nations in Europe, whether they would repeal the federal reserve act, the tariff law, the rural credits acts, the tariff commission bill, the eight-hour law and other legislative acts of the democrats.

Although several days ago officials here said the president would take occasion to refer frequently to the settlement of the recently threatened railroad strike, it became known today that he has since decided not to dwell on this question.

The president believes that satisfactory settlement of pending international questions can only be embarrassed by partisan discussion of them.

For this reason, he is not expected to reply directly to the challenge issued by Mr. Hughes, that he deny or confirm the charge that John Lind went to Mexico with orders to oust General Huerta. On this subject Mr. Wilson takes the position that Huerta was ousted, that the democratic administration opposed him consistently and that, therefore, no reply is necessary.

In connection with international questions, an authoritative denial was made here today to statements that James W. Gerard, American ambassador to Germany, is coming here to discuss reports that Germany is about to renew submarine attacks on merchant vessels. It was said here that Mr. Gerard was returning to the United States only because he greatly needed a rest.

THINKS LIVERY RIG STOLEN THAT WAS HIRED FOR DAY

From Saturday's Daily.

A case of what seems to be horse stealing has been unearthed in this city and as a result, Q. K. Parmele, the liveryman, is greatly worried over what has become of his horse and buggy. Yesterday a stranger came to the barn and asked if he could secure a horse and buggy for a trip out in the country and of course was accommodated by the proprietor of the barn. As soon as he secured the outfit the man drove to the Perkins House, where his wife and children were staying and loaded them in the buggy, together with their baggage and drove away, and this is the last that has been seen of the rig or the parties who secured it. Mr. Parmele is hoping that perhaps the outfit will be returned to the barn, but it looks as though it was a case of a getaway with the horse and buggy. The sheriff is looking up the matter and the nearby towns have been notified to let him know if the outfit has been seen in any of these places.

MANY A SLIP BETWEEN HONEY IN THE CHIMNEY AND HONEY ON TABLE

From Saturday's Daily.

At the farm home of Anton Meisinger, west of the city, on the place owned by Frederick Guenter, M. S. Briggs with the assistance of J. C. York has been engaged the last week in painting the house and barn, which has added greatly to the appearance of the farm home, both buildings now looking like new.

The other night after having gone to bed, Mr. Briggs heard something light on his pillow between himself and Mr. York, who were occupying the same bed. Milo thought it was a wasp and laid very still until a few moments later when he heard a bump against a window nearby and was at liberty to turn over, which he was very desirous of doing when he thought he could not for fear of being stung. Yesterday while painting the saddle boards on the top of the house Earl Meisinger told Mr. Briggs to look in the chimney, which was unused, and on doing so found it full of honey up to within about three inches of the top. When furnished with a butcher knife, which he fastened to a long stick, and cutting the sections of honey comb from the side of the chimney, harpooned one with the intention of lifting it out, but with the bees getting very friendly and thick around the top of the chimney dragged the comb from the butcher knife, harpoon, and down it went lower in the chimney. Then Mr. York got some shingles, and going to the upper story of the house, thrust it into the stove pipe hole to catch the honey while Mr. Briggs pushed it down. The first batch to fall was composed of bee bread and bees, and this Mr. York removed with the shingle to empty it out of the window, in order to catch the honey which he knew was coming, and while doing so the honey followed, going down to the bottom of the long chimney, where it could not be gotten.

Both the painters, with the family of Mr. Meisinger, were making preparations for a feast on the sweetness, but found that there is many a slip between honey in a chimney and honey on the dining room table.

MR. DAN CUPID AGAIN COMES TO THE FRONT

Miss Gladys Steinhauer and Harvey J. Heneger of Carroll, Ia., Are United in Marriage.

Saturday evening at 8:30 at the home of Judge and Mrs. M. Archer occurred the marriage of Miss Gladys Steinhauer of this city and Mr. Harvey J. Heneger of Carroll, Ia. The wedding was a very quiet one and the ceremony was performed in a very impressive manner by Judge Archer. The bride and groom were without attendants, and as they took their station before the venerable justice to have the words that made them as one pronounced, the occasion was one of deep reverence and it seemed a benediction upon the young hearts just entering life together. The bride was attired in a very pretty costume of blue silk, while the groom was attired in the conventional black. Following the wedding the bride and groom were entertained at the home of the bride's parents, where they remained over Sunday, departing this morning for their future home at Carroll, Ia., where the groom has a cozy home awaiting his bride.

The bride is the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Steinhauer, and is a young lady of most pleasing and genial disposition, who is held in the highest esteem by her large circle of friends where she was born and reared to womanhood, in this city. Mrs. Heneger is a graduate of the Draughton Practical Business college and one of the accomplished musicians of the city, having been devoted to the study of music for a number of years under the instruction of Miss Olive Gass. The friends will regret greatly to lose this charming lady from their circle of friendship but in her new home she takes with her the best wishes of the host of friends for her future happiness that she so well deserves.

The groom is a very bright and talented young man of the highest character and standing and commands the respect and esteem of a large circle of friends. He is a former Cass county young man, having been reared to manhood here, where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Heneger, are numbered among the leading families in their locality, and his friends in that community will learn of his new happiness with the greatest of pleasure. He has a very fine position in Carroll and is rapidly forging to the front in his profession.

"ANOTHER MAN'S WIFE," AT THE PARMELE THEATRE SOON

New plays, new plays, and more new plays, has ever been the cry of the theatrical producer. There are enough plays submitted but plays with real merit are few and far between. Like many firms Gaskell & MacVitty have a "safety first" motto, and have adhered to the policy of producing book dramatizations; taking as a basis for judging the chances of a successful venture, a book that has had a very large sale, and with this point in view, gone ahead and had the best dramatizations made that could be made. So they have always produced book plays; this season, however, among the avalanche of plays submitted was "The Other Man's Wife," its name was what caused it to first receive a hearing. After reading the play they were impressed to the extent that they immediately made overtures for the possession of the piece. It was the only play possessing that absorbing interest and novelty of construction that they wanted. Result, they have given it all that could be asked for in the way of scenic investiture, and as good a cast as it was possible to get. The story of the play deals with the world-old problem of double-standard of morals. To be seen here at the Parmele theatre next Tuesday, October 10.

CELEBRATE IMPORTANT EVENT AT THE HOLY ROSARY CHURCH

Yesterday was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the dedication of the Church of Our Lady of the Holy Rosary in this city and in observance of that occasion the day was celebrated in an appropriate manner by the members of the congregation. At the morning worship hour, the impressive high mass of the Catholic church was celebrated by Rev. Father Bouska, the first priest to perform mass in the church when it was dedicated and who came from South Dakota to be present yesterday to take part in the services. He was assisted in the mass by Rev. Father John Vleck, the present rector of the church, and the services were most impressive and attended by a large congregation that filled the church to overflowing. The various Bohemian lodges and societies of this city, as well as several from Omaha and South Omaha met at the K. S. hall early in the morning and, headed by a band composed of young men, marched to the church to take part in the mass.

In the afternoon a band concert was given at the K. S. hall, as well as an exhibition by a number of the Catholic turners and a very large crowd was present to enjoy the occasion, that marked a quarter of a century of life for this parish, and every one enjoyed thoroughly the event. This was one of the most extensive demonstrations that has been given here for some time and the attendance was quite large.

Mrs. W. A. Swearingen of Omaha was a visitor in this city over Sunday with her many friends and was accompanied to this city by her granddaughter, and while here was a guest at the T. M. Patterson home.

J. N. Jordan was a visitor in Omaha yesterday with his wife, who is at the Presbyterian hospital where she is doing quite nicely and seems to be on the highway to recovery. He was accompanied to that city by Mrs. Barry, the mother of Mrs. Jordan.

FUNERAL OF MRS. F. R. STEIMKER YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

The funeral services of the late Mrs. F. H. Steimker was held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 from the First Presbyterian church and a large number of the old friends and neighbors were present to pay their last tribute of love and respect to this grand good woman called to her last long rest. The services were conducted by Rev. H. G. McClusky, pastor of the church, who spoke to the friends of the long and useful life of the departed lady and the example of a faithful Christian life which she had lived all of the years of her life since early girlhood, when she first entered into the church. During the service there were a number of the old and beautiful hymns given by the members of the choir. Following the services the body was borne to Oak Hill cemetery, where it was laid to rest in the family lot in the silent city. The wealth of beautiful floral remembrances sent by the friends spoke very eloquently of the feeling of love and esteem in which Mrs. Steimker was held by the host of friends. To the broken-hearted husband and sorrowing daughter the deepest sympathy of the community will be extended.

CARD OF THANKS.

We take this opportunity to thank the many kind friends and neighbors, the I. O. O. F., Degree of Honor, Daughters of Ebekeah, the Burlington freight shop employees and others for their sympathy shown us at the death of our beloved wife and mother. The many gifts of beautiful flowers are gratefully appreciated.

LUKE'S CHURCH SUNDAY SPECIAL SERVICES AT ST.

Yesterday afternoon St. Luke's Episcopal church was filled to its utmost capacity to attend the special service given for the children of the parish by Rev. Father W. S. Lee, rector of the church and at this service the office of baptism was given to several of the Little Helpers of the church and certificates given to members of the font class of the little folks. Promotion cards were also given out by the rector to the members of the font roll who are now to take up their Sunday school work. Several of the members of the class were presented with honor cards for their perfect recitation of the catechism. The service was one filled with beauty and impressiveness and the little ones taking part bespoke a greater interest in the church among the members of the parish. Father Lee has devoted great efforts to the up-building of his parish and is meeting with great encouragement from his membership.
