EARLY HISTORY OF THE WEST INDIES

Legends of Days of Old That Read Like Romance and Yet Are True.

Concerning the early history of American about-to-be possessions, the Danish West Indies, the National Geographic society issues the following from Washington:

"Of the three small islands on the northeastern edge of the Caribbean sea, for which the United States expects to pay Denmark $25,000,000, St. Thomas and Sa. Jo, both smaller and less densely populated than St. Croix, have been the scenes of many thrilling episodes. Here white colonists of four nations followed each other with bewildering perplexity during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

"More than a hundred years after the discovery of St. Thomas by Columbus in 1493, the island was uninhabited, although its excellent harbor had been a port of refuge for Dutch navigators during many decades. When a handful of French colonists, survivors of a massacre on Crab Island, perpetrated by a band of Spaniards from Porto Rico, reached its shores in a dugout in 1647, they found evidences of an earlier settlement, but no clues as to the nationality of their predecessors or of their fate. These French wanderers were not disposed to brave a similar mysterious end, so they sailed on.

"At about the time that Peter Stuyvesant was established a representative form of government on Manhattan Island, some of his fellow countrymen were establishing the first recorded settlement on St. Thomas. These hardy colonists met the same fate which overtook their brother Hollanders of 'New Amsterdam,' for three years after the town on the Hudson became New York the St. Thomas became New York the St. Thomas the English also. The latter soon deserted the island and turned to the more fertile lands of St. Martin's and pioneers were forced to surrender to St. Eustatius, so that in 1671, when the Danes, wishing to shore in the colonial prosperity of other European nations, chartered the West Indies and Guinea company, St. Thomas, uninhabited again, was awaiting the advent of settlers who were to establish Denmark's right in the island. With has been maintained from that day up to the present time.

"The legend that St. Thomas was at one time the headquarters of the ruthless buccaneers who terrorized the Spanish Main for so many years, is perpetuated in the names given to two towers still standing on the heights back of the seaport of Charlotte Amalie. On one hill is 'Bluebeard's Castle,' while on an adjacent height rises 'Blackbeard's Castle.' History does not substantiate the romantic tradition, and it is extremely doubtful if the buccaneers were ever in possession here.

"When the Danes arrived they were under very strict orders as to religious observances and with respect to a 'preparedness' program against rival colonists. The first order issued by the governor was: 'Every person who speaks Danish is bound to attend service every Sunday in Christian's fort when the drum beats, and on failure of doing so is to pay a fine of 25 pounds of tobacco. Persons of all other nations are bound to attend service every Sunday afternoon at the same place, under the same penalty.

"As to armament the order was: 'For the defense and good of the country every householder shall keep in his house for himself and every man in his service, a sword with belt, and a gun with sufficient powder and ball; and also each householder shall have two pounds of powder, or more if he pleases. Every person neglecting this duty shall pay 100 pounds of tobacco.'

"The order for the citizen army ran thus: 'Every Saturday afternoon the drum beats, all persons who can use a gun shall meet at the parade ground fully armed. Any person absent, in favorable weather, shall forfeit every time twenty-five pounds of tobacco, which is to be paid at the end of the year for the benefit of those who meet regularly.'

"The shortage of labor during the first year or two of Danish occupation was overcome by the importation of many slaves from the Gold Coast of Africa. The laws governing these human chattels were extremely severe. 'Drum dances' and feasts were forbidden and all slaves were required to be at home by sunset on Sundays. A slave transgressing such regulations was for the first offense whipped, for the second his ears were cut off and for a third he was hanged and his head placed on a stake.

"In the neighboring island of St. John the slave laws were even more drastic. Here are some of the penalties which brought about a bloody insurrection in 1733, costing the lives of many white planters, their wives and children: 'The leader of runaway slaves shall be pinched three times with red-hot iron, and then hung. 'Each other runaway slave shall lose one leg, or if his owner shall pardon him shall lose one ear and receive 150 stripes.

"A slave who runs away for eight days shall have 150 stripes; twelve weeks, shall lose one leg, and six months, shall forfeit his life, unless the owner pardons him with the loss of one leg.

"A slave who lifts his hand to strike a white person or threaten him with violence shall be pinched and hung, should the white person demand it, if not to lose his right hand."

"In the terrible insurrection one of the victims was a Judge Soteman, who was murdered and decapitated in the presence of his beautiful 12-year-old daughter, and while a council was being held to determine what should be done with her the child, overwhelmed with grief, entreated them to take her life also, to which plea they gleefully acceded, laying her mangled body across that of her father.

"The insurrection was put down only after the aid of the French in Martinique had been invoked. Three hundred slaves were surrounded and when they realized that escape was impossible they held a great feast of death. Tradition says that they then plunged over a cliff, but the historian Fort says that they shot one another and that when they were found at Brim's Bay they were lying in a circle."

ELECTION TO COST FIFTY MILLIONS

Vast Sums Spent for Postage, Telegrams, Advertising, Etc., Etc.

New York, Nov. 7.—Elections this fall will cost $50,000,000. Such is the consensus of conservative estimates by political leaders here. Some place the figures twice as high.

Only a small part of this expense goes toward electing a president and a vice president. About 75,000 state, county, city and other offices will be filled or, in the case of a few states, have been filled this fall.

Two hundred thousand men—and women—are running for office. Of the fifty millions, about half will be spent by the candidates and their supporters and the other half by the state and municipal governments in preparing for and holding the elections and counting the ballots.

In New York state alone the cost of registering voters and conducting the elections will be about $2,500,000.

$25,000,000 spent in furthering the campaigns will be divided among postage, telegraph and telephone service, advertising, press agent publicity, speakers' pay and expenses, bands, rent of halls and theatres, clerical help, campaign buttons, badges and banners, rallies and conventions, printing and engraving, and sums—large in the aggregate—given to the hundreds of thousands of minor workers."

It is estimated here the republican national committee will spend over $2,000,000 and the democratic national committee over $1,500,000.

In 1908 the republican national committee spent $76,000 for printing, $30,000 for advertising, over $60,000 for campaign lithographs and $10,000 for buttons. This year these items will be much larger. For one reason, the cost of almost everything to be bought has doubled or tripled.

In 1908 William J. Bryan had his national treasurer try a plan of soliciting dollar contributions. This plan was a failure, because it was found the cost of getting the dollar ate up all but a few of the hundred cents.

Cornelius N. Bliss, jr., republican national treasurer, has been successful this year with a campaign for $10 contributions; however, this scheme has increased largely the number of individual contributors.

Wilbur W. Marsh, the democratic national treasurer, has used the "every member canvass" idea, said to have been invented originally as a scheme to raise church mortgages. He has built up a wonderful country-wide organization to carry out the plan, with local committees everywhere. The local committees send out teams of two men each. A team outnumbers the democrat attack and he usually capitulates for some sum, according to his means.

A MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER IN HONOR OF MISS BEESON

From Tuesday's Daily.
Last evening Mrs. E. P. Stewart entertained at her home at a very charming miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Gertrude Beeson whose marriage to Mr. H. H. Cotton is to take place on Wednesday, November 29th. The evening was one of rare enjoyment and the guest of honor received a large number of beautiful presents from the friends that will be cherished by her in the years to come. The shower was arranged in a very pleasing way, the gifts being fastened to a large silk Japanese parasol and the bride to be requested to gather up the numerous gifts that had been provided. A number of games were enjoyed and in the bridal flower contest Mrs. A. J. Beeson was awarded the first prize, a beautiful china plate. The guests also enjoyed a questioning game in which each one was permitted to ask the guest of honor a question and this afforded a good deal of amusement. ## A BIG FACTORY IS NOW RUNNING FULL CAPACITY

Success of Tanlac is a Boon to Hundreds of Thousands of Invalids.

Men and women who suffer with improper digestion are nervous and very irritable because of their misery. They lack energy and ambition to do their work, are easily discouraged and become melancholy over slight things.

They suffer with unsound sleep, poor memory, headache, irregular circulation of the blood, dizziness and the common ailments of the stomach, liver and kidneys, many of which arise from a weakened condition of the mucus membranes called catarrh. If the catarrhal condition is long unchecked the vital organs are affected.

These people will find Tanlac the tonic, tissue builder and appetizer designed to overcome these ills.

The success of Tanlac has been so great wherever it has been introduced that it is called The National Tonic.

The production of the Tanlac Laboratories is now over five million bottles per year. Over a quarter of a million people have voluntarily given signed statements telling how Tanlac has relieved them of nervousness, how it has restored their appetites, increased their weight, rid them of dyspepsia, bad blood, constipation and many other ailments which arise from a broken down condition of the body tissues.

Tanlac is being specially introduced by the Mauzey Drug Company at Plattsmouth.

Tanlac may also be obtained in Springfield, at H. Fiegenbaum's store, and in Weeping Water at the Meier Drug Co.

A GOOD HALLOWE'EN STORY FROM CULLOM

From Tuesday's Daily.

A mighty good Halloween story comes from the vicinity of Cullom and the victim of the joke, W. H. Seybert, takes pleasure in acknowledging that it was put over on him in good shape. It seems that W. H. arose as usual on the morning after Halloween, with his hired man, hastened out to the barn to harness up the horses for the day's work. As they entered the barn they found it filled with a fine array of the farming tools of all description, that required some time to clear away, and then it was found that the harness was missing from its accustomed place. The farm was searched in the neighborhood of the barn for the missing harness and not a trace was to be seen of the long looked for article. It was finally decided that the search was useless and Mr. Seybert resignedly took up the milk pail and started out to do the milking, and his surprise may be imagined when, on entering the cow barn, he discovered one of the placid-eyed bovines all harnessed up and ready to go. Bill, seeing the joke of the affair, enjoyed it as much as anyone, and while suspicious of who did the plotting of the affair appreciates that it was cleverly carried out. John McNurlin, who is staying at the Seybert home gives the story to the public.
