It is great for bronchial coughs and coughs. La grippe and bronchial coughs, croup, hoarseness, tickling throat, are all quickly relieved."

EVERY FATHER AND NEIGHBOR

IN NEBRASKA OWN MOTOR CAR

Lincoln, Jan. 8.—As an indication of the increase in the automobile business in this state, the figures given out by Secretary of State Pool show an increase of over 71 per cent for 1916 over that of 1915 in the number of licenses issued.

In 1915 the number was 59,140, while in 1916 the numbers ran up to 101,201, which does not include duplicate numbers of motorcycles.

Taking the population of Nebraska to be a million and a quarter, five people in a family, it would mean that there is one automobile to every two and one-half families.

MAKE A DURABLE PEACE.

The people of today are continually at war with their stomachs. This deplorable fact leads to constipation, flatulence, headache, migrain, nervousness, loss of appetite and energy, general weakness, etc. Make a durable peace with your stomach! Clean out the bowels and keep them clean by the help of Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine, the only trustworthy remedy for stomach troubles.

It is prepared from bitter herbs, roots and barks of highest medicinal value and a pure, perfectly matured, natural red wine. Do not take alcoholic stomach bitters, which weaken the digestive organs, while Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine strengthens them. Price $1.00, at drug stores.

Where a price is impossible, as for instance with rheumatism or neuralgia, chase away the torturer with the aid of Triner's Liniment. This remedy is unsurpassed also in accidents, sprains, swellings, chilblains, etc. Price 25c and 50c at drug stores; by mail, 35c and 60c. Have your charming Triner's Golden Calendar? Safe, gentle in action, and without bad after-effects, Black-Draught is sure to benefit both young and old. Sold everywhere. 25c a package. Costs only one cent a dose. NCB.

"BUFFALO BILL" ANSWERS THE LAST ROLL CALL

The Plainsman Possessed Many Intimate Friends in Nebraska and Friends All Over the World.

William F. Cody, known over the world as "Buffalo Bill," has answered the last roll call, passing away yesterday morning at 11 o'clock at the home of his sister in Denver, and one of the best known men in the world is removed from this earth to his final reward. Colonel Cody had been the associate and friend of kings, princes and plainmen and his death will be universally regretted. The news brought keen regret to the old friends of the famous scout in Omaha, among whom are numbered Colonel W. F. McCune, Colonel Thomas Swobe, Richard Kitchin of the Paxton Hotel, and General John C. Cowin, the eminent attorney of the metropolis.

The sketch of the life of Colonel Cody is given by Colonel McCune, who was associated with him in the life on the plains in early days, and will be of great interest to the public as it touches on the personal side of the famous western scout.

The "Buffalo Bill Wild West show," which Colonel Cody and "Nate" Salisbury organized in Omaha in 1883, was distinctly of Omaha and carried the name of this city all over the country and into the courts and coliseums of Europe.

Colonel McCune, who resigned in position as sergeant of police to go with the show, remembers well its organization.

To Go to Rome. "This show will never stop," Colonel Cody predicted, according to Colonel McCune, "until it reaches the coliseum in Rome."

After having made, given away and lost several fortunes, "Buffalo Bill" had been planning to start out next spring with the biggest show of his life. Colonel McCune already has started negotiations for Indians to accompany it and had written to "Ben American Horse," "Lone Bear" and other Indian leaders at the Pine Ridge reservation, South Dakota.

One of the most striking and picturesque episodes of American history is that of Colonel Cody.

Was Born in Iowa. Born on a farm in Scott county, Iowa, February 26, 1846, he became a pony express rider, scout, slayer of buffalo, soldier, showman, capitalist, builder, reclamer of desert lands and yet died leaving but a trifling estate.

He made $600,000 at the World's fair in Chicago, and in 1887 at Earl's court, London, had made a fortune. Colonel McCune estimated that Cody's earnings during the last thirty-five years ran into millions of dollars—exactly how much it is impossible to estimate on account of "Buffalo Bill's" rather reckless methods of handling his own funds.

Colonel Cody is known to have given away more money to needy actors, actresses, showmen and others in straightened circumstances than any other one man in the world, with the exception of those philanthropists who have organized their charitable works.

Gives Little Girl $300. Colonel McCune remembered today that in 1897 Colonel Cody gave $300 to a little girl who asked him for alms in an Omaha hotel. He spent vast amounts in financing stranded shows and in "starring" actors and actresses.

Cody spent $69,000 to make Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould, wife of the millionaire, Howard Gould, a stage star. He sued her for that amount, which he claimed he lost in the unsuccessful venture, but the suit was withdrawn and never tried.

"The only stranded show which Colonel Cody helped which afterward made good," said Colonel McCune, "was that of McIntyre & Heath, now famous black-faced comedians. When they went broke at North Platte he started them out again, and McIntyre paid back the money eighteen or nineteen years ago."

Colonel Cody participated in more Indian battles than any other white man. In the battle of Indian Creek, about 1876, he killed the Cheyenne Indian chief, Yellow Hand, in a hand-to-hand fight.

Cody also was once a politician, having been a member of the Nebraska legislature in 1872.

"One of the proud moments of 'Buffalo Bill's' life," said Colonel McCune, "was when he met Queen Victoria, the Prince of Wales, and the princess. The show was staged in the parks of Buckingham palace by royal invitation, and members of the royal party took the places of the cowboys in the performance, sending the rough riders to the grand stand.

When Cody was presented to the prince, instead of kissing the princely hand, he held out his hand, saying: "Hello, prince; glad to meet you."

Prince Edward shook hands warmly and in a few minutes the two were on the best of terms and remained friends.
