

FORGET FOES AND CHANT FAREWELLS

Patriotism Reigns When House Doors Close on Second Session of Sixty-fourth Congress.

PATHOS AND LEVITY MIXED

Solemn Men in Senate Make Marked Contrast to Chorus of Representatives Hurling Goodbyes.

Washington, March 4.—Dignity, levity, pathos, mingled last night as the session of the sixty-fourth congress drew its life away.

Dignity was the senate portion. Levity at times, sadness at others, marked the house session.

The senate, long-winded and serious, talked and talked.

The house, less serious about itself and the things it did, injected a whoop of laughter now and then; while anon as the hours switched toward morning, it turned sentimental in the sadness of goodbyes.

Late last night the house sang its farewells.

Behind them was a strain of realness—for Representative "Mike" Conroy, crippled song leader of other dying congresses, had gone to death.

They missed him as they hummed out the tunes he had loved—"Auld Lang Syne," "Home Sweet Home," "Mother Machree" and many others—but they knew that good natured, whole-hearted "Mike" Conroy would have had them thus.

And as the chorus died down from several hundred throats a quartet from the press gallery, above, took up the refrain and old-time songs that gave a tug to the heartstrings.

It seemed a bit strange, this body of men, political enemies, turned suddenly sentimentalists.

The air of sadness vanished; a thrill of patriotism struck through the assembly, and all stood solemn as in closing the singing they struck up "America."

Over on the senate side, the usual last minute throngs watched a dragged group of staid and solemn men. The floor was littered with scraps of paper like a stock exchange at the end of a big market day.

Outside both house and senate galleries streams of inaugural visitors lined up for hours awaiting the privilege of a seat within where they could see the representatives of their home states.

J. P. Cowan, who directed the great picture and who plays the title role, acts with his usual dignity and repression. His performance is second only to that of the star. Mr. McGowan has long been recognized as an actor of unusual merit, but never has he appeared to such excellent advantage as he does in this production.

Despondency Due to Constipation.

Women often become nervous and despondent. When this is due to constipation it is easily corrected by taking an occasional dose of Chamberlain's Tablets. These tablets are easy to take and pleasant in effect.

The Pneumonia Season.

The cold, damp weather of March seems to be the most favorable for the pneumonia germ. Now is the time to be careful. Pneumonia often results from a cold. The quicker a cold is gotten rid of the less the danger. As soon as the first indication of a cold appears take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. As to the value of this preparation, ask anyone who has used it.

FIRE INJURES RESIDENCE ON HIGH SCHOOL HILL

The residence property on High School hill occupied by the Richard Avarad and Jack McLean families, was visited yesterday morning by fire and the residence practically gutted by the fire and water. The blaze was first discovered by some of the neighbors, just as the first tongues of flame were creeping out of the roof, and the alarm was at once given, and the work of carrying out the furniture and effects of the families was undertaken by the friends who were quickly on the scene, and all of the household goods on the first floor of the house were saved and a greater part of the furniture on the upper floor, near where the fire was working its way rapidly through the attic beneath the roof. The boys did some excellent work in the handling of the blaze as it seemed impossible at first that the flames could be checked, but was finally gotten under control after the entire roof of the house had been destroyed. The fire evidently was caused by a defective flue, allowing sparge to escape and set fire to the timbers in the roof of the house. The fire occurred close to the noon hour and attracted a crowd of several hundred persons, who watched with interest the battle to control the flames that seemed certain to destroy the entire house. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

HELEN HOLMES EARNS HER RIGHT TO BE STARRED

Helen Holmes, as the heroine of the Mutual Star production "Medicine Bend" which comes to the Gem Theatre, Tuesday March 6th, reveals to her host of admirers a new side—her exceptional ability as an emotional actress. Several of the scenes she appears in are highly dramatic and none but an artist could depict the mental anguish of the character. In many instances she rises to the demands of the role, and her characterization can be said to be unexcelled in dramatic power and versatility. Miss Holmes is appealing as the wife, maltreated by her husband, craves the subtlety of the characterization and demonstrates that she is not only a darling film star, but an emotional actress of rare qualities.

J. P. Cowan, who directed the great picture and who plays the title role, acts with his usual dignity and repression. His performance is second only to that of the star. Mr. McGowan has long been recognized as an actor of unusual merit, but never has he appeared to such excellent advantage as he does in this production.

As the director of this production, McGowan has demonstrated in many ways his claim to being ranked among the foremost producers of motion pictures.

EVANGELIST ALDEN LEE HILL.

Was born on a farm near Oronoco, Minn. He was the oldest of a family of eight children, worked and earned his own way through high school and college, and this gave him a business training and experience not found in the study of books. He was converted by Evangelist Simpson Ely in 1903 and began a zealous work for Christ at once. He took his Bible study under Dr. D. R. Duncan and Dean A. M. Haggard of Drake university, Des Moines, Ia., and Dr. W. P. Aylesworth of Cotner university, Bethany, Neb. The latter institution granted him the degrees, Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts. Besides the work in sacred literature Mr. Hill is a graduate of the College of Education, and holds a university state teacher's certificate of Nebraska.

He has held successful pastorates in Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska; built two churches, and paid the debt off on two others. Believing in sane aggressive evangelism, has with one exception, held his own meetings. In general work he has evangelized, acted as state superintendent of Christian Endeavor, and given some time as field secretary of Cotner university. Has gone through meetings with "Billy" Sunday (1906); Dr. Wilbur Chapman (1907), Chas. Reigh Scoville (1909) and W. M. Minges (1912). Besides these he has made a careful study of the work and methods of Gypsy Smith and many others of the greatest living evangelists.

Not only has Mr. Hill been a careful student of evangelism, but nature has kindly endowed him with temperament and talents that have greatly aided him in his chosen field of labor. At present he is working as state evangelist under the Nebraska Christian Missionary society.

Evangelist Hill will open his revival in Plattsmouth March 11. He comes direct from David City, where he is in a meeting now, with thirty conversions the first fourteen days.
