A FORMER RESIDENT HERE DIES AT SOLDIERS' HOME IN OHIO

From Friday's Daily. Dennis McCarthy was born at Boston, Mass., April 6, 1832, and died at the Soldiers' Home, Dayton, O., July 29, 1917, aged 85 years 3 months and 23 days. Dennis McCarthy was for nine years an employee of the Burlington shops at Plattsmouth and a citizen of this city, and known by many of the people of Plattsmouth now living here. Mr. McCarthy was a veteran of the civil war, and had since 1891 until the time of his death, made his home at the Soldiers' Home at Dayton, O. During the war he was what is, or was known as a corporal of a gun squad in the navy, and was on the Cumberland, which was sunk by the Merrimac, the first ironclad war vessel ever constructed in the history of the world. This was the day before the famous battle between the Merrimac, the confederate man-of-war, and the Monitor, the first ironclad manufactured by the United States government. At the time the Merrimac sank the Cumberland she had a long spar covered with iron, for the purpose of ramming other vessels, and with this she rammed the Cumberland, "and like the honey bee, left its stinger in the wound as the spar was broken off in the hold of the Cumberland, and was, in all probability, what saved the Monitor the following day during that famous battle, as at that time the Merrimac endeavored to ram the Monitor, the prow sliding off its sides. Mr. McCarthy is the last of the crew which was on the Cumberland at the time when she was sunk. There were on the Cumberland in all, 400, and out of that number there were only thirty-five saved among whom was Mr. Dennis McCarthy.

CASS COUNTY TEACHERS' INSTITUTE HERE

Will Be Held at the High School Building in Plattsmouth, Neb., August 27th to 31st. Inc.

The Cass County teachers' institute will be held in Plattsmouth from August 27th until and including the 31st, at the high school building. The people who are to deliver the lectures and make talks for the institute are all people who have been thoroughly trained, and have had ample experience, and are well able to instruct in the lines for which they have been selected. There are problems which every teacher of the rural and city school have to meet, and which have been met and solved by other teachers, and at this institute is the place where there is a clearing house of experiences established, and where every teacher, no matter how extensive has been his or her training, can get their money's worth in ideas.

Arrangements have been made by the county superintendent to care for all who come, but in order to do away with the problem of looking for a place to stay, it will be necessary to notify the county superintendent long enough before hand that she may make arrangements for satisfactory accommodations for everyone. Remember you can register the week before the institute convenes, if you so desire, and all who are so situated as to be able to do this will help relieve the congestion on the opening day, as well as give those from more distant points an opportunity to register on the first day. The books will be open in the morning from 7:30 to 8:20, and also in the afternoon from 4:15 to 5:30. Should you not get in in time to register in the morning go to the institute and register in the afternoon. If possible bring the proper change—one dollar.

The Red Sox Win Another

Results in Another Victory for the Red Sox—Large Crowd of Fans Take It In.

In the ball game Sunday, between the National Cash Register Company, of Omaha, and the Red Sox, of Plattsmouth, with the visitors taking the iniatory inning, they reaped nothing. Still they knew the game and were in a measure good players. Etter, the second baseman, secured a good single, and made second on the grounder of McIvor, but died there, while McIvor was unable to reach first. Dudwig made a single, and Feeny grounded out. With the Sox, Beal was out on a grounder, Salsberg got to first, and on a foul by Simpson both went over. Jungmas got a good swipe, but the fly was appropriated by Jeff, while Hay and Pete, saw to it that Basspalle and Pates did not have to run for first. Herold was hit and took a base, but died on second. Hay got a single, and Mason was hit. Edwards got hit and the bases were full. Grassman got a good hit, and on a fumble by Basspalle, the visitors' third base, Hay, Mason and Edwards all came in. Grassman landing on third, Poissall got a single and Grassman got home, while Poissall was out trying to get second. Runs four for the Red Sox and nothing for the visitors. While this looked bad for the visitors they were playing good ball, and were all satisfied with the decisions of Umpire J. M. Cunningham.

The third, Harris, Hoffman and Etter all struck out, while with the home boys Herold and Simpson struck out. Hay had a single, and Mason struck out. The fourth for the visitors was McIvor on first, with a hit for Ludwig and on which he finally got to second, but Feeny and Jungmas were out on Jungmas' fly. The game was filled with good feeling, and being as the weather was so warm it was necessary for Hay to do a good deal of fanning and he was willing. Hoffman, the pitcher for the Register Company, was a sport, too, and did his share, but in the eighth it looked as though the visitors would get a run, when Pates, the catcher for the Register people, got a hit which netted him third, but alas, he died there. In the latter part of the eighth, Mason added another run and the people were on their way home. Pates was an all-right catcher, and all did well, but were a little light for the home boys, but barring the four runs in the second, would have been a good game of ball.

BREAKS AND DISLOCATES ARM.

Last Saturday, while Master Glen Renner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Renner of this city, was assisting in the threshing at the home of Glen Wiles, he received an unfortunate injury to his arm. He was hastened to the office of Dr. Flynn, who found a fracture of one of the bones of the arm, a dislocation of the elbow and the bending of another of the bones of that member. It was thought best that an X-ray examination be made of the fracture and he was taken to Omaha yesterday, where the examination was made. Mr. Renner and wife, with the little patient returned home last evening, and while the arm is painful, they have hope of its entire recovery in time.
