Funeral Will be Held at Henderson Tomorrow—Leaves Wife and Daughter, Aged 13.

From Thursday's Daily.
 As a result of injuries received a few days ago in an automobile accident, "Bud" Smith, the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Smith of this city, died at noon yesterday at his home in Henderson, Iowa. His death occurred just two days after the fatal accident. ### WILL BEGIN WORK ON THE OREAPOLIS EMBANKMENT

From Thursday's Daily.
 W. S. Crissman of Omaha, an engineer for the Burlington, was in this city today, having come to Oreapolis for the purpose of looking after to begin of the building of the dike which the company is to put in just above the Y which connects the Omaha track and that ground directly west. The contractors Griffiths and Co., of Omaha were to be there to begin with the work, but for some excuse did not come, and after having gotten tired of waiting Mr. Crissman came to town. The work is to be commenced at once and pushed as rapidly as possible that the work may be completed before the setting in of winter, as it is to protect the property when the ice shall go out in the spring. The embankment is to have a breadth on top of eighteen feet, and be of sufficient height to keep all the water in the river with the ice as well. The overflowing of a good portion of the tracks at that place with water and ice cakes has caused much trouble heretofore.

The evening was added to by the serving of a three course luncheon, which was enjoyed by those present, and which was most delightful.

TWO MEN FINED THIS MORNING

One Unable to Liquidate and is Returned to Jail to "Lay Out" Fine of $50 and Costs.

From Friday's Daily.
 Last evening was the climax of a disposition which has been growing on George Taylor, the man who has been draying about town for some time past. Throughout the day he was getting on a high lonesome and by evening he was feeling more like scrapping than singing songs, so was pretty particular about letting Chief Barclay run him in. He fought like a Trojan, and for defense used both teeth and toenails. He grasped the chief's wrist in his mouth, leaving marks upon it that resembled an encounter with the sword of a Turk. The chief finally landed him in jail, where he spent the night in meditation, making high resolves for his future conduct.

This morning, feeling a little different about the matter, he pleaded guilty to being drunk and was fined by Judge Archer $10.00 and costs, amounting in all to something like thirteen dollars. Upon promise of payment he was paroled until he shall have paid the same. The arm of Chief Barclay is pretty sore yet from the bite, and he has had it cared for by a physician.

CELEBRATED IOWA ELECTION RETURNS—ARRESTED HERE

Last evening Harry Ackerman, of Omaha, dropped down into Plattsmouth, somewhat the worse for indulgence in the stuff which intoxicates, but does not build up the tissues of the body. His condition was such that it was difficult to conceal it from the critical eye of the police, and in mingling with the citizens of Plattsmouth he emphasized the fact that he had imbibed too freely, with the result that Chief of Police Barclay gathered him in.

When the Chief invited Mr. Ackerman to take a ride in the blue car, the intoxicated man had a pair of shoes in his possession, but when they arrived at police headquarters, the shoes were missing. Chief Barclay asked about them, and Ackerman denied knowing anything about them. Convinced that he had tossed them from the car, Barclay retraced the route traveled and found the two shoes, which, however bore no relation to each other further than the fact that they were both of bronze color and for feminine wear. The intoxicated man was lodged in jail to meditate for a while and the shoes are being held by Chief Barclay.

This morning, on complaint of County Attorney Cole, Mr. Ackerman was arraigned before County Judge A. J. Beeson and pleaded guilty to being drunk, saying that he was so badly intoxicated that he did not know whether he had taken men's or women's shoes, but admitted that he had taken some. He received a fine of $50 and costs, which he was unable to liquidate and he was sent back to jail. Ackerman pleaded with the judge to release him, offering his watch as security, but Judge Beeson told him that the office was not an installment house, and that he would have to either pay the fine or remain in jail at the rate of $3 per day until it shall be thus paid.

Verily, the way of the transgressor is hard. Better leave the "Squirrel" and "Forty Rod" brands of whiskey alone as they invariably get one into trouble.

From Thursday's Daily.
 Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Wilber of west of Mynard, were visitor in Omaha this morning going to do some shopping at that place.
