tained for the past years. Mr. Wagner will take charge of the place on the 28th of this month and will be ready for business at the new place on December 1st. Mr. Wagner will not discontinue the Wagner Cafe, which he is conducting at this time, but will run it in connection with the Hotel, and will thus be able to care for the wants of the local and traveling public better than if he only had one place. It is to the interest of every business man, and every line of business that the leading hotel of this city should be one of the first class in every respect.

In this as in every thing which interest and goes to make up a better town, let every man get behind the proposition and make this venture a pronounced success.

AFTER 40 YEARS SEPARATION.

From Friday's Daily. Mr. Henry Zipperly of Pekin, Illinois, arrived in this city this morning and is visiting at the homes of his former school boy friends, the Hill brothers west of the city. Today he was in the city with G. P. Hill, with whom he went to school near Pekin over forty years ago. Time has changed the boys to men, and the country where they lived, has also changed. Mr. Zipperly is now making his first trip to this place, and thinks this one of the greatest places in the country. We are sorry he has been so long in making the discovery. Thousands of Cass county have known it for years.

From Friday's Daily. J. M. Roberts of the J. M. Roberts Construction Company, arrived a few days since from Lincoln, and has begun work on the Chicago Avenue, sewer, and is making the diet fly. In a short time they will be able to use more men if they can be had. They desire to get the work done if it is possible before the ground freezes. If this is done they will have to hustle for old Beras, is liable to throw a few handful of snow in our direction now any day.

It Will Be The Wagner Hotel

From Friday's Daily. Beginning with the first of December the Riley Hotel, which has been for something over a quarter of a century, will have gone the way of all the Earth, and in its stead will have been born an entirely new creation, "The Wagner Hotel", which will be operated by Fred Wagner, proprietor of the Wagner Cafe. As per the announcement in the Journal of yesterday, the Hotel Riley has been sold to a firm Olson & King, of Minneapolis, who have in turn rented the hotel to Fred Wagner of this city. Mr. Wagner some time since took hold of the Wagner Restaurant, and has made such a success of it that his patrons can no longer be accommodated at the place where he is and the Wagner Cafe, while in its appointments are a No. 1 the place has not space for the accommodations which the new Wagner Hotel will afford. That the proprietor of the Wagner Cafe has made good, is an assurance that he will make the new place one which will be a credit to this city and which will have the same high tone, which the Wagner Restaurant has maintained for the past years.

Hon. R. B. Windham Tells of Vicksburg Trip

Gives Impressions and Experiences of the Great Peace Jubilee and Tells of Historic Places

From Friday's Daily.

Last evening at the parlors of the Methodist church, were gathered a large number of the soldiers who are located at the Rifle Range north of the city, to write letters, to enjoy the singing, which was furnished by the chorus, led by Mrs. E. H. Westcott, and which was fine and to listen to the story of Vicksburg, Corinth, Shiloh and Camp Funston, as told by the Hon. R. B. Windham.

Besides the soldiers a number of the members of the Young Men's Bible Class, were present to enjoy the description of the battles, and of the Peace Jubilee. Mr. Windham was just in the mood for story telling, and beginning with the trip to the historic Battlefield, he told how he and that other irreplaceable singer, Thomas W. Glen, enlisted, and the journey to the south land, by their songs of cheer, beginning with, "Marching through Georgia". They had gone from car to car on the train and started the boys singing, and when they had gotten through the whole train was one human orchestra.

Arriving at the city of Vicksburg, they found the extensive preparations had been made for them, with every thought of their comfort, both for the boys of the north and the south. Tents every where, with some as high as 1600 cots in them, and with the most of them as high as 300. The whole town was sewered, and a hospital for the care of the soldiers had been erected, but thanks to the good sanitary conditions which existed, and due to the thought in the preparations, there were but four to occupy the hospital.

Mr. Windham remarked that this was the second great reunion of the north and the south, since the war of over fifty years ago, and one of the grandest successes which he had witnessed in his seventy years of living. Illinois had the most soldiers of any state, while Nebraska was the next, and Nebraska was the only state which made an address at the re-union.

There were thirty cars filled with veterans from this state which went to swell the large number of people at the encampment. The portion of the encampment, which was occupied by the Union soldiers was called Camp Grant, while the portion which was occupied by the Confederates was called Camp Pemberton. Speaking of the way in which the boys were fed he said, that there was plenty to eat, and always different things with one exception that was they always had prunes, probably to keep the boys full of prunes. They had their breakfast at 6:30, and dinner at 12:30, supper at 5:30. They had bread, both white and corn, hot biscuits, rice, beans, and meats of all kinds, puddings, pies, and everything which could be imagined.

Besides the veterans there were fifteen hundred of our soldier boys, who were there for police duty, and to assist the veterans to anything which they might desire, and there were also 800 boy scouts for page duty and to run errands, and any other thing which might be desired. The encampment was held at Military Park, which is about three miles from the city of Vicksburg. Mr. Windham said that the people there were intendedly loyal now to the stars and stripes. In the Na-
