PRESIDENT HOLDEN'S CIRCULAR LETTER ON THE LINE OF DEFENSE

From Friday's Daily.
The following communication and circular letter from Mr. Roope to Supt. Baird, of the Burlington Shops in this city, is a matter of vital interest to the employees of the shops and the general public, and to the interests of our readers we are publishing the letter and circular in full:

"Your attention is called to circular letter of President Holden dated Oct. 23rd wherein he quotes letter written by the Honorable Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, to Mr. W. H. Hays, Chairman of the Indiana State Council of Defense, and also quoting recent decision of the public service commission of New Hampshire. I urge that all employes as well as the public be acquainted with the substance of this letter."

Copy of circular referred to is attached. Will you please see that all concerned are informed of the substance of this letter.

Yours truly,
T. ROOPE.

CHICAGO, BURLINGTON & QUINCY
R. R. CO., OFFICE OF THE
PRESIDENT, CIRCULAR LETTER.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 23rd, 1917.
To All Officers:

Incorporated below is copy of letter written by the Honorable Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War and Chairman of the Council of National Defense, to Mr. Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Indiana State Council of Defense, dated Oct. 1st, 1917.

October 1st, 1917.
Mr. Will H. Hays, Chairman, Indiana State Council of Defense, Indianapolis, Ind.

Dear Mr. Hays: The Council of National Defense has considered the question you raise in your recent letter as to the attitude which should be taken relative to improvements, public and otherwise, which involve large construction work, and recommends as follows:

Every effort that this country is capable of making should be applied to bring the war to a speedy and successfully conclusion. The resources of the country in a general way may be said to consist of men, money and material, and during the period of the war any new enterprise or undertaking should be tried and justified by the text: Will the men, money and material so applied best contribute in this way to the winning of the war?

New enterprises which are not fundamental to the efficient operation of the country's necessary activities should not be undertaken. This will not result adversely upon business or conditions of employment because every man and every resource will be needed during the war. All effort should be reoriented to help win the war.

Very truly yours,
NEWTON D. BAKER,
Secretary of War and Chairman,
Council of National Defense.

Following is extract from recent decision of the Public Service Commission of the state of New Hampshire:

But above and controlling all other consideration, is the fact that this country is now in a state of war, and among the most important instrumentalities for the successful conduct of the war is our railroad system.

Every effort is being made to coordinate the railroads of the country into a single system, under a single head, in such wise as to make available for each, as needed, the resources of all. The strain laid upon the railroads by the demands made upon them for the transportation of men, materials and supplies is stupendous. It has come upon them at a time when their facilities and equipment have already proved inadequate for the handling of existing business and when all our producers of the needed equipment and facilities are straining every nerve to meet the requirements of the Allied armies at the front. And with us the situation is aggravated by the fact that this unparalleled strain has fallen upon a bankrupt railroad.

We do not say we will in no case order expenditure by our railroads not directly promotive to the conduct of the war.

But it should be understood that so long as the public receives a service reasonably approximately that to which it was accustomed in times of peace, and where the public safety is not manifestly and imminently endangered, we cannot be expected to order our railroads to expend large sums of money on improvements having no tendency, directly or indirectly, to enable them better to carry on what is now their supreme business, the business of war or to facilitate the distribution of food, fuel and the other necessities of life.

Improvements desirable in times of peace, for the purpose of peace will have to wait until peace comes. The policy of the governmental authorities, as so well expressed in the above, should meet with the hearty co-operation of all officers and employees of this Company. Transportation facilities of the country must primarily be devoted to the prosecution of the war, and every case must be taken to avoid unnecessary use of labor, engines, cars and materials.

It is also important that the public be correctly informed as to our attitude and understand that improvements in depot facilities, industrial side tracks, increased passenger and freight train service, and all other additions or improvements that are not essential to operation of the railroads must be deferred, not for the purpose of economy in money expenditure, but to conserve labor and materials.

I hope that you will see to it that this is done.
HALE HOLDEN,
President.

The Mortal Remains of Edward McCulley Laid to Rest by Loving Hands.

From Friday's Daily.
This afternoon at two o'clock was held at his late home the last rites over the mortal remains of Edward McCulley, who lost his life, in the Burlington sewer cave-in of a few days since. The services were conducted by the Rev. H. G. McCuskey, of the First Presbyterian church of which Mr. McCulley was a member, as he was also a member of the young men's bible class of that church's bible school. Many of the friends and relatives of the young man were in attendance, but his uncle Henry Zuckweiler, with whom he made his home during most of his life, was not able to be in attendance, while Mrs. Zuckweiler and Mr. P. V. McCulley, the father, who lives at Ventura, California, was not able to be present. The interment was made at Oak Hill Cemetery west of the city.

MRS. H. WAINTROUPE RETURNS HOME

From Friday's Daily.
Yesterday evening Mrs. H. Waintroupe, who has been at the hospital at Omaha for the past three weeks, returned home, after having undergone the operation for the removal of gall stones and been treated therefore since. Mrs. Waintroupe, while not as strong as she would desire to be showed much vitality in being able to walk from away up in the Burlington yards down to the station, for a car. Her many friends in this city will be pleased to learn that she is able to come to her home, and to know that she is on the road to recovery. Mrs. Charles Kirsh, her daughter-in-law accompanied her mother home, and kindly assisted her on her trip.

A BRIDGE FOREMAN HAPPY.

From Friday's Daily.
This morning notwithstanding the gloom on account of the snowstorm making things look dark, there was a ray of sun shine and it came from the countenance of Haywood Ellege, and all on account of a little girl, which came during the night to ask shelter, and a home with the Ellege family. This was given and there is much rejoicing on account of it. Grandmother and grandfather J. B. Higley are taking a hand in the merrymaking, and this makes the whole household very pleasant.

Chronic constipation may be permanently cured by taking Chamberlain's Tablets and observing the plain printed directions with each bottle.

THE NEW SELECTIVE DRAFT LAW

From Friday's Daily.

With the putting into operation of the new selective draft law there is being required a large amount of extra work, so much so that it is impossible for the force which the law has provided to do the work. The government is asking the legal and medical fraternity to organize and offer their services for the purpose of helping to get the work done. Both professions are supposed to be most in an advisory, but besides this there will be much work to do which will be of a clerical which is very heavy. President Wilson has recently appointed boards for the purpose of organizing the legal fraternity, and has designated as the board for that purpose in this county Mathew Gering, chairman, and D. O. Dwyer of this city and C. E. Tefft as associate members. They are to organize the entire bar of Cass county for work, of which there will be a great volume to do. The county has been made into districts and as near as possible containing about fifteen hundred registrants.

The medical fraternity is to be organized in the same way, which is to furnish assistance to the local exemption boards as they may require. Besides this there is a large amount of work to do which is of a clerical character. This the government is asking its citizens to do where they can. The Local Boards have piles of blanks to do, which one with an ordinary education can do and a day or so by those who can give will be greatly appreciated. For this work there is no pay, your government is depending upon your patriotism for the doing of the work.

Come to the court house at the office of the county clerk and offer your services for a day or something like that and a number of persons will in a manner help the work along nicely.

There is to be about sixteen hundred envelopes addressed, and that many blanks filled out to accompany the Questionnaire, besides reports and blanks to fill which makes the work so great that the force which is provided cannot do it. In the last page of the Questionnaire there is an affidavit which has to be filled out by the one who swears to it, and in their own hand writing, this has to be stamped with a rubber stamp on all of the blanks which go out and this is a work that any one can perform. To those who have the time to offer this work to the government, probably you can do this when you could do nothing else.
