BIGGEST SUCCESS EVER ATTEMPTED HERE

RED CROSS FAIR CAME TO GRAND CLOSE SATURDAY NIGHT—EVERYONE TIRED.

HANSOME SUM IN TREASURY

All Worked Hard to Make Successful This Most Worthy Enterprise—A Review Later.

Although the Red Cross Fair came to a close Saturday night the work of tabulating the receipts and arriving at a definite figure as the net result of the three days' work is not yet far enough complete to permit of publishing a statement of the same in today's Journal. Suffice to say, however, the Fair was in every way a grand success, the weather having been all that could be desired. The crowds held up well and a grand climax was reached Saturday night. The receipts continued to pile up until now it is safe to say that considerable over $3,000 will be realized by the ladies through their efforts and those of the Elks and other friends of the Red Cross. And everyone who spent a penny or donated anything to the cause is included among those who loaned aid toward making the Fair the success it proved to be.

That the Fair surpassed the expectations of even the most optimistic is quite evident. But many there who labored hard and long and who yesterday and today feel somewhat aged as a result of their unusual activity. On the part of each one however there is a spirit of gladness at having been able to help in so great and good a work as this. One of the most pleasing features of the three days' entertainment was the big parade of Friday evening, with the county and city bond flags were raised. Many were in from the country and surrounding towns that night to help participate in the occasion. Saturday was another big day and the one which counted up the strongest in the final summing up of receipts, they being far greater on that day than either of the two preceding ones.

Review of the Booths.
The Candy booth, presided over by Miss Bernice Newell and her able assistants was located in the Elks home at the entrance to the ball room and did a thriving business, dispensing home made sweets right and left as long as they were able to make the stocks hold out, and at a price which we heard a number say was far too cheap.

The Refreshment booth, which was in charge of Mrs. Frank Gobelman, was flanked against the billboard to the south of the Elks home and the ladies assisting there were kept busy handing out sandwiches and coffee to a hungry, but good natured crowd and it is estimated that when the returns are figured up this booth will show a very pleasing balance.

The "Hif the Kaiser" stand, a fun and amusement only device, was in charge of a number of young men who worked hard and long, and the way the balls were thrown at the hole representing the heart of the "Beast of Berlin" presaged the knocking of the allied shells against the capital of the Fatherland at a not far distant date. The efforts of those conducting this stand were so successful that the money taken in will add handsomely to the sum cleared through other concessions.

The ice cream and soft drink stand was conducted by Mrs. H. A. Schneider, with the assistance of a lot of men and women and even then was not able to pass out the goods a bit too fast to accommodate the thirsty crowd. Saturday night they got so busy that they were unable to spare a single one of their workers to dispense a line of drinks at the Eagle hall dance, although they had intended to do so. The cool and refreshing drinks they served were a source of delight to the crowd as well as one of revenue for the Fair. Opposite the refreshment stand, in the street was the Country Store and Saturday morning it was moved out from the sidewalk's edge to near the center of the street the better to accommodate the throng that gathered thereabouts each night. Paddles sold rapidly during the early hours of the evening and the wheel was almost constantly spinning. Later as interest in the paddles died down, a part of the remaining stock was auctioned off, after which the paddle proposition again did a thriving business. Mrs. E. J. Richey was the manager of this institution which will add several hundred dollars to the net results of the fair.

The White Elephant Booth, located at the north of the Elks home was a very popular place among shoppers as almost anything could be bought there. Mrs. Frank Dunbar and Mrs. C. A. Rosencrans were the managers of this institution and so thoroughly had they solicited articles that their stocks showed little depletion during the first two days as a result of the inroads of heavy purchasing. There weren't many idle moments about the White Elephant. The Flower booth, with Mrs. W. E. Rosencrans in charge had flowers all along the north side of the Elks home and it was seldom but they were doing a thriving business selling button-hole and corsage bouquets, cut flowers and potted plants for the home and otherwise engaging in making money for the cause.

The Fancy Work booth, in charge of Mrs. R. A. Bates was situated to the extreme north of the grounds. Here with an abundance of help and a large stock of goods, the enterprising manager did a fine business notwithstanding the fact that fancy work is a rather unsaleable line for such an occasion. As a result of selling chances on many of the larger articles and otherwise disposing of the smaller ones, the receipts from this department were all that could possibly be hoped for.

The Market which was under the guidance of Mrs. Emmons Plak, was ably conducted in the Red Cross work rooms and as a producer of revenue proved itself the equal of other concessions about which there were larger crowds constantly gathered. Most all who visited the Market, however, went to buy and they did. The ladies there worked hard and were rewarded with a very good business.

Entertainment Features
Principal among the Entertainment features was the vaudeville in the building across the street from the Elks home. Here on the first two nights of the fair pleasing local entertainers amused the crowd for the small admission price of 10 cents and played to packed houses. Saturday a quartette and a single entertainment came from Omaha and although the features presented were easily worth 25 cents, it was decided to hold the price at a dime. Five successive shows were played to literally packed houses Saturday evening and the Saturday receipts of the vaudeville show are declared to have exceeded $75. The vaudeville throughout the three days was under the direction of Mrs. Helen Goehner, and the receipts attest the popularity of the shows.

The two dances held at the Elks home and at the Coates hall each did a very lucrative business, the receipts at the former being something over $40 while at the latter exactly $74 was realized.

CASS COUNTY FARM BUREAU NOTES

From Tuesday's Daily.

Plant Corn Thicker.
In all probability much of the corn planted this year will not test above 75 per cent germination. This is likely to result in a somewhat thinner stand than desired if planted at the rate customary in years when nearly all of the seed would grow.
