VISIT AFTER 19 YEARS ABSENCE

G. Knapp Formerly Master Mechanic of H. & S. Ry. in City For a Few Hours.

A short, little old man, with snow white hair, wandered around on our streets Wednesday after an absence of nineteen years, his name was G. Knapp, he was formerly master mechanic of the H. & S. railroad, with headquarters in Shenandoah.

He found some of his old friends and companions and renewed their acquaintance and stated that his present home was Plattsmouth, Neb., and that he was here with some friends on an auto trip.

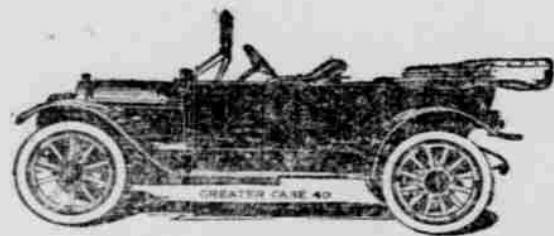

When asked if Shenandoah looked natural, he passed this remark, "Why, I would not have known the place; my, how it has grown; a regular city now. I can find a few of the old places that I used to know so well, but most of them have been rebuilt and the new buildings change the appearance. I am glad to see Shenandoah has done so well.—Shenandoah World."

WILL HELP HARVEST IN KANSAS.

From Thursday's Daily.

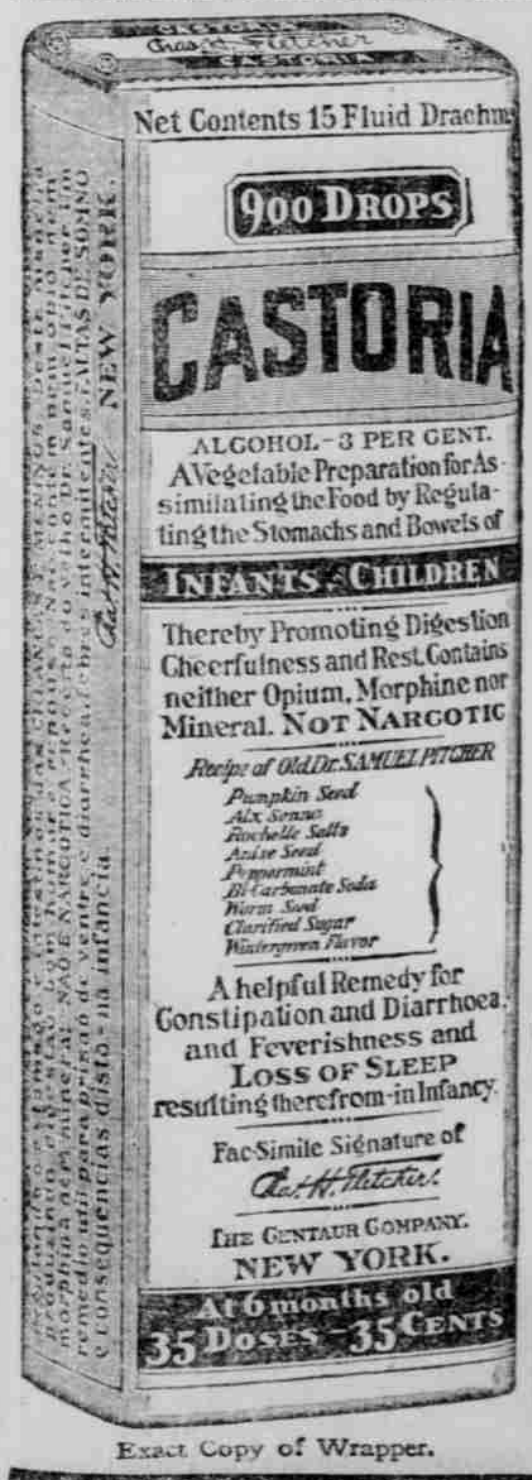

James Sprecher departed this morning for the harvest fields of Kansas, where he will enlist his services in securing the wheat which is being grown in that state. James is a good worker, and will find lots of work there to do, which will count for much just at this time, and the work which he is putting there before the time comes to go, will count for just as much as when he shall to the service of the government.

R. C. Thomas and wife departed this afternoon for Brownsville, where they will visit with the mother of Mr. Thomas, Mrs. Sarah Thomas for over Sunday.

"Chautauqua Trained" Autos!

Most of the Autos in this vicinity had the "Chautauqua habit" last summer—especially those owned by people outside of the city limits. So you who own machines just get in and "step on 'er" and you will arrive at the Big Chautauqua Tent on High School Hill—June 28 to July 3. Better, bigger program than last year. Season tickets $2.00 and $1.00, plus 10% war tax. Secure your tickets early and thus help the Second Annual Chautauqua "over the top" early in the game.
