HAKE IT LIBERTY DAY AS WELL

As a Drive For Liberty Bonds, and For Getting the Funds For the War.

From Saturday's Daily.

We are at this time entering to the fourth liberty loan, which looks like we would whollop the arch enemy of mankind, the Kaiser, or in other words the representative of the magnate of the lower regions. There was never a dollar which you have spent or invested which will he of more worth to you than the one which you now purchase Liberty Bonds with. The president has issued a proclamation, asking that this day be set aside, for the purpose of attending to this business of furnishing the funds for the fighting this war for Humanity. Suppose we did not win this war and save civilization, where would be our Fourth of July, our Decoration Day. our Christmas or Labor days. They would have gone the way of the world. Get together, celebrate this day, and do the part of an American and do it well at that.

per Syndicate.) "Good luck, good luck," said Jack Carter to himself as he came across a letter for Alice Vinton. "Now I shall have a chance to sell some Thrift stamps." Happily he started on his route, his mail bag feeling like only half its weight on account of that one

The Vinton homestead reached, he was conscious of rather a strange sensation round his heart, and after pressing the bell he hastily drew out his handkerchief to conceal his embarrassment. In answer to the ring, Alice appeared, countenance beaming, and to our people. They will make their arrayed in a lace cap and blue house dress. To Jack, angels never could be more beautiful, and as he handed her the letter he stammeringly inquired "if she wished for more Thrift stamps to-

"No, thank you," Alice hastily replied. "It's a beautiful morning, isn't it?" "Yes," said Jack, but it is doubtful if she heard the answer, as the door had closed and Alice had gone.

Some minutes later, Grace, the the friends and neighbors of Mr. and satisfactory, they were given certain younger sister, returned from the gro-Mrs. Roy Smith, gathered at their credentials that permitted a legal cers to find Alice much depressed. Upon inquiry she confessed it was all on account of Jack Carter and Thrift

"I bought four from him last week just because I was ashamed to refuse him. He says we should be patriotic and save for Uncle Sam, and while I agree with him, I feel that mother's doctor bill should be settled first; but of course I could not tell him that. The the door open so he can throw the mail in the hall, as I cannot refuse him

"No, Alice," said Grace emphatically, "we can't do that. We'll have to think up some way to save the money, for while it is for a mighty good purpose, we are saving that much for our-

Grace started her housework while Alice left for her office, each promising to think up some way out of the difficulty. At noon they compared plans. Grace's was to fix over their last year's hats, while Alice's was to hold an embroidery sale, "You know, Grace, there is the rose sofa pillow that I made during the winter, we could sell chances on that, and then I have a new idea too; I shall get some white satin ribbon and embroider miniature service we will sell for 25 cents apiece." Wondition, and hopes to be well in the derful! wonderful! exclaimed Grace,

Busy days followed for the Vinton girls; invitations were sent to all their friends and industriously both worked arranging chance cards and embroidering book-marks.

The great night finally arrived. Alice, her cheeks aglow from the excitement of the evening, looked perfectly beautiful in a neat pink flowered muslin dress and a few tiny pink rosebuds tucked among her rich brown curls. Grace was equally as attractive in a snow-white muslin dress, with dainty blue bows on both apron and cap, gayly chatting to each one as she busily served tea and cookies. "Every bookmark sold and only two chances remaining," Alice announced triumphantly. "I'll take them both," said Jack Carter, and for him they were lucky chances, for the very last one drew the much-coveted pillow. Dancing in the spacious dining room was then enjoyed until a late hour. "We'll call Jack in Monday morning." said Alice, "if he has no mail for us, and how proudly we shall purchase three big War Savings stamps, and the remainder we will put into Thrift

"And a banner to hang in the window, too," added Grace, who believed in advertising their good fortune.

Monday morning came and with it the postman. Alice, all radiant, asked for the desired stamps. Jack's heart beat so fast he could scarcely calm himself, so completely surprised was he at day an dealled upon all citizens to rection of the Liberty loan commitmaking such a big sale to Alice. Yes, I Filed for County Judge

The reason, because I desire to be elected to the position. In seeking the place, I feel that is a right all have, in aspiring to such a position. I have the assurance, that both myself and my competitor are well qualified for the office. I desire to treat him fair, and could do no other way, as we were both admitted to practice at the same term of court. I have given him my support and vote five of the seven times he has been a candidate for the place. I cannot support him for the sixth time, as I have to look to my own success.
