From Saturday's Daily.

On Saturday, September 21, Congressman Reavis, of this district. who has recently returned from the battle front in France, addressed the house on what he saw there on those Idaho, recently. Mrs. Cochran says dispatch, reviewing the speech, says:

"The speech, wholly extemporaneous, although Mr. Reavis had familiarized himself with many of the salient points by reason of other speeches he had made to different organizations since his return from France brought him an ovation at the hands of his colleagues unsurpassed at this session or for that matter at previous sessions. Members on both sides of the chamber stood for several minutes cheering the speaker, for a new orator had been born in that same hour and a quarter. All semblance of order in the house was thrown to the winds as Reavis concluded his wonderful tribute to General Pershing and the thrilling story of heroism he had seen displayed by our boys 'over there' and the touching references going in the hospitals he had witnessed and the lofty ideals displayed results. by them brought tears to many eyes. "He told a story of a red-headed, freckle-faced hero whom he had seen n a base hospital, a Christian boy, suffering uncomplainingly from gunlater, whose high ideals made an inat the hospital at Kirksville, with dellible impression on his mind. And a couple of patients, for the past that story, told with simple though house gulp down its tears, has brought Mr. Reavis telegrams and ers and sisters thanking him for his tribute to their 'red-headed, frecklefaced Christian boy, who died a hero for world democracy.'

Congressman Focht, in the Lewis ton, Pa., Saturday News, says of Mr.

"A few days ago Congressman Reavis, of Nebraska, and who has ust returned from the battle front in France, delivered the most thrilling and truly soul-stirring speech on what he saw that has yet been heard on the subject of war. Passionately patriotic, Mr. Reavis dealt with the subject from every angle and view his hearers with his profound elohis hearers with his profesound eloquence.
