Reserve Freedom Of Action.

The allies reserve to themselves, however, complete freedom of action when they enter the peace conference on the subject of the freedom of the seas.

It was further stated with reference to restoration of invaded territories that the allied governments understand that compensation will be made by Germany for all damage to the civilian population of the allies and their property as the result of the aggression of Germany 'by land, by sea and from the air."

The note now is on the cables. In 24 hours it should be in the hands of the Germans; in 48 hours the world may know whether an immediate end of the war is at hand.

Publication of the details of the armistice terms still is withheld. They may not be made known until he Germans have accepted or rejected them, as was the course followed by the allies in dealing with Bulgaria, Turkey and Austria. Only the details are in doubt, however, and no one questions that acceptance means abject surrender.
