

THE WAR IS PROBABLY OVER

THE WORK OF THE RED CROSS IS NOT, AND MUCH NEEDS BE DONE BY THIS UNIT.

A GREAT FIELD FOR PATRIOTISM

It is An Honor, As Well as a Duty To Be a Member of This Organization.

From Wednesday's Daily. Without the sacrificing work, which this institution for the relief of sufferings of the world, there would have been much more widespread suffering, and the death toll would have been more pronounced, than what it is. The work which has been done had been an expression of the patriotism, and the love of fellowman, but the real true American spirit of Christianity, expressed in action.

The war is over, that is the Armistice is signed, and to all observers, who have seen the collapse of the German and central powers, morale are convinced that the hydra headed monster War will not appear again for some time, for the treaty of peace when the time comes for its signature will be signed with more alacrity, than was displayed at the negotiation of the Protocol.

Still there remains much work to be done which comes in the sphere of the activities, of this society. We have over two million boys in France at this time, they are our boys, many of them wounded, and many to death, we continue and will continue to hear of many dying from wounds, and from disease, and they are needing the care now just as much as when the battle was raging. A nation wide movement is one now for the purpose of making every active loyal adult American either man or woman, a member of this order of mercy, who is to reconstruct this Nation, as to the ones who were affected. Remember it is not alone the bullets of the enemy, which make the ministrations of the Red Cross necessary. This Red Cross is a working band of True Americans, who have a mission to perform for humanity, will you fail to become a member and do your part just because your boy is not in the struggle, who is making this "Best of all governments in the world for you?"

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF "DADDY JIM" MANNERS?

From Wednesday's Daily. We have known a great many men with considerable forethought and men planning far into the future, but our old friend James Manners, for many years a resident of Cass county and mail carrier for the Murray route years ago, beats them all. For several years "Jim" has been a resident of Havelock, where he has been working in the Burlington shops, but at the same time has long been planning on the day when he should go to farming, and has rented a farm down near Alvo that he expects to move to in the early spring. Now we will tell why we think that he has a far advanced thought of the future. Sunday morning the stork visited his home and left in the care of Mr. and Mrs. Manners a pair of fine baby boys, who in years to come will about the two best farm hands that Jim could find, and in his old age who can carry all the cares of the Manners home. The mother and little ones are doing nicely, and we will wager a coon skin that Jim is about the happiest "daddy" in Havelock.

From Wednesday's Daily. Yesterday Mrs. Lieutenant Joseph Vlois, accompanied by the Lieutenant, departed for Kirksville, Mo., where she goes to enter the Oestopathic hospital for an operation for some trouble which she has had for some time, and which she desires to be free from. Mrs. Vlois had awaited until the time when Lieut. Vlois would be mustered out of the army, in order that he might accompany her to the hospital.

THERE ARE MANY CHRISTMAS TREES NOW

From Wednesday's Daily. With the weather as fine as May almost and the sun shining balmy and the soft winds coming from the south, and the song birds flitting from branch to branch, and a disposition of the boys to play marbles, it does not look like Christmas, notwithstanding its near approach. However there are a plenty of indications of the coming of the Christmas time in the increased activity in the line of all kinds of business whose goods might be used for Christmas presents. Also in the matter of the amount of Christmas trees which are on sale at all the stores in the city.

DID YOU NOTICE PHILIP'S WINDOW

From Wednesday's Daily. Well that is some of the handy work of Bruce, he keeps making the windows attractive and then after people have admired them for a short time, he tears them out and arranges another display ever more pleasing in effect if possible than the last one. And the goods are all just in time, and the store is just as well arranged inside as the windows would indicate. The goods kept by this prince of merchants, are well worth the looking at, and that is worth the buying also, and when once purchased, you will find them very serviceable as well as pleasing at first.
