FROM OTHER-SIDE OF WORLD

PLATTSMOUTH BOY WRITES TO E. H. WESCOTT FROM FAR OFF PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

TELLS OF TRIP OVER THERE

And Also Of Impressions Of the Country And Habits Of the Natives.

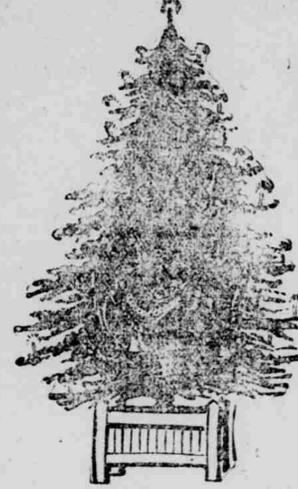

From Tuesday's Daily Private Charles Wittstruck of the Medical department at Fort Mills, Corregidor, Philippine Islands, writes to his friend E. H. Wescott, of what he thinks, of those islands, and expresses his opinion that swimming in the Missouri is better than in the Pacific:
Fort Mills, Corregidor, P. I., October 29th, 1918.

Mr. E. H. Wescott,
My Dear Friend:

I thought I would drop you a few lines, telling you how I am getting along, and of the country over here. I am well and getting along all right. How are you and all the Plattsmouth people. I am in a hospital, at this time, as a member of the medical corps, being transferred from the Coast Artillery about two weeks since. I liked the artillery very well, but suffered two sun strokes, as the tropical sun is sure hot, and as I could not stand it had to get out of it. In the medical department, I am out of the sun. I have charge of a ward next week, but let me tell you things have been busy in the hospital for some time, but many of the patients are now returning to duty, and that relieves the stress of work, which we have been having. I received five copies of our home town paper, today, and I sure was glad to see what was going on thought the papers were sent away last winter, and have been in the Philippine Islands since. I had thirteen letters yesterday and four today. My birthday was yesterday, October 28th. I was 18 years of age. I have seen 11 months service, and have purchased $150.00 in bonds, and am carrying $10,000.00 insurance. That looks like some patriotism don't you think so. I sent mother some silks from Manila and Corregidor, perhaps you saw them. There are very few white people here. We left "Frisco" harbor, about three o'clock on February 5th, and after the good old U. S. A. disappeared from our view behind the skyline, we did not see land again until we passed Leper Island, which we only saw from a distance. The next place was Honolulu, Hawaii, where we stopped, and took on coal and water. We were there for four days, and you bet we took in the city, seeing all the sights, visiting Upele Beach, which is a bathing resort. But let me tell you the Old Missouri, down from Main street in Plattsmouth beats it to a fare-you-well. The stones were so sharp, where we went I had sore feet for a long time. We thought we would get to see the Hulu Hulu Maidens. Ha! Ha! We sure were disappointed, for not a one did we spy in our 24 hours on shore. The first thing we did was to hit a restaurant, where we got some friends things to eat, as we had been eating stewed and boiled food for thirty-five days. Many of the boys were seasick coming over. I escaped this experience. But I must tell you we have to hand it to Honolulu, it is the swellest place I ever saw, with everything growing green, cocoa nuts, bananas and pine apples, all growing in profusion. I never saw its equal before. The state of California was a beautiful place, but the Islands have it stood off, you bet. Our next port was Guam, where we coaled, but did not land, but stayed over night and left the next afternoon. We reached Manila on March 12th, 1918, and have been stationed on Corregidor since. I did not like it very well either.

The natives live in bamboo huts, or shacks, with grass roofs, built on poles, they live on rice, dried fish and jerker crabou meat. A half dozen live on 15 pesa, or what would equal $7.50 U. S. money per month. Cheap living I tell you. You will remember Prof. N. C. Abbott, he told us the Pasig river was the dirtiest river in the world, and I can testify to that fact also. He was here some years ago. It was just like he told us. The Cholera was here, but not so bad lately. I was over to Manila and celebrated my birthday. Pretty place from a distance, but filthy when you get close to it. Must close, write soon.

CHARLEY WITTSTRUCK.
