HEALTH MAKES A MERRY CHRISTMAS

The real happiness of the Christmas-tide depends upon the health of the entire household. Homes where Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine is in favor will be full of rollicking songs. Triner's remedy banishes ill health and keeps you in good temper. It cleans the bowels, aids digestion and sharpens appetite. At all drug stores $1.10. And if rheumatism or neuralgia should signalize their undesirable coming, Triner's Liniment will help you to repel their attack. It is excellent also for sprains, strains, sore muscles or tired feet. Price 35 and 65 cents at drug stores, by mail 45 and 75 cents. If you need a gargle, try Triner's Antiputrin, a pleasant and highly efficient preparation. At drug stores 50 cents and $1.00, by mail 60 cents and $1.15. Joseph Triner Company, 1323-1343 S. Ashland Ave., Chicago, Ill.

TO PROSECUTE ALL DESERTERS FROM SERVICE

STATE PROVOST MARSHAL ANDERSON ATTENDS CONFERENCE IN WASHINGTON; DRAFT BOARDS THRU BY MAR. 1.

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 23.—Deserters from the military service are to be prosecuted. Provost Marshal Anderson of Nebraska was told at a conference of draft heads in 26 states with Provost Marshal Crowder and his assistants in Washington. Thousands of men classified as deserters actually served in the war, and some gave their lives in France, it was learned. It was explained that this is due to the fact that when questionnaires were sent to men who had been enrolled for the draft but who got into various branches of the service before they were called the documents were thrown away by their relatives in the supposition that nothing had to be done with them. When the questionnaire failed to come back these men were listed as deserters. It will require six weeks or two months more time for draft boards throughout the country to complete their records and finish up all of their work, so that the boards can be discharged. It is estimated by Washington officials in the War Department.

HENRY LAMPHEAR WRITES.

He Says He Can Shake Hands With Himself the Rest of His Life, and Say He is a Lucky Boy.

Somewhere in France, November 24, 1918.

My Dear Mother and All:

Will drop you a few lines to let you know I pulled through the war alive. This letter leaves me feeling pretty good, although I have been pretty sick for the past two weeks. I hope you are all well at home as we hear of so much sickness in the States. We are at Laneville now right across the Meuse river from Stinay one of the places you probably have read about but we are leaving soon. We are going to Germany I guess. I wish we were going back to the U. S. A. but no such luck. We have had some pretty tough times over here and had a few narrow escapes but outside of that everything is great. We were at Beaufort when the war ended, came pretty near getting me there. Got somewhere around 41 there in one day. I was just lucky, that's all. There were several times when they made me think of all the bad things I had ever done. I can think back now and if all seems like a dream. We were under shell fire about nine weeks, so I guess I've seen and done my part in this war. I can shake hands with myself the rest of my life and say, lucky boy. Well I look to be home soon, probably in January. I don't think they will keep us over here after peace is signed. I want to get back to New York by New Years Day if possible, for I want to start the New Year right, right across the states for So. Dak. Any place in the states would be home compared to this forsaken country over here. Of course, we haven't seen any country over here, but what was pretty well shot up, but now I guess we will get to see some real country, if we go up into Germany. If you have a big Xmas dinner, think of me, but don't think that I am not eating, for a cook always eats. If you write to Eave, tell her she can look for me any time. Tell her to have about a dozen pumpkin pies baked ahead and a loaf of home-made bread and some good butter would go good too. Well I suppose George and Roy will be coming home soon, probably before I do. There is not much more I can write, only leave the back door unlocked for I might wander in some cold night. I will have to close with a good place to sleep and plenty to eat, and plenty to wear. I am still a soldier of Uncle Sam.

Your son,
COOK HENRY LAMPHEAR.
Address: 89th Military Police Co., Am. E. F. France.

COMES HOME FOR A VISIT.

From Tuesday's Daily.

KNOCKS OUT PAIN THE FIRST ROUND

Comforting relief from pain makes Sloan's the World's Liniment!

This famous reliever of rheumatic aches, soreness, stiffness, painful sprains, neuralgic pains, and most other external twinges that humanity suffers from, enjoys its great sales because it practically never fails to bring speedy, comforting relief. Always ready for use, it takes little to produce without rubbing and produce results. Clean, refreshing. At all drug stores. A large bottle means economy.

face there about two months since. She comes home to visit with her mother and the remainder of the family, and to spend Christmas with them. Miss Stenner had with her a vase made from an exploded, 75 mm shell, which was fired in the battle of Verdun, which was sent her by her brother Leon Stenner.

The reporter viewed the vase which has 1918 VURDEN on its side, and besides the matter of it being souvenir, is a very beautiful piece of work. She has just recently heard from both her brothers Earnest L. Stenner and Leon Stenner, who are both in France at this time.

BACK FROM CALIFORNIA.

From Tuesday's Daily.

Last evening on the late train from Omaha, Bugler C. A. Marshall (Junior) arrived home from San Francisco, having started from there last Friday evening. When he had gotten comfortably seated, in his train, in popped Chester B. Briggs, and made himself comfortable for the trip, as well.

The boys traveled together, until they arrived at Cheyenne, where their ways diverged. June's ticket reading via the Union Pacific, to Omaha, while Burdette's read via Cheyenne and Denver. Mr. Marshall arrived home via Omaha on the train last evening, while Mr. Briggs went via Denver, and arrived about noon this morning, coming on the belated train number six of the Burlington. They have a ten days furlough, and are required to report for duty at the station at San Francisco on January 5, 1919. Some other of the boys may arrive tomorrow.

Chased by a German.

One of the boys at a training camp on receiving an order to be ready to leave camp for an eastern port for overseas went to bed. After lying down a few hours he became restless and got up on his hands and knees and yelled "Don't, don't," and then fell out of bed.

After he had been lying on the floor a while I woke him up and asked him what the trouble was, and shortly he said, "There was a German after me with a bayonet." He then got up and went to bed and saved wood the balance of the night.

On mentioning the incident to the boys in the morning we had a hearty laugh and this comrade of ours did not know what the laughter was about until he was told. He was asked if he remembered the incident of the night before, but he remembered nothing of it at all.

Flitters of the Air.

The newest airplane is a "flyplane" which is fitted to the aviator's body. The wings are locked on in such a way that the airman bears the weight of the machine on shoulders and hips. In flight he feels no weight but seems rather to be sitting on the machine. If these machines prove practicable they will be very useful, as they are so small that at a height of ten thousand or more feet they cannot be seen by the naked eye.

Increased Burdens.

"Why should these railroads keep charging more money?" asked the man who had just come in from Baltimore. "Dey's doin' more work," replied the tired porter. "Pears like every suit case weighs three times as much as it used to."

Resourceful.

"What are you going to do when your share of sugar is gone?" "Oh," said the girl whom nothing troubles, "I'll simply send to the confectioner's for a few extra boxes of candy."

Miss Lillian Baker and daughter

Miss Hazel Vroman were passengers to Omaha this morning, where they are looking after some business, for the day.
