The following letters have lately been received from their writers who are now in France, where they took part in the world war and contributed their bit to the defeat of the Hun hoards bent upon overrunning the world, and tell of their various experiences during the last weeks of the fight, as well as express the hope that they may be permitted to return home soon:

Nov. 29, 1918.

Dear Mother:

Well we are now settled down in a little village in Luxenburg, where we spent Thanksgiving day and ate Thanksgiving dinner. We were not lucky enough to get any turkey, so our battery went out and bought a nice pig and had it roasted and with what other things they bought, we had a fine meal. I don't think we will stay here long, but will move on towards the Rhine.

I certainly have seen some real battles during the four months I spent at the front. I was in the battle of Champagne July 14, the battle of the Marne July 18, the battle of St. Michel September 12th and the battle of Verdun November 1st. So you see the Rainbow division has been in some real battles.

I see by the papers they are sending the boys home as rapidly as possible, but don't know when this Division will get to go. Hope we are there to spend Christmas for that will be some Christmas to remember. Indeed.

Hoping this finds every one at home feeling fine, I am, with love,

ROBERT B. WILLI, B. F. 149, F. A.

Dagonville, France, Nov. 28. Dear Folks:

As this is Thanksgiving, and it being a holiday, I have nothing particular to do, so thought I would improve the time by writing you a few lines.

I don't know whether to think every one has forgotten me or if I have just had my letters "ditched," as I have not heard from any one since the last of September, so you will kind of have to excuse me if I don't write as often as I used to. Anyway there is not much to write about these old French towns. As far as our work now is concerned, it is simply waiting. I don't know what for, though—either we go into Germany or back to America. No one ever knows where he is going until he gets there.

Well, I guess I will tell you that I was on the western front from October 14th to November 10th, or the day before the Armistice was signed. Will say that the Dutch gave me a couple of good scares in one night. Four of us were laying outside when the Fritzies started shelling and in a short time the timber was full of flying shrapnell. The gas came over in waves and I happened to get a little of the (small) gas, which made me pretty sick for several days and a large number were sent to the hospitals. They have not come back as yet so I do not know how bad they were.

I hear they are sending them all home from the hospitals. I wish I could have gone now but anyhow I hope it will be soon. One day this week I saw a guy that was transferred to this company and he said he was in Camp Cody with the boys from Plattsmouth and came over with them. He said that Art Sampson was in this division and that he also helped to bury Matt Jirousek at sea. I could scarcely believe it, as this is the first I have heard of any Plattsmouth boy paying the price, but I guess it might happen to any of us, no one knows.

Well, I guess I will close for this time. Wishing I could be with you all. Best regards to everyone.

P. S.—Say, Frances, tell mother that it is no use for me to try to send a picture as you wouldn't know me, and as far as church, I have been to several French churches and if a man was at the front very long he never would forget his prayers.

I might be a little early, but you can't tell how long this will be on the way, so I wish you all a Merry Christmas. Give my best regards to all my friends.

PVT. JAMES LEPERT, 138th Inf. Hdq. Co., 35th Div., A. E. F.

Boullionville, France, Dec. 11. Dear Sister Edythe:

Received your and mother's letter the other day and as it is raining and no place to go will try and drop you a few lines.

We are now ready to take a vacation. We have started twice and they canceled it, so we are still living in hopes of going. There are 28 of us out of our company scheduled to go at one time.

Well, Sis, I sure would have liked to been in the state and saw the excitement, but in another way would not take anything in the world for the experience that I have had and the things I have seen. But so far as we boys celebrating when the armistice was signed, why there was nothing to it. The only difference was in the noise from the guns, as everything was quiet and the boys could walk up and down the road without keeping close to cover.

But I suppose that away from the front they had a big time. But as you know when a bunch of men lay in the trenches all the way from thirty to sixty days it does not make much difference. We had been in the trenches 37 days and when the armistice was signed we were in the woods near Fay-an-Hay. But we were all around between Fay-an-Hay, Pon-a-Mousson and also the St. Marie farm. We are now in billet that the Germans built along the side of a hill so we are living like humans instead of living in dugouts 45 feet under the ground. But I think I heard as many G. I. cans or big six shells as any of the rest. We headed the third army into Metz.

Well, Sis, I suppose that it will be some time before I will get to come back again, as we have been drawn in the army that will proceed to Germany, so I presume that the next letter you receive from me after I return from my furlough will be mailed inside of German soil.

Well, will close, as they are calling us out again to proceed on our furlough. With love, from your brother,

VERSATILITY OF STAR IS SHOWN IN DANCES

Nazimova, the great star of the Metro pictures, "Revelation," which will be presented at the Parmele theatre on next Tuesday and Wednesday, January 14th and 15th, shows her ability as an artistic interpreter of classic dancing in this photodrama.

Dressed as a bacchante, a priestess of Bacchus, god of wine and revelry, with leaves in her hair, a garland of grapes across her shoulders, with a goblet in one hand, and a cluster of grapes in the other, she performs "La Danse Bacchante," typifying the exuberant spirit of revelry of a Parisian cafe.

The great Nazimova executed this dance with true artistry and poetry of motion in graceful movements which were ideal for registration by the motion picture camera. It is said that the entire picture is one of the most perfectly filmed spectacles seen in Plattsmouth in many a day, and its appearance here should be heralded with capacity houses.
