Getting Rid of Coughs
The easiest and quickest way to get rid of a cold is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This preparation has been in use for many years and its value is fully proven. No matter what remedy you use, however, care must be taken not to contract a second cold before you have recovered from the first one, and there is serious danger of this. A man of middle age or older should go to bed and stay in bed until fully recovered. It is better to stay in bed three days at the start than three weeks later on.

The Clairmont Sector.
The Toastmaster then introduced with a few explanatory remarks, Mr. Edwin Hunter of Weeping Water, who gave a very able address on that portion of France in which his activities as a soldier of the United States Army were centered. This talk was one very instructive, and gave those who were not allowed to be in the war region during the fighting a better idea of the circumstances as they really were, at and near the battle front.
Over Here, Over There, Home Folks.
District Judge J. T. Beasley was the speaker to deal with the problem of conditions at the different times and different places, the end of a certain task seemed to be in sight.

Don C. York who was on the program at this place for a song, sang the sequel to the one which had been rendered earlier in the evening, "Down Where the Flag is Full of Stars," and which was "Home Again" this was a very fitting closing of the program, which had been replete with the choicest of good things.
Rev. H. G. McCluskey pronounced the benediction in a way which every one realized, that the guiding hand of the Father were over all our acts, and closed by asking the special benediction of Heaven, by giving the lives of those who were gathered for this occasion.

THE EIGHTH ANNUAL BANQUET SUCCESS

THE YOUNG MEN'S BIBLE CLASS OF METHODIST CHURCH HOLD FEAST.
SOLDIERS AND SAILORS THERE
Served by the Ladies of the Methodist Church. At the Church Parlor.
From Friday's Daily.

Notwithstanding the whole state covered by a howling blizzard, and the snow whirling in blinding sheets, with the wind skipping around the corners of the houses, still within and especially at the parlors of the Methodist church, when the time came for the beginning of the banquet, which marks the eighth year, that the practice has maintained of holding their annual get-together meeting and banquet. This class has been the means of welding an influence for good over the youth of this city, and many a man goes out into the activities of public life with the proud distinction of having been a member of the Young Men's Bible Class of the Methodist church of Plattsmouth.

The Banquet.
The tables were in a grand profusion, and what would have tickled the most fantastic tooth of the most particular epicure. As the banqueters stood by their chairs, the Rev. A. V. Hunter, pastor of the church, thanked the Father of all good gifts, for his watch, care of Nations, of individuals, and asked that in his providence that he would guide the destinies of the membership of the class that were that evening getting together, for the purpose of more fully and effectively doing the work which they have taken upon themselves to do, the extending of their influence for good over the young men of this city, and that every one who goes from this city may be one, a missionary for the cause of the Master, as well as an honor for the city from which he had gone. Midst strains of the sweetest music furnished by the Kroeher orchestra, the banqueters were then busy for some time discussing the delicacies prepared by the deft cooks of the ladies.

Response to the Toasts.
Superintendent of the city schools G. E. DeWolf, who has always proven himself capable of meeting all occasions as they are presented to him, in this instance has outdone himself, in the way he handled the position for which he was selected, that of toastmaster. He gave in a few words the reason for the feast which had called these three score and a half of young men just in the prime of active progressive manhood, he introduced the first speaker, the president of the Young Men's Bible Class, Jesse P. Perry, who spoke to the toast "Then and Now".
Mr. Perry did not use much time, but in concise and telling phrases called attention to the class as it existed before the beginning of the great World's war, which had called many a young man from his home, from Mother, Father, Brother, Sister, Sweetheart, and from the activities of society, church and business life, some never to return and many to come, maimed and wounded, but all to get another vision of life. He read the names of those who had answered their country's call to service, and after this had been completed the names of the two young men of the class, who have paid in full their devotion to country, Hugh Kearnes and Robert Jacks. Following the reading of their names, and in their honor two stanzas of the "Keep the Home Fires Burning" was sung, in a low strain, denoting the honor which to those brave lads, who gave their all for God, Home and Country.

Parting Shots.
Superintendent of the Sunday School, E. C. Hill who is soon to leave here for near Eeemer, where he is to engage in farming, and who spoke not alone on the fact of it being the closing of his work for the present with this church and school, but also an admonition to the ones who were his listeners, to the fact that their work, when just about completed should not receive any less care, energy or effective working because of the fact that things which were doing at home, the feelings which the people here held for the soldier, while Over There, he told of the conditions and what the boys were doing for their country, as well as for the world. "Home Folks" occupied a good portion of the attention of the speaker, who drew attention, the sacrifices in the home, the changed condition and he sense of apprehension which prevades the home.

"Where the Flag is Full of Stars"
The next speaker was to have been the pastor of the St. Paul's Methodist church of Lincoln, Dr. W. E. J. Gratz, but owing to the fact that the violence of the storm, had made it impossible to reach here, this number had to be omitted, and Don C. York who was to have given one number, was prevailed upon to furnish two. His selections were from Henry Van Dyke, the first being, "Down Where the Flag is Full of Stars." The song as produced by this excellent singer, touched every one with the patriotism, and the proud fact that they were Americans, feeling it in the fullest sense of the term.

Address by the Pastor.
Rev. A. V. Hunter, the pastor, then in a most eloquent and patriotic address, spoke for some time, bringing to the attention of his hearers the things necessary for the fullest enjoyment of citizenship in this country, and also in the Kingdom of the Master. His address was teeming with fine points of admonition, and good cheer, as well as encouragement.
