A professor has suggested that under the new amendment, a 4 per cent alcohol minimum should be fixed in the definition of an intoxicating liquor, thus leaving room for the manufacture of "an entirely satisfactory beer." It is easy to see what this professor is driving at. Only great self restraint kept him from suggesting a 40 per cent minimum, which might permit the

BOLSHEVISM.

Bolshevism asserts that the peopeople who work with their hands shall rule the people who do not and that the people who work with their brains shall not, because they have brains, obtain an advantage from the fact, whether it be an economic, political, or social bene-

Therefore, not only is a person who has acquired property or a competence a menace to the bolshevist republic, but a person who, having intelligence and education, might, because of them, obtain anything, also is a menace. The bolshevist theory is that all distinctions of intelligence must be eliminated-by shooting the intelligence, if necessary-in order that the unintelligent may possess what should be theirs-which is every-

Some time it may be possible for the entire mass to arise by levels reached by all the mass at the same time and to reach a common ground of intelligence—but the various levels must be reached by the whole mass at the same time.

If a bolshevist republic in Russia | side. were subjected to the pressure and competition of a democratic people in France or the United States, the competition of a people giving free play to the honest operations of intelligence and education, the bolshevist republic would suffer. A republic based upon the elimination of intellect cannot compete with republic based upon the encouragement of intellect.

We build school houses. The bolshevists shoot school teachers. The school teachers knew too much. A man knowing something will, or can, get more than a man knowing aothing. The procedure is to eliminate the man knowing anything and, therefore, to eliminate the nation knowing anything or permit ting the development and spread of

For this reason bolshevism plans an international republic. Its foreign propaganda is a propaganda of selfpreservation. Other nations must become bolshevist, the world must be reduced to a common level, or the bolshevist republic in Russia i dead .- Chicago Tribune.

STANDARDS OF LIVING MUST BE MAINTAINED

It is up to the worker in this reconstruction period to be reasonable in his demands. He cannot boost wages beyond what the business will stand. That has been strongly insisted on recently, and with reason. But there is the other

It is up to the employer to do his best to maintain labor standards. This is esssential as a matter of justice. It is essential further as a matter of good business.

The average worker at the prevailing wage scale is better off than he used to be in spite of the increase in prices. He has more comforts in his home. His family is able to get more out of life. thing would be radically wrong if the bulk of the people were not sharing in the advances made possible by modern industry and science. Every possible effort must be made to see that there is no backward movement.

This means that the employer must figure on how he can conduct | known: his business without wage reductions. There are cases, of where the wage increases were in the nature of bonuses based on artificial prices of commodities. Copper mining is an instance of this sort. A sliding scale of wages was provided so that the miners should share in the profits of the war scarcity of copper. Now that the emergency is over and copper is off. a reduction in wages may be in-

In the long run this policy is simply enlightened self interest. It is better for the country to have conditions should become so bad women with the market basket can that things could be kept going only by a general reduction of wages, the worker would doubtless bow to the inevitable. But with business continuing on a fairly normal course, the worker must be able to count on a fair share of the gains. If he cannot, then there is aroused a sense of injustice that is
