SENIORS GO ON ANNUAL A. W. O. L. TRIP

"SNEAK DAY" IS ONE ALWAYS FILLED WITH MEMORABLE HAPPENSTANCES.

BENT ON HAVING A GOOD TIME

Able Chaperoned by Miss Gretchen Mackprang, Class Sponsor—Took Their Lunch.

From Wednesday's Daily.
Today is Senior "Sneak Day" in the Plattsmouth High school. This annual event, always an occasion of pleasure to the participants promises to be none the less enjoyable this year.

Gathered at the Burlington station this morning were the happy, happy seniors, together with their class sponsor, Miss Gretchen Mackprang, who accompanied them on the trip to Oregopolis for a day's outing. There were numerous and divers parcels, bags and packages, containing edibles and near edibles for noon-day consumption.

On the faces of the pupils were smiles—miles of smiles and when the passenger train halted in front of the station the students piled on double quick.

We know they are enjoying this day of recreation to the limit. Why? Because we were kids once ourselves. And while their return this evening will probably not be marked with as lusty demonstration as was their departure this morning, they will be none the less happy—simply worn out from sheer exhaustion. Also it is nothing more than to be expected some of them will be camouflaged with a coating of tan, a few freckles and a blister or two as a result of their strenuous habit of living, but every one will avow when

TWO MORE PLATTSMOUTH BOYS HOME

THIS TIME ROBERT WALLING OF THE BALLOON SERVICE ARRIVING LAST EVENING.

CARL WOHLFARTH OF OLD 6TH

Who Has Been In America For Two Weeks, Returned to Platts-mouth This Morning.

From Wednesday's Daily.
It had been known that the balloon company had arrived at Omaha two days since, and all day yesterday the return of Robert Walling was looked for as it was supposed that he was discharged before arriving and could come on down home, where as a series of preliminaries had to be gone through before the boys were allowed to depart. Last evening he stepped from the evening train looking brown and strong, but his face radiant with joy at being able to be with the loved ones and home again. Not that he had not fared well and seen many sights while away, but that the home scenes and associations appealed to him stronger. Robert Walling saw service in both England and France and was overseas many months, always willing to do his portion, and returns home with ripe experience in the ways of the world beyond the horizon, which circumscribes the home scenes. He returns to take up the work at home with a broader view of the world and its opportunities.

This morning Carl Wohlfarth stepped off the train his eyes beaming with delight and face radiant with smiles as he grasped the hand of his father on his return after nearly two years of absence from the home and friends. Carl is looking the picture of perfect health though far from the round-faced boy from the high school who departed less than two years ago, but now in appearance, in fiber and all that goes to make one a man. This young American enlisted in the "Dandy Sixth" and went for training to Camp Cody, where he spent a number of months, and went over early last year, and has seen some of the most severe and taxing service in the war, returning home now glad the struggle is over and home and friends are replacing the army and camp life. He will take up the thread of civil life as laid down on his departure. The boys are glad to be back among us and we are also glad they are here and welcome them with an appreciation for what they and the others have done for this country and for the world.

Another One Comes Also.
Last evening from the south on the late Missouri Pacific train Sergeant Albert Godwin arrived, having been discharged from the service at Camp Funston last Monday. He is looking fine, and will make his home here. He has been with the Motor Truck Corps and prefers to find a position which would put to use the special training which he has had for nearly a year and a half in this line. Albert was somewhat disappointed in his army experience, as early in the training at Camp Funston, he was placed in a foot ball team, and during a game received an injury in one of his knees, which kept him in camp and the hospital for a great portion of the time, and having to report there for treatment, and this has been a thorn in the flesh, as he was very anxious to get over and was denied.

VIEWS OF LAND SOLDIERS MAY RECEIVE

Bills Being Introduced in Congress to Allow Fighting Men to Acquire Homestead Land

From Wednesday's Daily.
Just now action is being taken in congress toward permitting soldiers to receive farms from the government, and some even go so far as to provide for the loaning of money to the prospective settler with which to acquire sufficient stock and other necessary articles with which to pursue his vocation.

Carl Schmidtmann, who is in the northwest, is looking over the land proposition with a view to securing himself a farm and is exceedingly well pleased to find such an excellent country. He has sent some of the members of the Journal force a prospectus of Billings, Montana and the "Inland Empire," as they call the country in their advertisements, and has also sent to his folks much advertising matter, which his brother, Will, has used to dress the window at the Lerness store of his father. Among other things there are printed matter, pictures and products from the fields of this northwest country on display.

Take a look at this display, see what is raised and if you want to know anything about getting a farm, whether you are a soldier or not, inquire of Will Schmidtmann, and he will tell you. Look at the actual photos on display in the window. It will be worth your while.

GENERAL MANAGER VISITED LOCAL SHOPS

E. P. Bracken, of Burlington System, Drops Off No. 6 This Morning for Tour of Inspection.

From Wednesday's Daily.
Mr. E. P. Bracken, general manager of the Burlington lines east and west, stopped off from No. 6 this morning for a short visit with Superintendent Wm. Baird of the local Burlington shops, and to look over the shops as well as portions of the city.

Mr. Bracken expressed himself as well pleased with the conditions of the shops and city, recognizing the fact that present conditions are responsible for certain curtailment of improvements which the road is desirous of making.

The visit to Plattsmouth at this time of this high official bespeaks something for the town in the way of improvement, at least that is the way it looks to us. But in this instance as is always the case in matters of this kind, those who know are rather reticent about expressing themselves, as predictions would be looked forward to fulfillment even in case affairs might not develop as desired.
