YOUNG WILLIAM STEWART McMAKEN ARRIVED MONDAY

From Wednesday's Daily.

Being so busy entertaining his new son, William Stewart McMaken, who arrived on Monday at the home of his parents H. C. McMaken and wife, the young man failed to apprise us of his arrival, therefore the lateness of the recognition of his arrival. He is an excellent looking young man, with every indication of health, and is recommended to us as a man of excellent character. He is at this time doing what he can to entertain and delight his happy parents and we are reliably informed with an abundant success.

Loose anything? 'Tis a Journal want ad.

HARVEST NEARLY COMPLETED.

From Monday's Daily.

The W. H. Alexander Nursery company, which has its gardens in the south part of the city, is just completing the gathering of the major part of the crop of berries for this year. The prospect for a large crop continued excellent throughout the spring, and up until a few weeks ago, when a heavy wind bruised and blighted much of the growing crop, and thus reduced what would otherwise have been a very large yield. As it was, the crop is quite large and it required no small amount of effort to look after gathering it and marketing it. There remains yet a few berries that are gradually ripening but the greater part has been disposed of.

PROBLEMS CONFRONTING THE LABORER

THEY CONCERN ALMOST THE ENTIRE POPULATION OF THE WORLD, ALL MUST WORK.

MOST INTERESTING MEETING

At Garfield Park Last Evening Good
Program, Great Labor Day
Guaranteed.

From Wednesday's Daily.

As per the arrangements the band preceded the parade which went to the park last evening to hear the addresses which were to deal with the problem of labor, and the conditions of the laborer. The band furnished excellent music for the occasion, as also were the numbers of special music led by Don C. York.

Patriotism and a love of country was demonstrated by the standing during the rendition of patriotic music.

Mr. B. J. Wright Makes Address.

The man who was in interest of the blacksmiths, Mr. B. J. Wright of Galesburg, Ill., was present and offered his explanation for not being able to give the address which he was expected to hear. His remarks along the line of what should be done to make the laborer lot the better, were time and to point, but feeling that some one else could tell the story better than he gave way to the following speaker:

Carl A. Rawls Speaks.

Carl A. Rawls the popular attorney was greeted with applause when he arose to address the people on the subject which was nearest their heart. The subject of labor and its compensation, is one which is attracting the best thoughts and energies of the best thinkers of the land. The problem has been one which has elicited much interest all during the ages. Guilds, associations, and union organizations have existed since the beginning of the commercial world. All kinds and conditions of men have been interested in labor. Beginning without even the stone hammer or the sharpened stick for a plow, man has gone after difficult process of reducing the hard cold and refractory elements to such conditions as would subserve his use.

All wealth has been produced by labor, first the utensils for the performing of labor, then the product of the labor for use of man, part of which he used, the remainder purchased by man and trafficked in, and a measure made for it, known as the dollar, the accumulation of the product and the measure has finally been called capital. The labor which has been done, has been arrayed by shrewd people, against the labor which necessity had driven the man with the labor for sale to place on the market, for what he can get, and what he must have, a living. Such has been the experience of the world from times immemorial. To solve this problem and get a just distribution of the proceeds of the labor now being placed on the market, and that which had been previously performed, capital, is the mission of organized labor. The matter of getting all that it can will be cared for by capital, it is labor's business to look out for itself, and to get just what is justly coming to it, it may take politics to do it but if it does, well and good, use politics to a good purpose. Mr. Rawls espoused the cause of labor, and said that he would vote for a National Labor Party, when one was organized. He said the laborer needed to be educated to their needs and how to obtain them. As labor won the war, it could also solve the problems confronting them. As experiences laws were enacted during the war, which should be discontinued at this time.

We need a broader vision and the teachings of the master said the speaker. Change the money that it may bear an equal portion of the burden of the expenses of the government. The forming of the schedule of the income tax he said should exempt the first five to seven thousand and income, and place the heavier percentages on the larger incomes, like those which ran into millions, and if necessity take it all over a certain amount.

He said all must work in this reconstruction period, and that labor must see to it that in the making over of the affairs of man after this great cataclysm of the word war she must have and assert her rights. We must love our fellow man, and all work for a better day, for a brighter future, in which equal and exact justice shall give labor its just dues.

F. W. Warren announced the coming of a real labor day celebration in the near future, in which they would not ask the business men to contribute. While this is well in a way, the unions must recognize the merchant, and the artisan is a laborer just the same as the one who belongs to the union, and they are interested on the same problems which confront the members of the union, and are willing to do their part in the solution of them.

AT REST IN QUIET CEMETERY.

From Wednesday's Daily.

This morning from the St. John's Catholic church, was held the ceremonies over the mortal remains of the late Joseph Drooge, and there were paid honors to this man, who has lived in Plattsburgh for many years. Here he and wife came and to them came a fine family of children, who have grown to manhood and womanhood to bless their parents. The ceremonies were conducted according to the ritual of the church, and the remains given rest in the Catholic cemetery west of the city.

WILL GET AFTER OFFENDERS.

From Wednesday's Daily.

Yesterday George Masney from Greenwood, was in the city, and remained over night to look after some business matters which he has in hand at this time. He was looking up the federal statutes touching the white slavery question, and investigating the scope and extent of the Mann act, with the idea of bringing some offenders in his neighborhood, before the bar of justice. He seems to have plenty of facts, and was looking up the provisions of the law.

WILL VISIT THE NORTHWEST.

From Wednesday's Daily.

This morning L. J. Mayfield publisher of the Louisville Courier, accompanied by his son Pearl and Charles Drake, drove down from their home in a car, and took home with them the type set for the Courier, as they were desirous of getting the paper out today, in order that they could depart tomorrow morning for O'Neill, where they go to visit with a brother of Mr. Pearl Mayfield and son of L. J. Mayfield, Mr. E. D. Mayfield, who makes his home at O'Neill. Mr. Pearl Mayfield and wife and L. J. Maxwell and wife will make the trip in an auto. Mr. Pearl Mayfield having just returned from overseas, and has not seen his brother and family as yet.

EACH OF THEM RECEIVED APPLES ALSO

From Wednesday's Daily.

The other evening three of the young (?) of this city went out in the country and for exercise helped Wm. Venner shock wheat for a short time, in fact until it was all shocked, and then they were shocked when on returning to the home of Mr. Venner a nice lunch was served to Attorney C. A. Rawls, County Clerk Geo. R. Sayles and Will T. Adams the genial deputy. They enjoyed the trip, the work and the luncheon nicely and today were surprised on receiving a box of apples each, making an enjoyable affair all around.

ATTEND FUNERAL TODAY.

Henry R. Gering, Thomas L. Murphy and a friend from Omaha, all friends of Mr. Henry Herold and Mr. H. R. Herold, drove down this morning and attended the funeral of Mrs. Wm. Herold which occurred at the St. Luke's Episcopal church, returning before dinner. They were accompanied by I. J. Lane and Wm. Peters, business associates of Mr. Gering.

WILL WORK WITH THE GHRIST STUDIO

From Wednesday's Daily.

Miss Alma Zimla of Wahoo, where she has been employed with Anderson & Co., the largest photographers of that portion of the country has accepted a position with the Ghrist Studio, and arrived recently to begin her work here. Miss Zimla while an expert retoucher and finisher of photos, has had more than ordinary experience in this line of work. The business at the Ghrist Studio has been so heavy of late that they have been compelled to send some of their work elsewhere to have it done. With the assistance of this young lady who is skilled in all parts of the photographic art, they will be in position to insure quicker and better service, and take pleasure in extending an invitation to the trade to place their work with the home studio.

WAS BURIED THIS MORNING.

From Wednesday's Daily.

This morning from the St. Luke's church was held the funeral of Mrs. Wm. Herold, who departed this life a few days since. The services were conducted by the Rev. Wilbur S. Leete pastor of this church, of which Mrs. Herold had been a member for a number of years. The story of the life and the excellent deeds of Mrs. Herold are held in memory by her many friends here. It is with fond remembrances that her good deeds and kindly acts, which have characterized her had held by those who now have only a memory of the friend who has been one of the factors which have worked for the bettering of Plattsburgh.

HAND NOW DOING NICELY.

From Wednesday's Daily.

Mrs. George Perry who some five weeks since had an accident while engaged in doing the family wash, catching one of her hands in a power driven wringer, stripped the skin and flesh from the hand and which she has been having treated since with the result that a delicate skin is now covering almost all the wounded hand, and the wound is healing, for better than it was supposed from the nature of the wound it would be possible. It was thought that skin grafting would have to be resorted to but the wound has done so nicely that nothing of the nature was required. Mrs. Perry is to be congratulated on the fact of her nice recovery.
