Miss Grace Bogenrief was a visitor at the home of her parents in Elmwood last Sunday, returning to resume her school work here Monday morning.

Russell Knott, Jerome St. John and Frank Valley, the latter of Murray, departed last Saturday for the western part of the state, where they were looking after some land.

Wayne Lewis and wife, of Plattsmouth, spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Lewis' mother, Mrs. D. E. Pickering and returned to their home Monday evening after having enjoyed a very pleasant visit.

William Delles Denier, of Elmwood, was in the city last Sunday, coming on account of the death of Mrs. Norman Delles Denier, which occurred at her home west of the city last Saturday morning.

J. H. Miller, of west of Union, was a visitor in town last Monday, coming to get some seed wheat which he has had stored at the elevator, and which he has since sowed. During his brief sojourn in the city Mr. Miller arranged with the scribe to have the Journal pay his home regular visits in the future.

C. H. Fuller, the new operator at the Missouri Pacific station, has added the Journal to his reading matter, and is pleased to see so much news of interest concerning the citizens of his town appearing each week in the Union Department. It is our aim to give subscribers all the worth-while news and we hope to keep up the quality of the paper at all times.

WILL TRY HIS LUCK IN EASTERN SILVER MINE

Abandoned Silver Ore Shaft Surrounded by Tales that Excel Arabian Night Story.

George Eaton, who has but recently returned from a trip to Virilla, Kentucky, which is but fifteen miles from Cumberland Gap, Tenn., a historical spot, was there for some time during the course of which he became one of a company of four, who are removing the fallen dirt and rocks from a silver mine, which his father was interested in years ago.

According to a journal which his father, Albert Eaton, kept, this mine, which was once in part the property of the grandfather of Mr. Eaton, Mr. Jacob Dooley, who had also kept a journal of important events in his life, which, like that of his father, has been handed down through the generations and is now in the hands of George.

The story told of the mine is to the effect that many years ago a Frenchman came to that part of the mountains which form the boundary of Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky and there, through the aid of the Indians found the place.

The silver mine was so plentiful that the saying originated among the Indians there, that "It is wrong to shoe a horse with an iron shoe; it must be done with a silver shoe."

Be that as it may, the Frenchman, whose name has long been forgotten, and who lived in a time when the government allowed the mining of silver at the ratio of 14 to 1 (but far in advance of the world famous ratio of 16 to 1 advocated by one Bryan) formed a co-partnership with two silverminers, who were to make the mine into dollars.

Some time after the partnership was formed the two silverminers, Messrs. Swift and Morgan, were discovered not to be "toting" square with the Frenchman and when an accounting was had it was found that they each had six bushels of dollars while the Frenchman had only five bushels.

In the quarrel that followed they killed the Frenchman and endeavored to make their way out of the country, but the mountains being thick with woods they lost their way and when they endeavored to establish the direction by means of a compass which they carried, the image of the Frenchman came over the face of the instrument obscuring their view of the needle and they wandered in the woods for some time, when they were apprehended by a vigilance committee who meted out justice to them as the guilty murderers of the Frenchman, leaving naught but tradition of the event.

The mountain, which was an overhanging one, caved off, covering the opening leading to the silver deposits and tradition has it that a blacksmith whose shop was nearly gobbled up by the seventeen bushels of dollars.

M. R. Ballard, one of the incorporators of the new company which is now working the mine, found a hundred and seventy-eight silver dollars about forty feet from where the mouth of the mine is supposed to be.

Mr. Eaton has been having a number of dreams, all of which point to the value of the mine recently acquired by lease from its owners for a term of three years. He tells also of having seen, while there recently, the cave where the miners kept their horses, which has now been partially cut away through the operation of building a railroad past the place.

The company as now constituted is composed of George Eaton, president; Will A. Manning, secretary; Grover McGeorge, treasurer and M. R. Ballard. The last three named are working at the excavating now, but the work is progressing slowly on account of the distance necessary to remove the dirt and rocks from the scene.

An effort was made to obtain permission to place the dirt on the road now being built nearby, but as it is a federal aid project the county judge would not allow the dirt placed thereon until next spring when there will be a permit granted by the government for its construction.

The request of these men will probably be granted.

Mr. Eaton is encouraged over the prospects in view of the fact that he was in Plattsmouth last Saturday and had his fortune told, the joints being stated that he was a joint possessor of some good property by which a small creek ran and that he would soon be offered a thousand dollars for the property, but was advised not to accept as he would soon realize a great deal more.

Mr. Eaton is now awaiting the result of the excavation operations of the other members of the company before deciding what he will do, although he thinks he may have to return to Kentucky. He is desirous of spending the winter at the home of a brother in Kansas, however, and if his presence is not needed at the mine, he may do so.

Last Soldier Returns Home

This (Liberty) precinct now has cause to rejoice on account of the return of all the boys she gave to the country in its hour of need. Harry Gobelman, who has been away for a long time was the last one to return. Mr. Gobelman made an excellent soldier, as he will likewise again make a good citizen now that he has been released from further service. His host of friends and neighbors are pleased that he is home again, and the family is more than overjoyed to have him back.

WILL MAKE HOME IN THIS CITY

County Commissioner C. F. Harris Purchases a Home Here in Which to Reside.

Fred Clark began moving the first of the week from the place where he resided for some time past to the Davis property which was recently vacated by W. B. Banning, he having sold his place to County Commissioner C. F. Harris, who will move to Union in a short time in order that his children may have the advantage of attending the city schools.

At the present time Mr. Harris is bringing the children in in the morning and calling for them in the evening.

Before moving into the new home, Mr. Harris will have the property finished and put in excellent condition. Mr. Harris is renting his farm to other parties and Mr. Clark will live in the property to which he has moved for some time, as Henry Vest and family are occupying his farm at present.

DIED AT HOME NEAR NEHAWKA

Mrs. Frances Hodge Passed Away After a Short Illness—Buried at Nebraska City.

Last Friday the remains of Mrs. Frances Hodge, aged seventy years, passed through Union from Nehawka for Nebraska City, where they were laid to rest after appropriate ceremonies by the loving hands of her son, W. C. Hodge.

Mrs. Hodge, whose maiden name was Miss Frances Kratt, was born in Worcester, England, January 9, 1850, coming to this country when she was fifteen years of age. She left but one son, with whom she made her home, her husband having died a number of years ago. She has lived in Otoe county for the past thirty years, and only last spring moved from here with her son to near Nehawka.

Mrs. Hodge was a sufferer for a short time from the dread disease, cancer. She leaves besides her son, two grandchildren, Leiland and Stanley Hodge, sons of the former. The funeral was in charge of John Fassbender, of Nebraska City, internment being in the cemetery there.

WILL REMAIN IN UNION ANOTHER YEAR

Rev. L. Morrison Unanimously Requested to Continue Pastorate at This Place.

Rev. and Mrs. Morrison, who have been at University Place for some time past, returned home last week, having been assigned to this place another year, or rather having been given the choice of Union or some other charge, and having chosen the former in accordance with the expressed wishes of the congregation that they return to the pastorate here if possible.

Rev. Morrison has just completed a successful year as pastor of the church here, and the work he has accomplished stands as a testimony of his fidelity to the church and the good work which he has accomplished for the Master. And the fact that he is returned here for another year in accordance with the wishes of both himself and his congregation, means that he will be in better position to cater to the spiritual needs of his flock than before. A mass meeting will be held at the Baptist church Sunday evening by way of welcoming Mr. Morrison and family back to Union and a number of local speakers will make short talks. The attendance of everyone is urged.
