King Albert is a brave man, but his American itinerary doesn't include Mexico.

The profiteer is not mentioned in the Sermon on the Mount but he must be blessed, for he inherits the earth.

The high price and scarcity of "flu medicine" in quart doses this fall may be the reason why the threatened epidemic hasn't materialized.

If the government ever rules that no cigar containing more than 2.75 per cent tobacco be sold the average ten-cenar won't be affected in the least.

Another sure sign of approaching winter is the gentle odor of antifreeze compound on the breeze, that perfume so exquisite to the motorist and so infuriating to the pedestrian.

It is whispered in New York that if you wear a pink tie, you can buy a drink. The risk, however, is too great. After donning the pink tie, something might happen to prevent getting the drink.

It is possible prohibition has brought a number of blessings we hadn't thought of. Berlin dispatches say Prussians are shocked and horrified when told that we can get nothing but water to drink in the United States. Perhaps, then, they won't emigrate.

Everybody has heard his preacher start in praying for the local officers of the church and wind up with a prayer for the president of the United States, making all stops between. So Rev. Lieut. Maynard is not the first pastor by any means to complete a cross country flight.

The palmsaid said in his haste, "All men are liars," Dr. H. H. Goddard of Toledo, Ohio, wishes now to corroborate that statement as "scientific conclusion." And while David admitted he spoke in the heat of the moment, Dr. Goddard now has the income tax revelations to support his conclusions.

Editors will never cease having their troubles. One of those men who presides over the destinies of Wyoming newspaper is mourning the loss of a pair of subscribers over a pair of twins. One of them wrote asking how to raise twins safely, while the other wanted to know how to rid his orchard of grasshoppers. Both answers went forward by mail, but, by accident, the editor got the envelopes transposed and placed each answer in the wrong enclosure, so the man with the twins received the reply: "Cover them carefully with straw and set fire to it and the little pests, after jumping into the fire for a few minutes, will be speedily settled." And the man with the grasshoppers was told to "give them castor oil, and rub their gums with a bone."

Faith, we are told, can move mountains, but not with moving vans costing ten dollars an hour.

A labor union that refuses to allow a man to work when he wants to and when he is satisfied is not a good thing for the laborer nor for the country.

An Ohio clergyman says the needs of this rapid age demands that sermons be cut to fifteen minutes. But there are some in every congregation who couldn't even get to sleep in that time.

While it is doubtless that our income tax law tempts many men to dishonesty, it probably is needless to repeat it just on that account, as prohibition didn't cure all evils at once, as we thought it would, either.

A lawsuit sixty-three years old has just been decided in Illinois. The courts of that state are to be commended for thus joining so promptly and effectively in the hopeful movement to expedite justice in this country.

A North Carolina bishop says "America" should not be sung in church, as all hymns used in service should be addressed only to Almighty God. The bishop, we fear, is not familiar with the last stanza of "America."

RENDING THE ALIEN

In recent weeks a sort of anti-alien propaganda has been under way in America. The steel companies have sought to discredit the late strike in the steel industry by saying that it was participated in mostly by the "ignorant foreign" part of their employes. At the same time, there is a cheerful willingness on the part of labor organizations to see the alien discredited and barred. This tends to limit the competition for jobs. Those who are most in fear of the "reds" contribute their share to the general hostility to the alien. Our bolshevism, we are told—and it is probably true—is confined largely to aliens or to recent aliens.

This combination of hostilities to aliens is growing into a sort of crusade. Apparently we are on the verge of an "America for Americans" movement. Antipathy to the alien has been promoted to such a degree that bloodshed is threatened in some sections.

Heaven knows, America needs Americanization. We find ourselves after the war no less than before with the problem of the hyphen on our hands. Nor is the problem limited to any one race or nationality. The American stomach is full of undigested populations. We should be chary of further increments of this sort till we have had time to devise safe and effective methods of assimilating what we already have. But the change of policy should be rational and fair. To turn in fierce hostility upon the aliens among us now would be most unjust. We should be punishing them for our own fault.

When Judge Gary publicly sought to bolster up his own cause by casting reflections upon his alien employes it was to laugh—and swear. Those aliens are working for Mr. Gary because it has been a steel trust policy to favor alien employes. They were tractable and willing to work long hours, and to their European eyes, pay which an American workman would refuse looked generous enough. Mr. Gary is as much responsible for the predominance of foreigners in the steel mills as are the foreigners themselves. To turn upon them now, playing upon a growing prejudice against them, is hypocrisy not pleasant to see.

It has been the same in most of our industries. America's invitation has been far and wide. We asked everybody to come over and enjoy our blessings. We erected tariffs against the pauper made goods of the old world, then imported the "paupers" of the old world to make our goods. That policy has turned New England to a New Europe—a new Italy, new Ireland, new everything but America.

Now that these aliens are here by our own invitation, our own economic policy, shall we treat them as we treat flies caught in a trap? Not if American fairness and honesty hold sway. They should make the choice of becoming Americans or returning whence they came. If they cannot be satisfied to abide by American political methods of righting the wrongs and choose the bomb and the mob instead, they should be shipped hence whether or no. But to generate a general hostility to these immigrants, the good with the bad, and to awaken radical prejudices against them as we now tend to do would be a breach of faith of which America cannot afford to be guilty.—State Journal.

RETURNS FROM HOSPITAL

From Monday's Daily.
Saturday afternoon Frank Hlotzer, Jr., returned home from Omaha, at which place he has been for the past two weeks taking treatment at the hospital and he is now feeling greatly improved in health and feels that he has secured permanent relief from his affliction. The many friends of this estimable young man are pleased to have him back in their midst feeling in such excellent condition and trust that this may continue.
