TRUTH—OUR BASIC PRINCIPLE

In times past it was the common belief that all advertising must be taken with a grain of salt. A great change has come today. All honest manufacturers try to prevent advertising untruths and half-truths. They acclaim the platform of the Associated Advertising clubs of the World, which declares that the basic principle of advertising is truth. That always has been our principle. Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine never pretended to be a panacea. This remedy has been recommended only for such cases which may be relieved by the medicinal values of its ingredients. That means for indigestion, poor appetite, constipation, headaches, flatulence, nervousness, and other troubles caused by stomach disorders. All of Triner's remedies—Triner's Liniment, Triner's Cough Sedative, Triner's Angelica Bitter Tonic, etc.—have adhered to the same principle of truth. Ask your dealer, he will confirm this statement.—Joseph Triner Company, 1335-43 S. Ashland Ave., Chicago, Ill.
