Methodist Church Notes
Surely we have much to be thankful for these days in this community. The church surely has not lost its power in the community. When people travel over such roads as we now have, and fill the house at all services, it certainly must be because they are getting something when they come. And then, when ten people, as on last Sunday, present themselves for membership in the church, six for baptism and four by letter and on confession of faith, it must be the spirit of God is working on the hearts of the community. There is no revival on, in any special sense. Just the regular services. We are looking for many more to follow the lead of these others in the near future.

And what a Sunday school! We should suffer nothing by comparison with the best schools anywhere. And we are improving all the time. We invite others who have not yet joined us to come and bring the children. We covet nothing but the opportunity to do the best for you and them.

Our moving picture for January 29th is to be the "Lost Princess." A very beautiful play with a splendid moral. Some time soon we are going to show that wonderful new picture of Longfellow's poem, "Evangeline," which is having a wonderful reception everywhere. Read the poem again so you will get the most out of the picture. Sincerely yours,
E. A. KNIGHT, Minister.
