Seventy-five pounds of coal is lost every time a modern locomotive pops off for five minutes.

The fields of winter wheat, in the state of Nebraska look very promising for white bread for next winter.

The Missouri democrats were non-committal on the booze question. This trait in individuals has long been recognized as a sign of thirst.

It is a noteworthy fact that in all the strikes in the last two years based on the theory that "we don't give a damn for public opinion", not one has achieved even a suggestion.

With potatoes 10 cents a pound and sugar at 20, the family man doesn't need a daylight saving law to get him out early in the morning this year.

We have increased our manufacturing potential very largely during the war and unless this equipment is to be scrapped a market must be found for the out put.

Hungary is apparently destined to become an agrarian state like Bulgaria, and may be expected to be self-sufficient in foodstuffs after she harvested her next crop.

It begins to look as though Mars had failed to keep his date with us. Very well, then. Let's pay attention to somebody else. Breaking dates is something Venus never did.

Carranza's alarm over the formation of a republic in Sonora is only exceeded by the complacency with which he viewed Villa's outrages against Mexico's best neighbors.

If you meet up with an old friend, the Hoover democrat now, and talk to him a few minutes he will tell you sorrowfully that he fears Hoover isn't the man he thought he was.

The German linen industry has been running at slow speed for the lack of flax.

Mr. Debs would like to run for president again this year, but the warden won't let him.

In spite of the backward spring, the young onion crop is reported by movie goers to be doing fine.

The advancing price of overalls leads one to suspect the movement has engulfed ex-President Taft.

There is no great danger of our becoming involved in another war for at least ten months, because we are not yet unprepared enough for one.

The Boston Transcript points out that it costs just as much to eat while wearing overalls as it does while wearing a $150 suit. The chances are it will cost more. Overalls are the natural habiliments of a healthy appetite.

Recently a maniac killed a vestryman in a crowded New York church and several Plattsmouth men are pointing to that as an excuse for not attending divine services; they think it's too risky. They say you are in danger even if you are saved.

The next attack on the low cost of living, we understand, is to be directed at the high cost of cigarettes and cigars. Everybody will quit smoking cigars and cigarettes, and will combine to run up the cost of the working man's chewing tobacco.

In the first 25,000 returned ballots in the Literary Digest's presidential straw vote, W. R. Hearst received thirteen votes. As there are some 10 million ballots yet to be heard from, the other ten Hearst votes in the country probably will turn up before July 1.

THE WORLD WILL SURVIVE

From Vladivostok around the earth to Tokio the human race is one shrill scream. An impressionist sketch shows Russia "Red"; Hungary changing from "Red" to "White" over night. Germany is, of course, still black. And England, still of course, is blue. France is purple in the face. And America either red or yellow, according to the political angle from which she is viewed. The smaller fry shade off into colors that only women and artists understand.

But everyone agrees on one thing: the world is going to pot. At least this is settled. But is it? Does not a longer vision help to correct our hysteria?

The fact is that the modern world has exploded every hundred years and has always survived. America was discovered at the far end of the fifteenth century and the New Learning and the Reformation followed the discovery of the new world. We are reliably informed that these movements were frequently heralded as the finish.

The death of Elizabeth in 1503 closed the great period of England's splendor.

And the Puritans who followed could have given Mr. Palmer lessons in heresy hunting.

As the shades of the seventeenth century lengthened the glory of France under the Grand Monarque faded amid a disastrous war. The France of Richelieu, Colbert, Racine, Moliere passed away.

The French revolution closed the next century and exactly one hundred years after the death of Louis XIV, Napoleon met his Waterloo.

The world war finishes another century and naturally everyone is excited about it.

It is worth noticing in all this that in every case the permanent results came from beginnings that had no recognition at the time. Thus while the world regarded the court of Ferdinand and Isabella, Columbus died neglected. And a year before, Martin Luther had turned unnoted from the study of law to join the Augustinian order. Virginia was settled three years after the death of Elizabeth, but who regarded John Smith and his little band. The crowning of the first king of Prussia in the first year of the eighteenth century made no impression on the world, whose eyes were fixed on the glory of France. For us, who have uncrowned the last king of Prussia, it is of more significance. The French revolution, with all its heralding, was outstripped in practical results by the industrial revolution that goes unheralding at all. Napoleon made a pretty stir for a time, but the spinning jenny and the power loom made the modern world.

Let us calm ourselves, then, and get on with our knitting. It has happened before and will happen again. We are probably betting on the wrong horse, anyway. One hundred years from now all will be the same—or different.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Can you imagine any of the husbands of twenty-five years from now longing for some bread like mother used to send out and buy?

It will be noticed that the paper shortage did not become acute until they began using the stuff for sole leather.

While we're already togged up in overalls, there seems no better time than now to bust the white collar profiteers by adding the red bandanna handkerchief.

MRS. GALLAGHER KNEW WHAT TO DO

Experience She'd Had Before Taught Her the Value of Tanlac—Suffering Over.

"When I felt myself going down this summer I knew exactly what to do, for I had taken Tanlac before and it fixed me up so fine I knew it would do so again," said Mrs. Barbara Gallagher, who lives at 1000 Plum St., Lincoln, Neb.

"For many years," she continued, "I suffered agonies from rheumatism and never knew what it was to be without pains or aches somewhere in my system. My head ached like it would burst and I would get so dizzy at times that everything seemed to be whirling around till I would feel like I was going to fall. My nerves were in such a dreadful state that I would roll and toss half the night without being able to sleep a wink, and my appetite was so weak that I would have attacks of indigestion and sometimes they would nearly put me out of business.

"One of my friends advised me strongly to try Tanlac and I could see a marked improvement right after I started on it. My nerves grew quiet so I could sleep better, the headaches and dizzy spells passed away, my appetite increased and my digestion soon became all right. Tanlac soon fixed me up all right and I have enjoyed splendid health ever since. Whenever I feel the least bit out of the way I take a little Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Plattsmouth by F. G. Fricke and Company and the leading druggist in every town.

Nobody seems to understand why retail meat prices are going higher in Chicago during the strike when the yards are full of prime beef cattle and more coming in and the live market is going down.
