> Wants a Man, Needs a Woman Mayor Frans, who is conducting he affairs at the lumber yard at this time, finds business rather lively, and keeps him hopping, which speaks well for the way in which he does business. He says that he wants a man to assist him in his work, but a kind lady and a very good friend of this young man, kindly advised him that he needed a woman, not a man. On this point Ray would not argue.

NEBRASKA'S OLDEST CITIZEN PASSES ON

Claimed to Have Been Born 126 Years Ago in England-Dies a' Westerville on a Farm

'rom Monday's Daily. A telegram to The State Journal from Ansley, Neb., chronicles the death at Westerville, Custer county, Friday evening at 6 o'clock of Thomas Morris, certainly the oldest inhabitant of Nebraska and believed to be one of the oldest men in the world. His funeral is to be held at Ansley on Monday morning.

Morris has been an inordinate user of tobacco since his teens and was if one were handy. He set at defiance also all rules for longevity by meals, and before retiring at night was accustomed to lugging a quart of tea or coffee to his bedroom, which e drank during the night.

Morris never had a serious illness, out suffered a light stroke of sunstroke once. One of his modest poasts was that in 1883 a tapeworm orty-five feet long was removed from

The old man retained both his hearing and his eyesight until close unti a few years ago, when a friend loaned him a pair, which he thereafter used for close work. The heariing of one ear was destroyed by scald ing several years ago, but the other gave good service.

Morris had two other claims to fame. He was never married and he never attended school a day in his life. He was apprenticed to the butcher's trade when a boy, but after hage and sweet potato plants for sale do not have membership in any working eight or ten years, he took up cobbling.
