OWL DOES DAMAGE TO ELECTRIC LINE

Screech Owl Alighting on Line East of Louisville Causes Burning Out of Transformers

From Wednesday's Daily.
The high power line of the Nebraska Gas & Electric company between this city and Louisville went out of commission this morning about two o'clock as the result of the burning out of the line and for several hours forty-seven towns were without light or power as the result of the venture of the owl. The owl alighting on the wires caused the current to flash over and burn out the lines and while the bird was executed by the juice it did a great deal of damage to the property of the light company as well as causing much inconvenience to the patrons of the company in this part of the county as well as in the western Iowa lines.

Manager Kuykendall also reports that in the western part of the city a number of boys have been engaged in shooting off the insulators of the lines and causing much annoyance to the company and if any more cases of this kind are reported the lads will be prosecuted.

Seeing is Believing!

We told you so, but you would not believe us—it seemed too good to be true. Some one told you the "FORDSON would not pull it."

Well, just run over to the Chas. Warner farm and you can see for yourself that the Fordson Tractor and Woods Bros. Thresher are doing the best job of threshing you ever saw.

There is no good reason why you should buy a larger outfit. It will cost you more money and will give you no better service. Wallace Warner, Ray Smith and Jack Micin purchased a Fordson Tractor and Woods Bros. 20x36 separator and are now threshing. Ask them what they think about it. Go and see them threshing and you won't let any one tell you again that the Fordson tractor and Woods Bros. separator are too small for your use. Then come in and place your order now. We can fill it now; perhaps not in two weeks.
