The fact that work is being done on the completion of the settling basin for the filtering system will be good news to all users of city water. Contract was let recently to R. S. McCleary for $2,000 and his force has been at work as much as weather conditions have permitted. The basin is located southwest of the west well. It was feared for a time that the installation of the basin would have to be postponed until next year, but the two banks when approached on the matter agreed to handle city warrants to cover the work and the contract was let. Weeping Water has had a lot of grief over its water supply but there is promise of a solution of the trouble in the completion of this work now under way.

FARM BUREAU NOTES

Importance of Proper Feeding—Feeding is one of the most important factors in egg production. On poor rations hens will live and even keep in fair health, but well-balanced, palatable feeds are necessary to get good egg production. The additional cost of a good ration compared with a poor ration is repaid many times by the extra eggs obtained. As a rule the simplest feed mixtures composed of home-grown grains and their by-products, supplemented by sweet or sour milk or some feed rich in protein, such as meat scraps, will prove most profitable and will produce eggs at the lowest cost.

Methods of control and eradication of hog lice and hog mange make up the subject matter of a United States Department of Agriculture farmers' bulletin which will be of interest to hog raisers. In addition to a general discussion of the two parasites and what may be done to control them, the bulletin contains plans for hog wallows and dipping tanks, together with directions for building them. The bulletin, which is farmers' bulletin 1085, may be obtained free from the College of Agriculture at Lincoln or from the Farm Bureau.

Wool—Nebraska farmers have about 200,000 pounds of wool stored in a Lincoln warehouse awaiting a favorable market. The wool was concentrated through solicitation of the Nebraska Sheep Breeders' and Wool Growers' association in an effort to obtain a better price than has been obtained in the past when the producers sold their wool individually.

The central storage of wool was effected in Nebraska this year through the co-operation of county farm bureaus, farmers' unions, breeders' associations and wool producers' associations. The wool was collected by counties and shipped to Lincoln in car lots or in large freight consignments. On reaching the Lincoln warehouse it was graded to facilitate selling.

Very little wool is selling at present, according to M. B. Posson, secretary of the Nebraska Sheep Breeders' and Wool Producers' association. That moving is bringing from 20 to 30 cents a pound, depending on the grade against 50 to 60 cents just before shearing time last spring.
