An Investment in Good Appearance

We Stake All Our Reputation On It

YOU'LL find that good clothes this Fall will cost no less than at the beginning of last Spring. We have investigated every avenue of conditions—markets, mills and clothing tailors—prices cannot be otherwise.

You, of course, do not want to believe this. Neither do we. But what we want to believe cannot alter the actual situation.

K K K K

There are no finer clothes made than Kuppenheimer good clothes—no cheaper clothes made, because of the long service they give. And they look so much better on a man—a real investment in good appearance.

Good clothes could not possibly be sold for less than these are offered you—both maker and merchant are sacrificing part of their just profits.

If it were possible to sell clothes as these for a fraction less than they are offered you this fall, rest assured, WE'D BE THE FIRST TO DO IT.

NO HIDING OF PARTY FUNDS BY G. O. P.

TOTAL LESS THAN A THIRD OF WHAT COX CLAIMED—SMALL CONTRIBUTIONS WELCOMED

TREASURER TURNS OVER LISTS

Senate Committee Delves Deeply Into Question of Contributions But Thus Far Unable to Develop Sensation

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Republican finances were again under scrutiny of the senate committee investigating campaign expenditures today. Will H. Hays, Fred Upham and other party leaders found occasion for further denial of Gov. James M. Cox's charges that a $15,000,000 fund was being raised and also offered the committee leads directed toward the democratic campaign committee of the party had budgets totalling $700,000, in addition to the more than $3,000,000 budget appearing in Chairman Hays' testimony yesterday. At Senator Reed's request, Mr. Upham read a table of state quotas which the witness said he made up fourteen months before Senator Harding was nominated. This table totalled more than $1,491,100, but Mr. Upham explained that he had no hope or desire to collect more than $3,000,000 of this amount.

Senator Reed delved deeply into the amount assigned counties, cities and other local sub-divisions of the party organization, but did not shake Mr. Upham's denial that he had no knowledge of the city quota list which Governor Cox read in a recent speech at Pittsburg. The questioning by the Missouri senator finally led to the point where Mr. Upham said he did not know how much of the various states quotas was assigned to particular localities. He said he knew of only two city financial directors of the party, one each in Chicago and New York, but he "hoped there were a lot more."

"I never saw a quota for any city in their United States," said Mr. Upham. "I assigned only the state quotas, and how these were subdivided by the state organizations was none of my affairs."

"No, but you are responsible for them in law, fact and conscience so long as these sub-divisions were made by agents of your committee and so long as these agents did nothing criminal in carrying out your system," rejoined Senator Reed. Senator Reed then argued that there was no way to limit the amounts that might be collected in any one state and Mr. Upham retorted that he would "stop them before they got to $3,000,000."

Mr. Upham agreed with Senator Pomerene that it was both possible and probable that large sums would be raised in industrial centers by either party of which the national officer of the party would have no knowledge. The witness said no one knew what amounts would be expended by county organizations, and then reverting to the list of fifty-one cities which Governor Cox used, he said he had never heard a statement that only four copies of this list were made.

Mr. Upham turned over a complete file of the treasurer's official bulletins to which Governor Cox also referred. Senator Reed pointed out discrepancies between some items in the bulletin and the list of state receipts given the committee by Mr. Upham. The latter opined that the language of the bulletin, which he said, was designed to encourage the field workers, might be taken as a manifestation of good citizenship from over-enthusiasm or "just plain bull."

Under questioning by Chairman Kenyon, republican of Iowa, Mr. Upham said that the list of more than thirty thousand contributors which he turned over to the committee represented the "double purpose to popularize the campaign fund and at the same time get money stock holders, knowing that stock holders would vote the ticket." He said there had been no contributions from large interests, and when the 1904 situation was recalled the Messrs. Ryan and Belmont of New York were supposed to have given about $500,000 each to the democratic campaign fund of that year.

"Do you think that the numerous farmers and small business men in little towns who have contributed to this year's fund as little as a dollar or less are the people to whom Governor Cox referred as intending to employ bayonets to keep labor down?" asked Senator Kenyon.

"I don't think so," replied Mr. Upham, "but I should say these people are the best we have in the country." The national treasurer said that Senator Weeks of Massachusetts had reported more than 7,000 subscribers from that state, which was ten times the number of any previous campaign. The subscribers from the state of Washington were the first ever received from there by the republican national committee, he said. Not a single contribution of more than $1,000 has come from New York, but Mr. Upham was not familiar with the identity of the contributors.

"There may be a contribution there from John D. Rockefeller for all I know," he added. Chairman Hays resumed the stand to furnish Senator Reed with information as to the committee's budget for advertising in foreign language newspapers. He said the party had no appropriation for that purpose, but hoped to use some of its funds in that direction, having an item of $40,000, which perhaps might become available.

In that connection, Mr. Hays turned over to the committee a letter from an advertising agency which stated that the democratic organization was planning to insert one thousand inches of advertising in the "best foreign language papers." He said advertising experts had told him there were 241 publications which might be placed in such a category and that it would cost $235,000 to carry out the program outlined in the letter.

A NEBRASKA PIONEER CALLED TO REST

FOUNDER OF OMAHA HERALD AND ONE OF EARLIEST PHYSICIANS OF STATE, DIES

LIVED IN OMAHA 65 YEARS

Had Reached Ripe Age of 90 Years at Time of His Death and During Lifetime Was Active in Politics

From Monday's Daily.

Dr. George L. Miller, one of the most notable living pioneers of the state of Nebraska, and founder of the Omaha Herald, died Saturday night in Omaha at the home of a niece where he had been residing for the past few years.

Dr. Miller had reached the ripe age of ninety years and for sixty-five years had been a resident of Omaha and been active in the measures that had led to the upbuilding of the city.

He has retained his physician vigor for the past ten years but his mental faculties had been badly affected. He was born in Boonville, N. Y., Aug. 18, 1831. He graduated in 1852 from the New York college of physicians and surgeons and practiced for two years in Syracuse, N. Y. He located in Omaha, October 19, 1854, and the following year was elected a member of the territorial council, in which body he served three terms, being the presiding officer of the last council of which he was a member.

From 1861 to 1864 he held the position of sutler at Fort Kearney and upon his return to Omaha, in 1864, was nominated by the democratic party as a candidate for congress. The following year, in connection with Dan W. Carpenter, he established the Omaha Herald, an evening paper, and continued his connection as editor and joint proprietor until March 1, 1887, Lyman Richardson, who purchased Mr. Carpenter's interest soon after the establishment of the paper, being associated with Dr. Miller during all this period. As a strong and fearless editorial writer, Dr. Miller acquired national reputation and almost from the start the Herald was recognized as a paper of commanding influence.

In March, 1887, the paper was sold to a stock company by which John A. McShane was the principal stockholder.

In the fall of 1887, McShane parted with the control of the Herald to R. A. Craig of Chicago. Mr. Craig, in 1889, sold the paper to Gilbert M. Hitchcock, the present owner, who merged it with the World.

Mr. McShane also bought the real estate—the old military headquarters building, which was occupied by the Herald plant, now the site of the Orpheum theater.

The paper was especially active in advocating every measure that tended to build up Nebraska and Omaha; and during the trying days of the early history of the Union Pacific railroad, when the life of Omaha was at stake, no man rendered more valuable services on behalf of the city than did Dr. Miller, which fact is more fully appreciated by the older residents of Omaha than by those who have located here in later years.

It was only by the most persistent effort that the Union Pacific bridge was secured for this point, powerful pressure being brought to bear to locate it six miles down the river, at a point known as Child's Point.

In the national democratic conventions of the period, Dr. Miller always exercised a powerful influence and could have secured political preferment on many occasions had he not chosen instead to retain his place with the Herald, which he deemed a place of much greater importance.

In 1888 Dr. Miller was appointed manager for Nebraska of the New York Life Insurance company. He was president of the board of park commissioners and took active interest in the development of the park and boulevard system. Miller park, which he was instrumental in establishing, was later named for him.

About this time he built for himself a country home on what is now the Seymour park tract near Ralston. He established an artificial lake which now supplies the Cudahy packing plant with ice. The original residence buildings were later burned.

The doctor leaves no children.

Mrs. E. O. Stehm and two little daughters who have been spending several weeks here at the home of the mother of Mrs. Stehm, Mrs. J. E. Douglass and family, returned last evening over the Burlington to their home at Bloomington, Indiana.

DELEGATES HOME FROM LEGION MEET

Members of Local Post Found City of Hastings Very Hospitable and Enjoy Themselves.

From Monday's Daily.

The members and delegates of Hugh J. Kearns post of the American Legion of this city who were in attendance at the state convention at Hastings, returned home Saturday evening. The delegates were Aubrey Duxbury, Emil Hild, Edwin Fricke and Henry Lutz, while George Conis, Marion Duxbury and John Wichman were on hand to see how it was done. Mr. Fricke did not remain until the close of the convention, returning Saturday afternoon, while Mr. Hild remained in Lincoln for a visit with friends.

The state convention of the Legion selected the officers for the ensuing year by electing Robert Simmon of Scottsbluff as commander over F. A. Warner of Norfolk, after the withdrawal of E. P. McDermott of Kearney. The vice commanders chosen were: E. S. Goodrich, Fairbury, army; T. J. Bressler, Wayne, navy; Lyman Wheeler, Omaha, marine. Dean Charles R. Tyner, of Hastings was elected chaplain and Frank B.

O'Connell, of Lincoln, was renamed for the position of state adjutant.

For the position of national committee man the convention named Edward P. McDermott of Kearney. The delegates at large selected were Earl M. Cline, Nebraska City, E. P. McDermott, Kearney, George W. Farwell, Lincoln and T. J. McGuire, of Omaha.

Retiring Commander Cline declined the endorsement for the position of national commander and in recognition of his excellent services in the past year he was presented with a gold watch by the various posts of the state.

In the contest for district delegates and alternates, Emil Hild of this city secured a majority of the votes for the position of alternate but later declined the position.

The members of the party from this city found the city of Hastings a very pleasant location for the convention and the meeting throughout was most interesting, indicating the activity of the Legion over the state. A large number of the posts were well represented, but Omaha had the largest delegation present aside from the posts in the immediate vicinity of Hastings.

Joe McCarthy, Jim Warren and Jack Ledgeway departed this afternoon for Denver and the west where they will enjoy a short vacation before the resumption of their school work.

METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC HELD

Merry Gathering on the Old Base Ball Grounds on Chicago Avenue, Largely Attended.

From Wednesday's Daily.

The picnic held yesterday by the Methodist Sunday school proved one of the most pleasant of the entertainments of the summer season and was held at the old base ball grounds on Chicago avenue, which Jesse Perry, chairman of the grounds committee had secured for the big event. The attendance was very pleasing as in the neighborhood of 200 of the members of the school and teaching force were in attendance at the festivities.

The event had been well planned and James Kuykendall and V. T. Arn, who headed the sports committee, had arranged a number of games for the young folks including a base ball game for the boys and sports for the young ladies of the party that served to pass the time most delightfully.

At 6:30 the "eats" committee, headed by Mrs. W. L. Howland as chairman, proceeded to offer the big attraction of the event, a fine picnic supper which the ladies of the church had prepared and brought with them and those who have had the opportunity of enjoying one of the feasts prepared by the Methodist ladies can well appreciate the array of dainties that were offered to the young people.

As the shades of evening were falling, the members of the party wended their way homeward feeling that it had certainly been a most pleasant and enjoyable event in the social activities of the church.

A PIONEER RESIDENT OF MILLS COUNTY, IOWA

Paul Haynie, one of the oldest and best known residents of near Glenwood, was an over night visitor in this city at the home of his son, Ralph J. Haynie, being enroute home from Omaha, where he had been looking after some matters of business.

Mr. Haynie is a real pioneer of Mills county, as he spent his lifetime of sixty-nine years on the farm in that county, upon which his father settled. Mr. Haynie is one of the substantial citizens of his home community and universally esteemed and respected by the host of friends among whom he has lived during his entire life time and in his dealing with whom he has proven himself a gentleman in every sense of the word.

The visit here, while short, was very much enjoyed by the family and the friends of Mr. Haynie. He returned this morning to his home near Glenwood.
