Washington is becoming a community of millionaires. According to estimates made from income tax returns—the basis being an income of $50,000 or more a year—the District of Columbia contains no fewer than 150 persons worth 1 million dollars or more. From season to season the number of wealthy Americans who settle in the national capital, mainly attracted by its social opportunities, is perceptibly growing.

WHY

Some Women dress better

It is quite a mannerly thing to take care of your clothes investment and protect it up to the limit. Having your clothes carefully dry cleaned will improve their wear and help to prolong the life of their stylish lines.

TIME TO SAVE

For the past two or three years America has rolled in the lap of luxury. Money has been plentiful, labor has been scarce and the American workman has drawn wages that a few years ago would have seemed fabulous.

Some laborers as a result are now in splendid condition. Out of debt, they own their homes, are comfortably fixed and bid fair to grow more successful.

These are exceptions.

The average worker is in little better condition than he was when wages were two dollars per day. He has earned good money but wealth has flown; he has spent it in riotous living; his shirts have been silken, his hose the purest of fabrics, his food of the richest. His bank account now is where it was before the world war and is represented by a zero mark.

Far sighted men tell us that reaction from high prices must soon set in, that there must be a return to production, that in time economic conditions will grow normal and while it is hoped there will never be poverty there must come a readjustment and prices and labor both must fall.

This time may be months off, but certain it is that money is not so plentiful now as was the case six months ago. Every few days now one meets men without jobs, already tramps have been in this city, the first in three years. The handwriting is on the wall so plain that a wayfaring man though a fool may read and understand.

If money is easy with you now, commence to save it for wise men are agreed that in a few months it will be worth many times its present value in that its purchasing power will greatly be increased.

Solomon points out that the ant in summer lays in its stores for winter and referred the sluggard to this insect for wisdom. Think over the situation and see if you as well can't draw a profitable lesson from t he ant.

FRUIT OF FAITH

An invalid boy in a Cincinnati hospital had been on crutches so long that he was afraid to go without them, even after the doctors told him he could walk if he only tried.

(He was like those grown folks who, lacking faith in themselves, fear to stand on their own feet, lest they fall).

Finally the doctors told the boy they would give him a plot in the hospital garden in which he could grow things good to eat. But every day he would have to walk to the garden without his crutches.

"I want to grow a muskmelon," said the boy. And a wonderful thing happened the day they gave him the seed. He walked part of the day to the garden without his crutches!

(It is not thus with all of us? The more definite our object in life, the more confident our footsteps. The aimless wanderer never arrives.)

And each day he walked farther towards his garden plot without his crutches until at last he discarded them altogether.

The muskmelon he raised was a poor, little, stunted thing, scarcely fit to be eaten, but at the county fair the judges awarded it first prize because it was the perfect fruit of faith.

"Two-thirds of failure comes from the fear of failure," someone has said. The greatest of undeveloped resources is the human mind and one does not find there what God has given until, like the little boy, he sloughs off fear and substitutes "I will" for "I can't."—Omaha News.

A LITTLE COMMON SENSE

No matter how socially inclined you are, or how many friends you have, there are times when you must be alone.

Your only company is yourself.

And unless you have learned to be good company you will find that lonesomeness is an intolerable bore.

To the man who has read and has learned to think lonesomeness has no terrors.

Waiting for a train, sitting alone in his room at night, spending hours in a journey through a desert, he always finds himself good company.

Beware if you are easily bored by lonliness. It is a sign of a very poorly stocked mind of a total lack of imagination.

Wodsworth, left alone, could find delight in remembering the beautiful things he had seen in the world.

Bunyan, alone in prison, beguiled the weary hours by writing, out of his reading and imagination, a book that has endured through all time.

If your mind is one that requires constant association with others or some actual employment like reading or work to keep it from boredom it is in need of repair.

Learn to think when you are lonely—to plan things that must be done tomorrow or to reflect on what you have seen or heard or read.

Recall old journeys and experiences. Remember good novels and plays. You can, if you will, have the company of all your friends in your thought. You can be good company to yourself if you try.

Lonesomeness should never affect you with depression. If you have read and thought all your life you will never dread being alone.

If you have not read or thought, begin doing so now.—John Blake in Chicago News.

Listen, good friends, and you shall hear why some Cigarettes are so all-fired dear

SOME cigarettes are packed in pretty boxes that certainly don't grow on trees. Next, they're dolled up—and flavorings are sure getting expensive. And then, they're priced a bit high so they'll seem "exclusive." But read how Spur Cigarettes offer the highest possible quality at the lowest possible price:

If there are any finer tobaccos from the Orient and the good old U. S. A. than those selected for Spurs, they must be a secret that the world has never heard. And when we got these combined in Spur Cigarettes, what do you suppose was the result? Just the best taste and aroma that any cigarette could give, and Willie Doll-up or Freddie Flavoring hadn't a thing to do with it.

Spur is "class" all through—even to the smart "brown-and-silver" package, triple-wrapped, that keeps Spurs fresh and fragrant. Try out a package of Spurs. You'll say "made and priced for popularity."
