SCHOOLS IN THE PANAMA CANAL ZONE

Making His Seventh Voyage Between Isthmus and U. S.—Accompanied by His Wife.

Albert R. Lang, 1909 Nebraska Wesleyan, who has spent the summer in the states has returned to Canal Zone where he is superintendent of public instruction with headquarters at Balboa. He attended the teachers' college at Columbia university this summer and there met John Talbot, 1910 Wesleyan who has given the doctorate degree at Columbia this summer. Mrs. Lang, nee Manota Perry, spent the summer with her mother near Plattsmouth.

This was Mr. Lang's seventh voyage between the states and the isthmus. On his return he and Mrs. Lang stopped at Port au Prince, Haiti. He writes a Wesleyan friend: background and luxuriant vegetation makes a very beautiful and picturesque sight. However, riding about the little city of the negro republic one at once realizes that it is a case of distance lends enchantment. The poverty and filth are indescribable and the heat almost unbearable. After a few hours in an automobile we are happy to board our ship and proceed once more for our own beautiful Canal Zone.

"We have spent three summers in the states and one in the interior province of the republic of Panama at an elevation of 3,500 feet on the side of the extinct Volcan de Chiriqui with an altitude of 11,000 feet and in the wonderful mountains of beautiful Costa Rica at an altitude of 4,500 feet and in view of Volcan Irazu towering 12,000 feet among the clouds. In both of these places we had a delightfully cool and invigorating climate. With these divisions and the interesting work we have on the Canal Zone the seven years we have passed here have passed rapidly."

Mr. Lang writes further: "The Canal Zone has become Americanized to the extent that it is really a little strip of their United States located in the tropics. In addition to the large army and navy population, it has a civilian population of 21,650. The school system is comparable with a city school system in the United States of equal population.

"We have five elementary and two high schools for American children and three for the native population of Indian children. These are comparable with ward schools in a city system. Contrary to the belief of many unfamiliar with conditions here, we have no native children on the Canal Zone. Our American schools are purely American in every way. They are composed of American children and taught by American teachers under conditions one might expect to find in an American city. We have no rural or one-teacher schools. The schools are all graded and pupils transfer to and from the states schools with comparative ease. The teachers have the best qualifications and are selected from those having successful experience in the city school systems of the United States. The applications have been so numerous that we have as yet had no difficulty in securing well qualified and experienced teachers in spite of the critical teacher shortage in the states.

"The West Indian schools are for children of the colored West Indian laborers. These schools are conducted on the American plan with slight changes in the course of study. They are taught by West Indian male teachers, most of whom have been trained in the normal schools and colleges of Jamaica and have had a number of years' experience in the government schools there. Practically all of the colored children are Jamaicans. There are a few from the other West Indian islands. They are all English speaking.

"Our schools are all strictly English speaking. We have no Spanish speaking schools as many people believe. A few children of the better Spanish families living in the cities of Panama and Colon pay a tuition fee and attend some of our schools to learn the English language. Many of these in this way learn to speak beautiful English. We offer a Spanish course of four years in each of our high schools and provide two or three periods per week of instruction in Spanish in our elementary schools beginning with the fourth grade. We have two Spanish speaking teachers employed especially for this elementary work."

"Aside from our school work we enjoy many rather unique and interesting social experiences. Last November Lazzaro of the New York Metropolitan opera house was here in grand opera for a week. In December Secretary of War Baker visited the Canal Zone and we attended a reception in his honor. In the spring we were present at a reception given to the Prince of Wales by the president of the republic of Panama. The prince is returning through Canal this week. General Pershing also has visited us. We have frequent opportunities to attend receptions given by various diplomatic representatives of the republic of Panama and also by Americans and foreign commanders aboard their ships. Then, too, many of the people employed on the Canal Zone are unusually interesting and well worth knowing."

APEX STEEL FENCE POSTS This is the APEX WAY! JUST a few blows with a sledge and you have a fence post that is well bedded in the ground and braced against all side pull. In one hour you can drive a whole line of APEX fence. This is the Time-Saving Feature of Apex Posts. Another advantage is that They Last Twice as Long as Wooden Posts The first cost of Apex posts is slightly more than that of cheap wooden posts, but they can be driven so rapidly and easily that a steel fence line is actually cheaper than one of wood costs. And there are no rotten bottoms and sagging fence to contend with. Take no substitute for the genuine Apex Post. It is several steps ahead of all competitors. Let us show you the difference. PAY OF NEBRASKA OFFICIALS TO GO UP

Including That of District Judge, Which Advances from $3,000 to $5,000 January 1st. Lincoln, Sept. 22.—After January 1, next, the state officers of Nebraska will not be compelled to live on "starvation salaries." Constitutional proposition No. 40, approved by the voters in yesterday's election, provides for a liberal increase for the state executives. The governor's salary is trebled, being raised from $2,500 to $7,500 a year. Supreme court judges are boosted from $4,500 to $7,500. Other state officers who now draw from $2,000 to $3,000 apiece, are elevated to $5,000. Railway commissioners now get $3,000, the auditor and treasurer $2,500 and other state officers $2,000. The district judges go up from $3,000 to $5,000.

The lieutenant governor will continue to receive twice the pay of state senators and representatives. The legislative salaries' amendment, No. 7 on the ballot, raised the pay from $600 to $800 per session. None of these increases will apply however, during the present terms of executives except on holdover railway commissioners. Those elected this year will draw the higher salaries when they commence the new term next January. In the case of supreme court judges, those who are to be elected and those who hold over will draw the higher pay at the same time. This applies also to district judges. The term of state superintendent is lengthened from two to four years by the adoption of proposal No. 13, but it does not take effect until 1923. A state tax commissioner is created by the approval of proposal No. 14, to be appointed by the governor and whose salary will be fixed by the legislature.
