A TUMULTY TRIBUTE PAID TO PRESIDENT

PRIVATE SECRETARY SAYS HE IS MISUNDERSTOOD MAN—10 YEARS HIS SECRETARY

Washington, Oct. 28.—An intimate picture "of the manner of man this Woodrow Wilson is," based on ten years as his private secretary and touched here and there with hitherto unpublished incidents in the president's official life, was drawn tonight by Joseph P. Tumulty, speaking at a democratic mass meeting just over the line in Maryland. Mr. Tumulty described the president as a "man as strangely misunderstood by some and as violently misrepresented by others as any man in the whole history of American politics." He had long desired, he said, to tell the country what he knew of Mr. Wilson's character, but had refrained in the knowledge that the president, "who shrinks from exploitation, would resent exploitation by his friends." With the approach of Mr. Wilson's retirement to private life, however, Secretary Tumulty continued: "It seems to me not improper that just before the curtain rises on the last act, I modestly step out to prevent a few things about the leading actor in this great drama of the past eight years."

Recalling his ten years in the "intimate relationship of private secretary," the speaker said:

"I may be presumed to know at least as much about him as the gentleman who discourses volubly of him in Pullman smokers, on the golf links and in the clubs, who assure you that all they say is fact, for they had it on the word of a friend who passed through Washington once and heard a man say that another man said etc."

Among incidents on which he drew to illustrate his subject, Mr. Tumulty recalled the reaction of the president to the applause which greeted delivery of his war message to congress on April 6, 1917.

"On that fateful day," Secretary Tumulty said, "I rode with him back from the capitol to the white house, the echo of the applause still ringing in my ears. For a while he sat silent and pale in the cabinet room. At last he said: 'Think what it was they were applauding. It means death for our young men. How strange it seems to applaud that!'"

That simple remark, Secretary Tumulty continued, "is one key to an understanding of Woodrow Wilson," who, he said, hated and dreaded war with "all of the fibres of his human soul."

As further evidence of the president's sense of responsibility in the blood shed by America, Secretary Tumulty told of the day when news came of American casualties at Vera Cruz in 1914.

"When the news came," he said, "the president was quiet all day. He went about his business methodically with his usual clear judgment and prompt decisions, but that night he sat silent for a long time. At last he said: 'I cannot get it off my heart. It had to be done; it was right; nothing else was possible, but I cannot forget that it was I who had to order those young men to their deaths.'"

Order Mayo to Vera Cruz.

Earlier that year, when word came that a "German vessel laden with munitions was on its way to Mexico, President Wilson talked over the telephone with Secretaries Bryan and Daniels, and Mr. Tumulty said he was also on the telephone during the conversation. When the situation had been stated to the president, he said, "the voice came back clear and firm: 'Order Admiral Mayo to take Vera Cruz at once.'"

"Just before I cut off the connection," Secretary Tumulty continued, "I said a word to the president about the tragedy of it all. His voice responded, no longer clear, but muffled, as when one chokes back a sob: 'What do you think of it Tumulty? It means death. It breaks my heart, but it must be done.'"

Secretary Tumulty recalled also Mr. Wilson's determination to ride in the funeral procession of the marines and sailors killed at Vera Cruz when the bodies were brought back to New York. Disquieting rumors that an attack was planned on his life had reached secret service men. Mr. Tumulty said, and "one undertook to argue with him saying: 'You will show all proper respect by appearing in the reviewing stand. The country cannot afford to lose its president.'"

"His reply was: 'The country cannot afford to have a coward for a president.' This was his brief and final answer. He rode in the procession."

The sternness of Woodrow Wilson, his secretary declared, was "just the reverse side of his humane nature," and made "nothing more natural" than that he should have become the champion of small nations. The president's insistence upon article ten of the league covenant was explained as a wish to forestall the necessity of the United States going to war by making it a participant "in a plan to prevent the beginning of such war."

"He wished to stop the next war before it should begin," Mr. Tumulty said.

For War When Necessary.

In contrast to Mr. Wilson's self-proclaimed "passion for peace," Secretary Tumulty declared that "when the challenge came from Germany to America, when the American mind was ready for war . . . this same Woodrow Wilson became the most uncompromising advocate of the most stringent measures for conducting the war, thereby to hasten the end of the war." The speaker recalled the president's speech to officers of the Atlantic fleet in 1917, published long after, in which he said "I am willing to sacrifice half the

"BEST EVER MADE" STATES MRS. BRAND

Wants Others to Know How Tanlac Overcame Her Rheumatism and Indigestion.

"Tanlac has proved such a blessing to me that I just want other sufferers to know about it," declared Mrs. Mary A. Brand, of 820 West Second street, Des Moines, Iowa.

For five years, continued Mrs. Brand, "I was in mighty bad health. Shortly after eating anything, my stomach would hurt me till the pain became almost unbearable. Gas pressed up against my heart, causing it to palpitate dreadfully, and when I exerted myself in any way, I just had to fight for breath."

"I had awful headaches and dizzy spells, and my nerves were unstrung. I suffered from rheumatism in my right arm and in my ankles, and at times I could scarcely raise my hand above my head. I was restless, couldn't get enough sleep, and got up in the mornings feeling miserable."

"After reading about Tanlac I decided to try it, and I can eat anything I want, even beans and onions, and am not bothered from indigestion longer. I am free from gas on my stomach, and am free from dizziness, headaches, palpitations and shortness of breath. The rheumatic pains are entirely gone and my nerves are steady and normal again. I sleep fine, and get up in the mornings feeling refreshed and full of energy."

Tanlac is sold in Plattsmouth by F. G. Fricke and Company; in Murray by the Murray Drug company, and the leading druggist in every town.

WEDDING BELLS

Wedding bells rang merrily on Wednesday of last week, October 20, 1920, when Miss Pearl Jerdine became the bride of George Meyer. The ceremony took place at the Evangelical Lutheran church, the pastor, Rev. Theodore Hartman officiating. Miss Florence Gauer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gauer and cousin of the bride, was bride's maid and Walter Heil acted as best man.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Jerdine and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Meyer, two highly respected pioneer families of the community. They are a popular young couple with a large circle of friends who join the Courier in wishing them happiness and success.

The ceremony, the bridal party drove to the home of the bride's parents, where a fine wedding supper was served, only near relatives being present. On the Sunday following, Mr. and Mrs. Jerdine entertained again in honor of the event at a dinner, which the near relatives on both sides were present. The young couple will not go to housekeeping at present, but will stay with the groom's brother-in-law, Edward Stander, to help through corn shucking and will then go to Merna to visit with the groom's brother, Henry Elsen and family for a short time, after which they expect to reside on a farm near Merna, in Custer county.—Louisville Courier.

The Evidence is At Your Door.

Plattsmouth proof is what you want and the statement of this highly respected resident will banish all doubt!

A. J. McFarland, 306 3rd street, Plattsmouth, says: "Several years ago I was doing some heavy lifting which strained my back and kidneys. This put me in such shape I had to walk with a cane for a number of weeks and I couldn't straighten. It felt as though there was a heavy weight across my back that was just holding me down. I couldn't sleep nights and it felt as though I had been stuck in the back with a sharp knife. My kidneys acted irregularly and the secretions were highly colored and burned in passage. I was told to try Doan's Kidney Pills and after the first box my condition was much improved. I put my cane away and was able to walk straight. I used four boxes from Fricke & Co's drug store and they made a cure that has lasted ten years. My back and kidneys have never bothered me since and I believe Doan's will do the same for other people if they will give me a fair trial."

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Schlater have moved from the house on Railroad avenue, where they have resided recently, into the A. J. Dietrich house on South Main street.

Miss Grace Noyes came home from the Wesleyan for an over Sunday visit with her mother, Mrs. Rachel Noyes and other relatives. She was accompanied by her friend, Miss Abigail Benz, of Eagle, who is also attending the Wesleyan.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Rockwell are receiving the congratulations of their large circle of friends upon the arrival of a fine big boy at their home in the country northwest of Manley. The little fellow arrived on October 20th.

At a mass meeting held at the opera house funds were raised by the business men of Main street for the purpose of employing a night watchman to protect the town against burglars. C. F. Wheeler was appointed and is now on duty.

Fremont Wheeler and wife of Norfolk, drove down recently to visit his brother, Frank Wheeler and family and brought with them their sister, Mrs. F. A. Wood, of Denver, whom they had seen for the first thirteen years. Her husband is a mining engineer and is well known in that country as the inventor of the famous gearless steam auto.

August Ossenkop shipped in a car of horses from the Parmele ranch near Oconto and put them up for sale at auction at the Missouri Pacific stock yards last Saturday. They were splendid young animals, in good order and some of them well broken. The scarcity of ready cash and the fact that the fall of the year is a bad time to sell stock is attributed as the reason for the lack of interest in bidding. After three or four head had been sold at a very low price, Mr. Ossenkop stopped the sale and disposed of the remainder at private sale.

Fred Diers of Madison, visited here last week with his brother, W. F. Diers and family on his way to Omaha to attend the Federation of Nebraska Retailers and Federated Merchants Mutual Insurance company of which he is a director. Mr. Diers is a prominent merchant in Madison and has probably the finest and most modern general store in the Madison county. He accompanied his brother and family to Gretna, where they drove for a short visit with their sister, Mrs. R. J. Tangeman and family. Mr. Diers paid this office a pleasant call as is his custom when he is in town.

A Reliable Remedy for Colds and Croup

It would surprise you to know the number of people who use and recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mrs. J. N. Rose, Verona, Pa., writes "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used by myself and husband for a number of years for coughs and colds. I also gave it to my little granddaughter three and a half years of age when she had croup last winter. I have recommended this remedy to many of my friends and neighbors who have also used it with good results."
