MUST REDUCE NUMBER OF UNFIT ENGINES

Rail Chiefs Say Too Many in Shops for Repair and Not Enough on the Job Cause Shortage.

Efforts to reduce the percentage of locomotives out of service for repairs are being made by railway executives who declare the car shortage is due to the fact that too many locomotives are unfit for service at the same time. A bulletin issued under the authority of the Association of Railway Executives to unify all forces in the effort to secure maximum service from existing transportation facilities shows that an early and substantial reduction in the number of locomotives now unfit for service must be made.

This move, according to the advisory committee of the Association of Railway Executives, is an essential part of the more-transportation program, mapped out since the roads have been returned to private ownership. Heavier loading may be achieved, car movement may be increased, but adequate means to haul the traffic is indispensable, the bulletin continues.

Big Per Cent in Shops
On September 15, of all locomotives, 17.1 per cent were out of service for repairs requiring over 24 hours and 6.4 per cent for repairs requiring less than 24 hours.

As a basis for comparison—altho the statistics were kept on a different basis at that time—in September, 1917, 13.5 per cent of freight locomotives were in shops for repairs or awaiting repairs.

The number of locomotives out of service for repairs is said to be too many even if there were in service all the locomotives needed.

According to figures compiled by the Railway Age, the average number of locomotives provided annually by the railroads for eight years prior to the war was 2,970. The same authority estimates that the accumulated shortage of the years 1917, 1918 and 1919 was 3,190.

locomotives this year at a cost of more than $105,000,000. In the program for utilization of the $300,000,000 revolving loan fund provided for in the transportation act, there are loans to some thirty-two companies amounting to the sum of $29,000,000 to enable them to acquire 636 freight locomotives and 277 switching locomotives, having a total value of approximately $58,000,000.

Even if this is a maximum possible program for increase of motive power at this time, pending the availability of new locomotives, the bulletin concludes by saying there must be more service obtained from the locomotives on hand. To this end is pledged the effort of every railroad management.

FARM SITUATION IS A SERIOUS MATTER

SO SAYS FORMER SECRETARY OF STATE ASSOCIATION IN ADDRESS AT OMAHA

Omaha, Nov. 18.—"Farming is hard hit. Even the man farthest removed from the industry knows that, if he isn't an imbecile. The present reverses in the business of farming are now affecting adversely and seriously every other industry in the country. The situation is serious. It is really critical and can easily and quickly become dangerous. In fact, we are in the very midst of danger now."

These were the opening words of J. W. Shorthill, former secretary of the Nebraska Farmers' Co-operative Grain and Live Stock association now in session. His subject was, "What Shall We Do with Our Market?"

He declared that there is "just one line of procedure" possible now if disaster is to be averted. That is, he said for every industry to realize that every other industry is being affected by its own condition. "If we go together we will walk safely," he said. "If we walk separately, we will trip ourselves."

Farmer Entitled to Sympathy
"It is high time," said Shorthill, "that somebody besides the farmer begins to realize that the farmer's market is bad. The farmer is now entitled to genuine sympathy. He certainly is not deserving of sneers."

He declared that there has been especially in the last year, an increase in the opposition of "business interests" to the progress demanded and attempted by the agrarian interest. "This is not only a mistake," he added, "but it is fundamentally wrong. The farmer has the right to journey as far as he chooses to sell his product and to buy his supplies. I do not suggest that the business interests should try to promote business ventures for the farmers. These things are for the farmers to do themselves. Business men can lend their encouragement and indorsement to every honest effort of the farmer to improve his business."

Shorthill advised the farmers to go "further into business," further into live stock and the handling of grain. While he would not suggest "general merchandising" or similar enterprises, he stated frankly that it would probably be advisable for the farmer to interest himself in some side line though these, of course, should be as closely linked with farming as possible.

Must Use Business Methods
"You'll not get far in marketing by forming a great big organization and expecting its size to carry you through, but you can succeed by the use of high class business methods; you'll not get very far in securing increased prices for your products by having the state do things for you, but you can carry your marketing system to the highest point of perfection by doing these things yourselves; you'll not get far by the establishment of a permanent marketing organization by joining with the consumers, but you can assure the permanence of your marketing organization by placing and keeping the ownership, the management, the control and the financing in the hands of you fellows who grow the grain."

"The question uppermost in your minds just now is how far you should go in the marketing of your wheat. I intend to speak now of wheat only, although what I say will be applicable with variations to other grains and in a limited way to live stock. One phase of the question is now definitely settled in my mind. You should go further."

Must Make Profit.
"It is necessary that you go further and it is necessary that you make a success of the venture. It is necessary not only on your own account but on account of others as well. You must go further and the answer to the question how far you will be determined by the question of economy and efficiency will make it possible for you to go with profit."

"Outstanding leaders in the co-operative marketing enterprises of the country—men who have had experience in those lines—have repeatedly told you that the sure foundation for co-operative marketing enterprise is economic necessity. There must be something for the co-operative concern to do that is not being done or there must be an opportunity to do something more efficiently than is being done. In other words, there must be an opportunity to increase profits. So long as you find that opportunity you are justified in going ahead, and the only thing you need to avoid is getting into something that will cost you more than you will get out of it. Go ahead with your wheat market as far and as long as you can make it pay."

WILSON CABLES BRAZIL ON REPUBLIC'S BIRTHDAY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16.—President Wilson has cabled President Pessoa of Brazil expressing "the hearty felicitations of this government and people, and my own cordial congratulations as well on the celebration of the anniversary of the founding of your great republic."

"The secretary of state will soon embark for Brazil on my behalf," the message continued, "to return the welcome and grateful remembered visit of your excellency to the United States of America last year, and will convey in person my best wishes and expression of my high regards."

FORMER CASS CO. MAN FOUND GUILTY

Jury in District Court in Pawnee County Finds J. C. Wheeler Guilty of Assault to Commit Rape

The case of the state of Nebraska against Joseph C. Wheeler which was one trial in the district court at Pawnee City for the greater part of the week was closed on Thursday when the case was submitted to the jury and the jury after twelve hours deliberation returned with a verdict of guilty.

The case is the outgrowth of an alleged assault on Mrs. Ludvika Bollinger, committed on the highway between the towns of Table Rock and Pawnee City on May 13, 1920. The case has attracted a great deal of attention in and near Table Rock, where the two parties of the suit have been residing, the plaintiff being employed in a hotel there while Mr. Wheeler has been engaged in farming near that place for the past three years.

Quite a number from this city and vicinity were summoned in the case by the defense to offer their testimony as to the character of Mr. Wheeler in his home where he has resided for the greater part of his life time.

In the absence of Judge Raper of the district court the case was presided over by Judge Stewart of Lincoln and the case prosecuted by County Attorney Barton of Pawnee county and Mr. Wheeler defended by Matthew Gering of this city.

The defendant will have the case appealed to the state supreme court. It is announced in failing to secure a new trial.

The sentence for the offense under the statutes of Nebraska is from two to fifteen years in the state penitentiary, under the indeterminate sentence law.

CARMEN HAVE FINE TIME LAST EVENING

Modern Woodmen Hall Scene of Very Delightful Gathering of Members of Union and Families.

Last evening the Modern Woodmen hall was the scene of a very delightful gathering when the members of the Carmens union, with their families spent the evening in a social gathering. There was an exceptionally large number present at the gathering and some two hundred and fifty participated in the excellent program and dance that had been prepared by the committee in charge. In the earlier portion of the evening Attorney A. L. Tidd and Attorney C. A. Rawls gave two very pleasing addresses that were much enjoyed. The main portion of the evening was devoted to dancing with the Eagle orchestra furnishing the music for the members tripped the measures of the various dances until a late hour.

One of the features of the evening was the luncheon which the efficient committee provided and they had overlooked anything that might tempt the appetites of the members of the party it has not been reported and when the homegoing hour arrived it was agreed that the Carmens entertainers were certainly all to the good and everyone reports a fine evening. Earl Moore, president of the union, presided at the gathering.

COMPLETING EXCELLENT BUILDING

New Christian Church at Weeping Water Nearing Completion and Will Be Dedicated Soon.

The members of the Christian church of Weeping Water, are well pleased over the nearing completion of their church building which has been under construction for the past few months. The structure is one of modern design, and so arranged that the best results are to be expected from the use of the edifice for all the work of the church and the auxiliaries. There are rooms for the meeting of the different organizations, and for the work of the bible school. The bible school is in a healthy condition and a contest which has just been completed, showed a large gain in members and interest for the school. The contest was between the reds and the blues, for points which were arranged and the latter won. This placed upon the reds an evening's entertainment. A delightful program was furnished and after which a supper was furnished by the defeated side. A large number of members and friends of the church were in attendance at the entertainment which was held in the I. O. O. F. hall last Thursday evening.
