'FRITZ' IS HARD TO GET RID OF

United States Government Finding Some Difficulty in Getting Undesirable Returned.

The problem of what to do with Fritz Detil, which was long a vexing one with Sheriff Quinton and County Attorney Cole, has been transferred to the shoulders of the United States Immigration authorities and they are now busy in an attempt to get this young man loaded on a boat and headed back to his native land, Germany.

After a sojourn here of some four years, the greater part of which Fritz spent as the unwelcome guest at the county jail, he was finally placed in the hands of the immigration department of the government and headed for his old home in Germany, of which country he was a native.

All went well with the plans of the government until Fritz arrived at Ellis Island, in New York, when a stumbling block was encountered in the person of the Swiss consul, who required some documentary proof of the birthplace of Fritz in Germany. To supply this information the immigration department has gotten busy and this morning W. M. Brashear, of Omaha, one of the inspectors of the department arrived in the city to locate what information was possible concerning the birthplace of the unwelcome guest. Mr. Brashear visited at the home of Joe Detil, a distant relative of Fritz, who resides near Murray and will endeavor to find out more definitely the facts concerning Fritz in order that the Swiss consul may issue the necessary passport for his return to Europe.

REDUCTION IN NUMBER OF MID-WEEK DANCES

It has been observed that there is a marked falling off in the number of mid-week dances during the past fortnight. Prior to this time there has been all the way from four to seven dances a week, including the two regular Saturday night hops.

However, the coming of Advent, and the fact that too many do not prove successful from a financial standpoint, has served to lessen the number materially. Last week there were three mid-week dances; this week only one is billed, that of the American Legion on Thursday night, to music by Holly's orchestra.

Ever since the war ended dancing has grown in favor until it became almost a craze, and even now it is holding its own among the amusement loving dances. But six to eight, or even four or five dances a week is too much for any town the size of Plattsouth, and the sooner the organizations giving them learn this fact and get together on a schedule that will permit each to get ahead financially, the better off they will be.

If not overdone, dancing can be held in favor with the public for years to come, but like anything else, too much is too much.

RETURNS FROM HOSPITAL.

Frank Miller, one of the Burlington shop employes who has been making his home with the George Klinger family, returned home this morning after a two weeks stay in Omaha, where he has been recovering from an operation at the Emanuel hospital. Mr. Miller was suffering from appendicitis and stood the operation in fine shape and his host of friends are much pleased to see him back home once more.
