At the home of Miss Margaret McDonald last Tuesday evening the members of Y. W. M. C. met, a large number of the membership being in attendance. The business which had called the young people together, was first attended to, after which they enjoyed a season of games in which all took part and the evening was one worth while from that standpoint as well as the business side. The climax came when Miss Margaret served dainty refreshments, thus giving a delightful ending of a pleasant evening.

Looks Like Light for Elmwood

Last Friday a committee representing the city of Elmwood were in Murdock to meet with the town council of this city in conference as to terms for attaching to the Murdock electric service lines in order to secure light and power service for Elmwood. The electric lighting plant of Elmwood, which is taxed to its fullest capacity, is not so it can well be enlarged and it is thought best to secure some way whereby they can add to the service without entirely rebuilding the plant. Tentative plans were discussed by the board and committee, when the committee returned to meet with the council at Elmwood, and there was held another meeting of the council of Murdock to draft the proposition in order that Elmwood could work on it intelligently. The committee representing the Elmwood city council, meeting here last Friday, were E. C. Cooper, F. A. Hacker and P. H. Tallier.

Building Site for Sale.

I have an excellent building site for sale, the best location in Murdock, 75 foot frontage. J. S. McHUGH.

Boat is Finished.

The boat which has been under construction by the Murdock ship yards, has been completed, and is now ready for the waters, and as soon as arrangements can be satisfactorily completed, preparations will be begun for one of the most elaborate celebrations which has been witnessed on the banks of the placid Platte for many a moon. The craft has been named the "Minnahaha," because of the laughing waters in which it is to be launched. Captain Gillespie will have charge of the ceremonies which is a thorn in the side of the former captain, J. A. Bauers, who also had an ambition to remain in the position. But like everything else, it went republican. Mr. Bauers was the democratic candidate, while Mr. Gillespie was the republican aspirant, and you all know how things have been going. Well, Mr. Bauers, you may hope for recognition when the next boat is built. The launching will occur April 15th.

RETIRING PRESIDENT RIDES TO CAPITOL, BUT DOES NOT WITNESS INAUGURATION

Washington, D. C., March 4.—Warren G. Harding was today inaugurated twenty-ninth president of the United States, the ceremony taking place under favorable weather on the east portico of the capitol shortly after noon. Pressing his lips to a historic bible used at the inauguration, George Washington, the new president took the oath administered by Chief Justice White. He had chosen the eighth verse from the sixth chapter of Micah saying: "What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly and to love mercy and walk humbly with thy God?"

Immediately after the administration of the oath Mr. Harding turned to the vast crowd, which stretched across the capitol plaza, and began the delivery of his inaugural address. Sound amplifiers carried his voice to the outskirts of the big assembly. A chilly wind, freshly warmed by a bright sun swept the broad space which appeared strangely in contrast of other years when it has been illuminated by the uniforms of West Point cadets, midshipmen from Annapolis and troops.

Immediately after the conclusion of the inaugural address, the small party re-formed and took motor cars back to the White house, escorted by the cavalry troops, which had brought it to the capitol. Vice President Coolidge had taken the oath at 12:21 in the senate chamber.

Wilson Does Not Witness It. Yielding to last minute entreaties of his family and physicians, President Wilson took no part in the inaugural ceremonies today other than to accompany President-elect Harding from the White house to the capitol. The outgoing president witnessed neither the ceremonies in the senate chamber, which attended the inaugural of Vice President-elect Coolidge, nor the ceremonies on the plaza outside the capitol, where the incoming president took the oath. Immediately after signing some bills in the president's room, Mr. Wilson returned to his motor car and drove back to his own new home on S street.

From Hotel to White House. President-elect Harding, with Mrs. Harding and the vice-president and Mrs. Coolidge left their hotel for the White house at 10:20 a. m. They were accompanied by members of the congressional inaugural committee and riding in columns on either side of the automobiles were four troops of cavalry from Fort Myer with drawn sabres. Accompanying the president-elect in the White house automobile, was Senator Knox, chairman of the inaugural committee, and Representative Cannon. Next came an automobile bearing Vice President-elect Coolidge, vice President Marshall and other members of the inaugural committee. In a third automobile were Mrs. Harding and other members of the congressional committee, in another machine rode Mrs. Coolidge and Mrs. Marshall. Pennsylvania avenue was lined with crowds, held back behind wire ropes. Several hundred infantrymen from Camp Meade, Maryland, with fixed bayonets patrolled both sides of the street. The president-elect and vice president-elect were lustily cheered by the crowds. The party reached the White house in less than five minutes.

"SILENT CAL" SEEMS TO SHUN THE SPOTLIGHT

Washington, D. C., March 4.—In some respects Vice President Coolidge is a figure strange in American public life, being taciturn to a degree and apparently shunning the spot light and the glamor which usually surrounds high public officials. To his most intimate friends he is known as "Silent Cal." It is related in illustration of this characteristic that a personal and political friend who had conferred with him in his executive offices at Boston without receiving more than monosyllables for answers finally quit the office in disgust, exclaiming as he came out: "By George, I'd like to be that fellow's stenographer."

LOUISVILLE Courier

The warm weather started the flight of ducks and geese northward earlier this spring and many hunters all along the Platte slipped out to the blinds and were seen coming in with their game bags bulging. The day after the big flight the state game wardens were looking for violators of the game law but they found none. Mrs. G. P. Brown, of Omaha, came down last week to attend the farm sale of her brothers, Rudolph and Paul Hell at the old home place east of town on Wednesday of last week. Mr. Brown drove down after her in their handsome new Buick roadster. They continue to enjoy living in Omaha, but say they miss their Louisville friends. The three little sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ahl are on the sick list and their grandmother, Mrs. Henry Ahl was called out to their home in the country last Tuesday evening. Their friends are hoping that their trouble will prove to be nothing more serious than the ailments incidental to children and that they will soon be as well as ever. The Degree of Honor held an all day session on last Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Henry Ahl, the guest of honor being Grand Chief Mrs. Frances D. Owens of York, who visited them for the day. The visit of this distinguished officer was a great pleasure to the ladies and also an inspiration to them. Each member present brought part of the dinner and a grand banquet was spread at noon which was greatly enjoyed by the guest of honor and others present. The Degree of Honor lodge of Louisville is not large as to membership, but each one is a live member and they have a hustling organization. Mrs. Ahl was a charter member of the Cedar Creek lodge which was organized about thirty years ago and has been a loyal and good worker in the local lodge as can be said of every member.
