

RECREATION CAMP CREATES INTEREST

Camp Sheldon, the Y. M. C. A. Summer Camp for Boys at Columbus, Attracts Attention

The recreation camp that the state association of the Y. M. C. A. has established at Columbus, Nebraska, and which is known as "Camp Sheldon," is creating a great deal of interest over the state, where the movement for clean and wholesome exercise and outing for the boys and young men is being pushed.

The visit of State Secretary Mueselman to this city has placed the matter clearly before the parents as well as the boys and there is no doubt that a number of the lads from twelve to eighteen years old will be sent there for a part of the season at least. Camp Sheldon is equipped with permanent buildings, including administration and dining hall that provides accommodation for all who may assemble there and these are made the points for many of the social gatherings of the camp. Sixteen tent cottages are so constructed that they will not detract from the pleasure of real camp life and yet are of such a permanent nature that they will prove comfortable at all times and in all conditions of weather. The camp is equipped with electric lights, sanitary sewer system and other things that make it an excellent place for the pleasure and comfort of the youngsters. Baseball diamonds, tennis courts, volley ball courts and quiet grounds give plenty of opportunity for exercise and the boys while in camp will be under the leadership of men calculated to inspire the campers with the best of learning and clean thinking.

FRIENDS ENJOY EACH OTHER

Last Sunday was most pleasantly and quietly spent by Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Pollard and family, of Nehawka, and John Waterman, Omaha, a Boy Scout, who is a nephew of Mrs. Pollard's at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Johnson.

In spite of the terrific wind of last Friday, the Boy Scout of 14 years, rode his bicycle from Omaha to Nehawka.

This gathering was such a treat for these life-long friends, and all who were present hoped there would be many more such dinners and opportunities to meet and discuss the past, present and future.

While at the Johnson farm Mr. Pollard made investigation and if there is no more such weather, there will be plenty of peaches on the Johnson farm.—Weeping Water Republican.

RETURNS FROM PERKINS COUNTY

George M. Hild, the local land dealer, and L. H. Puls of Murray, returned the last of the week from a trip to Perkins county, Nebraska, where they looked over the land in that locality. They report that crop conditions there are the best that could be desired and better than is usual at this time of the year in that portion of the state. While there, Mr. Puls disposed of his Murray garage and interests for some of the best of the Perkins county land, making the deal through Mr. Hild and Frank Vallery and Tom Cronwell.

BRIDGE BURNED; TRAFFIC DELAYED

Burlington Structure on East Side of River Destroyed by Fire Yesterday Afternoon.

From Tuesday's Daily.

One of the bridges on the line of the Burlington on the east side of the Missouri river between the main bridge and Pacific Junction caught fire yesterday afternoon and before the flames could be extinguished several spans of the bridge had been destroyed.

The fire is supposed to have been caused by hot coals from passing engines dropping on the wooden structure and causing the blaze. The switch engine from this city as well as the Junction were called to the scene and every effort was made to check the flames and it was largely due to the earnest work of the section men and switching crews that the blaze was finally extinguished. Everett Noble, one of the switchmen in the local yards was severely burned on the right leg when the nozzle from a hose was blown off, allowing the hot water from the engine boilers to scald him.

The section men were busy all night repairing the structure and as a result it was possible to resume traffic over the bridge this morning. No. 14, the Burlington train due here at 9 o'clock in the evening, was compelled to remain in the local yards all night and left from here this morning on its run to Lincoln.

Expensive Economy

—In the days of barter and trade there was no money. People had to trade the goods they made for the goods of other people, and they knew that they could not get the things they wanted nor dispose of the things they had to sell until they could find someone to trade with.

—So money was invented as a medium of exchange. We trade our goods for gold, silver or paper and buy the things we want with the money.

—But the principle is just the same as in the days of barter and trade — if we don't trade — if we don't buy — we can't sell.

—So, when we refuse to buy the things we need, it keeps someone else from selling his goods and buying other goods — until it comes back to us and we find we cannot sell our products, or cannot get a fair price — a good trade — for them.

—It's the good old game of give and take,

—Making one hand wash the other.

—Going without things is often expensive economy—aside from the effect it has on the commerce of the world.

—It often deprives us of the profitable use of things we really need to make more money with. Money is not wealth — chattels are wealth. Money is only the medium of exchanging wealth. So when we go without things we are not adding to our wealth.

—It is the spendthrift who is profligate and unthrifty — not the business man who buys and sells wisely and keeps the wheels of industry moving by his buying and selling.

—Consider building for instance. The world needs buildings — must have them — yet our supply of lumber is growing steadily smaller. We cannot expect it to decline much in price because we cannot raise lumber in one season, and the demand is greater than the supply. But lumber is really only 22 per cent of the cost that enters into a building.

—When we consider this fact and the fact that it is becoming more scarce, we can readily see that lumber is really a bargain at the present price. And the man who needs a home is practicing "expensive economy" by going without it and depriving himself of the means of better living or better working facilities. If building materials should be lower in price the difference will not make up for the loss of going without the building when needed.

—And the price will only be lower when other things are lower — our own products with the rest.

—Things should not be measured in dollars and cents, because the purchasing power of money fluctuates. They should be measured in bushels and pounds, and then we could see just how much of our goods we should have to give for so much of the other fellow's goods.

—Just as in the days of barter and trade. And if we have lots of goods to trade, we will be willing to give more of them for something we want than when we only have a small amount.

—But let us find someone to trade with and start the ball rolling by getting the things we need instead of going without and practicing "expensive economy."

DRAWS COMPENSATION FOR BEING KICKED

The state workmen's compensation law, says workmen cannot recover damages when injured while engaged in frolic, even if it is during working hours. There are exceptions to this, however.

Frank A. Kennedy, secretary of the state department of labor, during the last week ruled that Charles Stryker was entitled to eleven weeks and five days of compensation at the rate of $15 a week for having been injured as a result of being kicked by a fellow worker.

Stryker and Ed Barr, engaged in loading ties for the Lyman-Rithey sand company at Louisville last December, were good friends, but when Stryker was busy at his work, Barr saw an opportunity to give him a friendly boot. He booted. The kick caused a blood clot, necessitating an operation and eleven weeks and five days of idleness.

PRAIRES ROADS BETWEEN HERE AND NEBRASKA CITY

From Monday's Daily.

Ralph ("Banty") Hanks arrived here last night, via Omaha, from Chicago, Illinois, where he has been since last August. He drove all the way from Chicago and declares the finest road he ever saw is between Plattsmouth and Nebraska City. "I hate to say it," he told the Press last night, "but I drove from Omaha in less than an hour."

"Banty" will be remembered as the soldier who refused to entrain at the Burlington station until he had kissed all the girls on the platform. The girls will be delighted, of course, to know that he's back.—Nebraska City Press.

TWO NEW ARRIVALS

From Wednesday's Daily.

The population of the city was increased last evening and this morning by two fine young Americans, boy and girl, and two homes of the city made much happier by the addition to their family circle. The youngster called last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Taylor and left in their care a fine little daughter who with the mother is doing very nicely and the event has brought a great deal of pleasure to the father.

This morning a fine husky young man arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Kief and announced his intention of dwelling in the household in the years to come and the occasion has brought happiness to the proud parents as well as the brothers and sisters of the little man.

MAKES IMPROVEMENT IN APPEARANCE

Grounds Surrounding Methodist Church Now Present Changed Appearance.

The last few days have created a great change in the appearance of the grounds that surround the Methodist church and parsonage at the corner of Seventh and Vine streets and which certainly has added greatly to the general aspect of that portion of the city.

The program of improvement that has been carried out by the church in the last few months is such as to make a vast change in that section of the city in which it is located. Up to the past year the property was unimproved aside from the church building itself and the grounds did not present a very pleasing aspect, but the energy and efforts of the members of the congregation has resulted in a fine parsonage being completed and occupied by the pastor of the church and which is one of the most pleasant and modern houses in the city. A retaining wall on the east side of the property has also been built that tends to prevent the washing away of the terrace and now the whole of the grounds surrounding the church and parsonage has been carefully sodded and placed in first class shape in every way.

The enterprise of the good people of the church is certainly to be commended by the community in general as an inspiration to making a city beautiful.

FUNERAL OF MRS. KOONS

From Wednesday's Daily.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Perry Koons was held this afternoon at 3:30 from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Steinhauer on Pearl street and was quite largely attended by the sorrowing friends who gathered to share with the family the grief that the death of this kind and loving wife and mother has brought to the community.

The services were conducted by Rev. A. V. Hunter, pastor of the Methodist church, who spoke words of comfort to the grief torn hearts of the relatives and friends and the message of hope that is brought to the faithful in the teachings of the Savior.

During the service Mrs. E. H. Westcott and Mrs. Edward Roman sang two of the sweet songs of faith, "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Sun of My Soul."

The wealth of floral remembrances spoke of the deep feeling of love in which Mrs. Koons had been held in the community and were beautiful in the extreme.

SOVIET RUSSIA PUTS UP BARS

New York, April 11.—The soviet government has issued an order prohibiting anyone from the United States from crossing the borders of Russia after April 20, according to a cable message made public today by Charles Recht, attorney for the Russian soviet government. The message received for the soviet consul at Libau, stated that all emigration from this country would be suspended after that date until an official representative of the soviet government, with authority to vize passports of persons who desire to go to Russia, arrives in the United States. No indication as to when such an official would arrive was contained in the message.
